U.N. Summit Talks Possible

Russia Vetoes Japanese Mideast Plan

U.N. Council Then Decides To Adjourn

Dag Will Act On Own To "Beef Up" Observer Team

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UPI)—Russia Tuesday vetoed a compromise Japanese proposal to replace U. S. troops in Lebanon with an expanded United Nations force. The Security Council then voted to adjourn its Middle East debate to clear the way for a summit conference.

Russia fought against both the Japanese proposal and the plan to adjourn the council meeting. It vetoed the Japanese plan after Soviet amendments to it were voted down 8-1 with Sweden and Japan abstaining. The veto vote was 10 in favor of the original Japanese proposal and only Russia opposed. On the vote for adjournment, the vote again was 10 to 1, but the Russian negative vote was not a veto.

Immediately after the Japanese proposal was killed, Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold announced that under powers granted him by the UN charter he was acting on his own to "beef up" the unarmed 100-man UN observer team already in Lebanon. But he said he was not prepared to give details of his plan at this time.

Interested In Western Idea

During closing moments of the tense debate, Soviet delegate Arkady A. Sobolev appeared to hint that Russia was interested in the Western idea of a summit meeting within the security council.

He said the original summit proposal by Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev last Saturday for a meeting "at any time and place" was not designed to slow down or impede the action of the UN organization in performing its function and responsibility with a view to restoring peace in the Middle East.

It was designed to speed up the finding of such a solution which on one hand, would satisfy, the national interests of the peoples of the area and, on the other, would lead to the elimination of the threat which weighs not only on the Middle East but on the whole world."

Indefinite Adjournment

Sobolev added that the summit proposal should not be "regarded as an excuse for the Security Council of the UN as a whole to stop operations."

Council President Alfonso Araujo of Colombia proposed an indefinite council adjournment. The West agreed, but Sobolev demanded that the council continue debate and take up his proposal for an emergency session of the general assembly. The U. S., which also has suggested an assembly meeting, did not press its case.

In a summit - minded atmosphere, the council then voted to adjourn indefinitely.

Sobolev Vetoes Japanese Resolution

Rebel Leader Sees Mideast Crisis Easing

Early Withdrawal Of Marines From Lebanon Forecast

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—A rebel leader predicted Tuesday that U.S. Marines and paratroopers will be going back to their ships and bases soon because the Middle East crisis over Iraq has about passed.

Hussein Oweini, a former premier and leader of the national front, made the prediction as Robert Murphy, President Eisenhower's special representative, sounded varied political elements in search of a compromise in Lebanon's tangled presidential succession. This is the cause of the 74-day-old rebellion. One of the men Murphy talked to is Oweini.

But the American troops were still in the midst of a lot of shooting.

Sentry Kills Marine

A Marine was killed — but the bullet came from one of his own sentries. This was the second American killed in Lebanon. A Navy fighter pilot was killed Sunday in the crash of his plane.

An officer said the Marine had been laying trip flares in front of an outpost near the airport and failed to answer challenges. The flares, which illuminate a wide area, are set off by trip wires.

The utility aircraft carrier Corregidor arrived from Naples with a consignment of helicopters and light liaison planes. Navy headquarters said the 7,800-ton vessel be assigned to ferrying duties.

Situation "Stabilizing"

Oweini said he never believed the 9,400 Marines and paratroopers were sent because of the Lebanese crisis "but because of the trouble in Iraq and the possibility of intervening there."

"The situation in Iraq now is stabilizing," he said, "and the West realizes it will not be necessary to send its troops to Baghdad. Now all we need is a satisfactory formula for taking them out of Lebanon."

His estimate of the situation in Iraq was made as London and Washington statements indicated there was little likelihood of intervention against the rebels who overthrew the pro-Western Baghdad government.

Ike Informs Khrushchev U.S. Willing

President Hurls Challenge, Rebuke At Soviet Premier

By JOHN SCALI

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower and Britain's Prime Minister Macmillan offered Tuesday night to discuss the Middle East crisis with Russia's Premier Khrushchev at a summit meeting of the United Nations Security Council.

But France's Premier de Gaulle held back, proposing another time and place. He said the United Nations headquarters in New York lacks the calm and serenity needed for such an emergency meeting.

What Khrushchev would say remained uncertain. He had suggested a session at Geneva or anywhere.

The three Western allies split publicly in replying to Khrushchev's call for an immediate five-nation conference. The Soviet leader himself again demanded swift withdrawal of U.S.-British forces sent to Lebanon and Jordan to bolster pro-Western governments there.

These developments came during a day of fast-moving diplomatic jockeying in the four capitals:

Washington—Eisenhower flung back at Khrushchev his accusation that the United States and Britain have gravely endangered world peace. In a bitterly worded note, he challenged Khrushchev to complain personally to the 11-nation United Nations Security Council.

U.S. Willing To Join In

"If such a meeting were genuinely desired, the United States would join in following that orderly procedure," Eisenhower said.

Eisenhower made no promise to meet face-to-face with Khrushchev. He noted tersely Council members could be represented by chiefs of government and foreign ministers. But responsible officials thought he would have to show up if Khrushchev and other heads of government did.

London—In a far softer reply that went further than Eisenhower's, Macmillan formally suggested a summit level meeting of the U.N. Security Council. Macmillan even set forth some ground rules—saying the meeting should seek to discuss the problems and not vote on any specific resolution unless all agreed in advance.

"In other words, the object would be to reach fruitful agreements rather than to register differences by votes," he wrote Khrushchev. "I hope this spirit will prevail.

"I would certainly be ready to attend such a meeting, if you would go, and I take it from the terms of your message that you would. . . . I should certainly be glad to explain to you face-to-face how Her Majesty's government view the problems which beset the area."

DeGaulle Objects

Paris—Premier de Gaulle said he was ready to work out with other powers a suitable time and place for a summit conference. But he objected to convening such a parley now at the U.N. on the grounds that it lacks the calm and serene atmosphere he wants for such talks.

Moscow — Khrushchev, in a free-swinging speech at the Polish Embassy, said the United States and Britain could be crushed in a rising tide of Arab nationalism unless they pull their troops out of the Middle East.

He gave no clue about whether he would accept a U.N. summit meeting as a substitute for his proposal for an immediate meeting of the heads of state from the United States, Russia, Britain, France and India, together with U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold.

"The ice of the ages is moving, it is breaking up and crushing everything in its path, all the colonial and imperialist policies of old," Khrushchev said.

"Let the imperialists beware," he cried, waving his arms. "We are revolutionaries. We are Marxists and we are delighted when the colonial nations raise up and cast off their chains."

Eisenhower's offer to meet with Khrushchev was clearly a reluctant one, influenced by public pressure from Macmillan some six hours earlier.

In contrast to Macmillan's language, Eisenhower's letter constituted a challenge rather than an invitation to Khrushchev. Even this was firmed up at the last minute after Macmillan insisted

National Polio Foundation Will Expand Activity

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, a giant fund-raising organization which led the victorious fight against polio, announced Tuesday it was turning its attention to other dread killers and cripplers of mankind.

Foundation President Basil O'Connor said the organization would be known in the future simply as the National Foundation and would expand its activities to take in all the virus diseases, arthritis, diseases of the central nervous system and the congenital diseases known as "birth defects."

O'Connor said the foundation also would continue its war against polio until every American was protected by the Salk vaccine and there no longer were any polio victims to treat.

But he said the vaccine perfected by Dr. Jonas E. Salk after years of research by foundation-backed teams had brought total victory over polio in sight, leaving the vast 3,100-chapter foundation with the problem of either disbanding or expanding its horizons.

The virus diseases include the common cold and the various strains of influenza, which have killed millions. Diseases of the central nervous system include such cripplers as cerebral palsy, multiple sclerosis and myasthenia gravis, all of which already have smaller foundations concentrating on conquering them.

O'Connor said these, with arthritis, rheumatism and the congenital diseases, were picked by the foundation for its new work because they related to fields which polio researchers invaded in their fight to conquer infantile paralysis.

O'Connor said the foundation's new work would not "duplicate the work of other voluntary agencies."

But one of the agencies, the Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, which has been battling those diseases for 10 years, said it was "regrettable" that the polio foundation should have not seen fit to join forces with it "in order to utilize our medical and scientific resources to carry on the advances we have achieved to date and thus to present a unified front to the problems of arthritis."

House Unit Cuts Armed Forces Building Funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Appropriations Committee accused the armed services of waste and mismanagement Tuesday and ordered a 29 per cent slash in their requests for new military construction funds.

The committee took the action in sending to the House floor a bill carrying $1,218,815,000 to cover the costs of military bases and other defense construction this year. It said this was sufficient for all "clearly essential" projects.

It added that "the gravity of the present world situation which could result in a change in the direction of military appropriations funds" had forced the committee to defer many projects which were "not clearly essential under present circumstances."

In this connection, the committee assailed the services for their stop-and-go housing policy which it said was characterized by a lack of proper concern over long-range needs and by moves to erect "large" and "fancy" quarters for high-ranking officers.

The congressmen also accused the armed forces of closing some usable bases while building others. They said such wasteful duplication sometimes occurred because each branch of the service insisted on having its own facilities.

They said military planners developed new weapons systems without taking into account the facilities required to put them into operation and then rushed belatedly to congress with construction plans.

"In all too many instances," the committee said, the plans "constitute merely a dream."

The bill as approved by the committee was $511,838,000 below President Eisenhower's original request for $1,730,653,000. However, the 29 per cent cut was not quite as severe as it looked on the surface because the services already have some funds on hand.

Three-Year Trade Program Extension Approved By Senate

Attempts To Curb Ike's Power Fail

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate handed President Eisenhower a major victory Tuesday night by approving a three-year extension of the reciprocal trade program after beating down attempts to restrict his power to cut tariffs on foreign imports.

The roll call vote was 72 to 16 for the bill.

The action came after a bipartisan coalition of Democrats and Republicans defeated two protectionist moves to clamp sharp curbs on the President's power to overrule the tariff commission in granting tariff relief to domestic industry.

The bill would extend the 24-year old trade program under which the President can reduce tariffs on imports in return for similar action toward U.S. products by foreign nations.

Thirty-six Democrats and 36 Republicans voted in favor of the bill while 10 Republicans and 6 Democrats opposed it.

The bill now goes to a joint conference committee to hammer out differences between the Senate version and the House measure which provided for a five-year extension.

The Senate brushed aside the last major protectionist effort to curb the program when it defeated, 63 to 27, an amendment by Kerr. It would have invalidated any presidential veto of a Tariff Commission recommendation unless it was sustained within 90 days by a majority vote of Congress.

The move to kill the Kerr amendment was led by Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.), Senate GOP Leader William F. Knowland (Calif.), and chairman Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.) of the Senate Finance Committee. The finance committee approved the Kerr provision.

Twenty-seven Democrats and 36 Republicans voted to strike the Kerr proposal. Eighteen Democrats and nine Republicans voted to retain it. Johnson said the vote "exceeded even our expectations."

The Senate then voted 57 to 34 against a similar amendment which would have let stand a presidential rejection of a Tariff Commission recommendation unless a majority of both houses of Congress overruled him within 60 days.

Thirty-six Democrats and 21 Republicans voted against the amendment, offered by Sen. Frederick G. Payne (R-Maine). Eight Democrats and 26 Republicans voted for it.

House Passes Money Bills

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Tuesday approved money bills totaling $10,878,310,900 to operate independent government agencies and a variety of other projects during the current fiscal year.

By a voice vote, the House passed and sent to the Senate a $3,881,094,000 bill which included $2,605,401,000 to operate the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC). The rest of the money was earmarked for various other government projects. It trimmed a total of $94,470,000 from administration requests.

In a separate action, the House also approved a compromise money bill carrying $6,582,304,900 to operate other independent federal agencies.

The measure, drawn up by a House-Senate conference committee, now goes back to the Senate for final action. It provides funds for 19 independent offices for the year which began July 1.

The House passed a third bill authorizing an additional $414,912,000 for the AEC, including $386,679,000 for plant construction. The Senate quickly followed suit and sent the measure to the White House.

Move To Probe Adams Probers Brushed Aside

WASHINGTON (AP) — A GOP move to investigate the investigators of Sherman Adams reached the House Rules Committee Tuesday and appeared to be headed for a high back shelf.

Rep. Thomas B. Curtis (R-Mo) contends the House was brought into disrepute by the tactics of a subcommittee which inquired into Adams' relations with Bernard Goldfine, the gift-giving Boston textile millionaire.

Curtis proposed that a special committee be appointed to determine whether the subcommittee violated any House rules by permitting what he called public defamation of individuals on unsubstantiated hearsay testimony.

Rep. Howard W. Smith (D-Va), chairman of the Democratic-controlled Rules group, commented that Curtis was proposing very strange procedure.

"You're proposing here the creation of an investigating committee to investigate an investigating committee," Smith went on. "And if you ever start on that, the Lord only knows where you'll end."

The Curtis resolution is dead unless it is cleared by the Rules Committee. Every indication was that it would be shelved.

Another House group, an Armed Services subcommittee, is hearing a case involving the name of Adams, chief aide to President Eisenhower.

The first witness was Roswell M. Austin, a retired member of the Armed Services Board of Contract Appeals, who has said he thinks Adams intervened improperly last year in behalf of Raylaine Worsteds, Inc. of Manchester, N.H.

The firm, now defunct, succeeded last year in getting a rebate from the board.

Rep. William H. Bates (R-Mass) told newsmen a ruling by the comptroller general 15 years after Raylaine had first been turned down on its claim apparently opened the door to the rebate.

Bates said he is particularly interested in how the case was handled in the office of Comptroller General Joseph Campbell. The comptroller general is Congress' fiscal watchdog, charged with seeing to it that government financial matters are handled correctly.

The White House has said Adams relayed Raylaine inquiries to the contract board merely as a matter of routine. Austin has said he doesn't believe the board was influenced by Adams' interest.

Navy Base City Considers Ban On Tattooing

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Tattoo or not tattoo?

The City Council of this Navy base city solemnly considered this question Tuesday: Shall epidermal adornment be prohibited?

Said Municipal Judge Kenneth E. Sutherland, who proposed the ordinance against skin art: "The men who have been tattooed here will always remember with deep regret their visit to our city."

Countered Councilman D. Pat Ahern:

"What will our boys show foreign girls when they go abroad: We certainly don't want to deprive them of any advantages."

The Council decided to take no immediate action.

Two Yugo Soldiers Flee Into Austria

VIENNA (UPI)—Two Yugoslav soldiers fled into Austria and asked for asylum for fear they might be sent to the Middle East to fight for the United Arab Republic, police said Tuesday.

The soldiers, Vinko Schorz, 36, and Josip Holeschek, 26, entered Austria wearing full uniforms. They were not armed. They were taken into police custody Monday. According to the police, the men said they had heard rumors at their training camp in Maribor (Marburg) that Yugoslav soldiers would be sent to the Middle East.

(Yugoslav soldiers formed part of the United Nations Emergency Force sent to Suez in the fall of 1956 following the French, British and Israeli attack on Egypt.)

CIA Faces Quiz On Failure To Warn Of Iraq Rebellion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted Tuesday to summon officials of the hush-hush Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) for questioning as to why the Iraqi revolt caught this country flat footed.

The decision was reached as only 11 senators showed up to hear Undersecretary of State Christian A. Herter give the first of a series of daily closed-door briefings on the swiftly-changing picture in the Middle East.

Herter told the group the United States has no intention of moving troops into Iraq. According to Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.) Herter also said the administration is "still giving consideration" to the possibility of a summit meeting.

Fulbright complained that the special briefing told him nothing he "didn't know from the morning papers."

Fulbright later offered the motion to call CIA Director Allen W. Dulles and other officials of the agency for questioning.

The group likewise agreed to question members of the State Department's policy planning staff about the nature of the new Iraqi government and factors leading up to the surprise revolt.

Also approved was a resolution by Sen. John J. Sparkman (D-Ala.) to put both Houses of Congress on record as favoring a permanent United Nations police force. Sparkman hopes to get the resolution through before Congress adjourns.

Couple Held In Fatal Beating Of Little Girl

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—Airman 1-c Beauford Wynn, 24, and his wife, Rebecca, were held Tuesday for investigation of homicide in the death of a four-year-old girl who police said suffered a "horrible" beating.

The youngster, Bessie Colvin, died as surgeons at University Hospital desperately massaged her heart to restore circulation. Coroner Robert Evans ruled Bessie died from being beaten by a belt.

Prosecutor Samuel Devine said the couple told police the little girl had been given to them by "friends" in Alabama. However, he said neither could remember the names of the friends or where in Alabama they got the child.

Nasser Endorses Khrushchev Plan

CAIRO (UPI) — President Gamal Abdel Nasser Tuesday night declared the support of his United Arab Republic for the five-power summit talks on the Middle East as proposed by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

Nasser also told a cheering Cairo throng that he and Khrushchev discussed "action to stop aggression against the Arab world" in their emergency Moscow talks last week.

McClellan's Son, Three Others Die In Plane Crash

CONWAY, Ark. (UPI)—A twin-engine civilian aircraft crashed into a cornfield near Mayflower, Ark., 10 miles south of here Tuesday, killing four persons, including James H. McClellan, 31, the son of Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.)

The death of the senator's son Tuesday was the fourth tragedy in the Arkansas Democrat's sorrow-ridden life. Two other sons also were killed. The senator was divorced in 1921 from his first wife and his second wife died of spinal meningitis.

Sen. McClellan was reported in Washington to be en route to Little Rock.

Faulkner County Sheriff Joe Castleberry identified the other victims as Willace Denman Hill, 57, of Little Rock; Harold K. Gilbert, 33, Stuttgart, Ark., and J. R. Williams, 32, of Little Rock.

Hill was supervising inspector in charge of the civil aeronautics authority district safety office in Little Rock.

Castleberry said the plane, a Beechcraft Travelair, crashed, but did not burn, near a county road on the little farm not far from the Arkansas River.

McClellan, a prominent Little Rock attorney, was the third of the senator's three sons — all of whom were killed. The eldest son, Max, was killed in World War II and another son, John L. McClellan Jr., died in an auto crash while en route to re-burial services for Max.

Castleberry said Mrs. Ray Cargile, who lives on a bottomland farm near the Arkansas River, saw the plane go into a spin and crash. She was about a half-mile from the scene.

House Unit Approves Tax Break For Self-Employed

Legislation Would Defer Retirement Fund Tax Payments

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Ways & Means Committee gave its final approval Tuesday to a bill to grant a special tax break to self - employed persons trying to build retirement funds for their old age.

The measure, which won tentative approval last week, was okayed 18-7 despite strong Treasury Department opposition and charges that it ignored millions of other Americans who do not belong to pension systems.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills (D-Ark.) and six other committee members lined up against the bill, indicating it may face rough going on the House floor. Even if it passes the House, it stands a good chance of getting lost in the Senate in the adjournment rush. That would force sponsors to start all over again next year with a new bill.

The tax relief authorized by the bill would not go into effect until 1959. Thus, it would not apply to tax returns on this year's income which must be filed by next April.

The bill would make eligible for the tax relief all physicians and ministers and all self-employed persons covered by the social security system.

Under the bill, self - employed persons could postpone until age 70 payment of federal taxes on sums placed in retirement trust funds or endowment or annuity policies up to a ceiling of $2,500 a year or a lifetime limit of $50,000.

However, it would limit the maximum tax deferral for persons under 50 to 10 per cent of their income, meaning a person would have to make $25,000 to qualify for the maximum benefit. The income ceiling would be 20 per cent for those over 50 on the theory they have less time to provide for their old age.

Khrushchev Visit Would Pose Major Police Task

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN

United Press International

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) —If Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev came to the United Nations for a top-level meeting on the Middle East crisis, his visit would precipitate unprecedented police precautions.

Frank Begley, security chief at U.N., said that Khrushchev "would be handled like any leader of state" — like President Eisenhower, for example.

"If Khrushchev came to New York," said Begley, "We'd have federal and city police, U.S.S.R. agents and U.N. security police protecting him.

"It would be the same if other heads of state came. If Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Great Britain came we'd have the same set up, except we'd have Scotland Yard instead of U.S.S.R. agents. And with Gen. Charles de-Gaulle we'd have the French Surete."

When former President Harry S. Truman came to the U.N. at Flushing Meadows during the Korean war, the authorities parked his train at Belmont and some 1,400 police were strung along the line all the way to U.N. headquarters. A sub-machine gun was mounted on the roof of the U.N. building.

It was announced in the House of Commons Tuesday morning that Macmillan would accept a U. N. summit meeting if Khrushchev wanted to come to the Security Council for a meeting under U.N. auspices.

A U.N. meeting with Khrushchev, however, would not necessarily have to be held in New York. The council is empowered to meet anywhere, at any time. It could go to Geneva where security measures are usually very tight.

If Khrushchev came to New York, he would be tightly guarded every inch of the way. His every move at the U.N. would be put on TV minute by minute, hour by hour.

Begley said that right now at the U.N. there are three "controversial groups" — the Lebanese group and two Iraqi groups, those representing the new and the old regimes.

"We are feeling our way to see how this will jump," Begley explained.

Holmes, Father Of Travelogue, Dies At Age 88

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The father of the travelogue, Burton Holmes, died Tuesday at the age of 88.

Death came as the lean, bearded lecturer slept in a small hilltop home once occupied by matinee idol Francis X. Bushman.

Holmes has been in retirement since 1950 and in failing health for months.

It was nearly seven decades ago that his fascination for photography led to the presentation of the first travelogue in Chicago.

Holmes was nipped by the travel bug in 1886, when he accompanied his grandmother on a trip to Europe. Four years later, he went back with her, taking along a camera.

The Chicago Camera Club, of which he was secretary, was short of funds when he returned in 1890 and he agreed to try to raise funds by showing some of his travel pictures.

Before the showing, he was struck by a novel idea of presentation. Instead of just saying "This is the Milan Cathedral," he wrote a script and narrated the entire production. It was such a success the club hired a hall to present Holmes in his first travel lecture.

For more than a half century thereafter, Holmes combed the world in every conveyance imaginable—from rickshaw to airplane —accumulating material that never rewarded him with riches, but left him richly rewarded.

It was in 1897 that Holmes introduced the motion picture as a vehicle for illustrating travel talks. His first movie series was well received, even though the scenes lasted only 20 seconds each and involved such common adventures as "The Omaha Fire Department responding to an alarm" and "Neapolitans eating spaghetti."

The term "travelogue" was coined by the Burton Holmes organization in 1904 when he made his first appearance in London.

Butler Assured By Eisenhower

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John Marshall Butler (R-Md.) said Tuesday President Eisenhower has assured him a number of the Navy's non-combatant ships will be converted and repaired in private shipyards.

This, he said, will be done to compensate for the repair and conversion work on 43 combatant vessels in government yards. The vessels are destined for transfer from the fleet reserve to friendly nations.

Butler, in a recent letter to the President, asked that at least 50 per cent of the work on the 43 transfer ships be performed in private shipyards. The senator said such a directive would be in keeping with the administration's objective of reducing unfair government competition with private industry.

The President's reply, released by Butler, said the 43 transfer vessels are, in the main, combatant types, and added:

"I must agree with the Navy that their yards are technically better qualified and more experienced in conversion and repair of combatant ships; but even so, in assigning the conversion of these combatant vessels to Navy yards, the Navy will divert work on non-combatant ships to private shipyards.

"This diversion is expected to amount to more than 50 per cent of the work involved in converting the 43 ships. In fact, the Navy anticipates no significant increase in its yard force in the handling of this project."

The number of families with husband and wife working is about one in every four.

Charges Filed Against Stock Manipulator

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—The FBI filed fraud and conspiracy charges Tuesday against Earl Belle, 26-year-old stock manipulator who fled to South America when his 5-million dollar paper financial empire crumpled.

U.S. Attorney Hubert I. Teitelbaum branded the self-styled "voluntary exile" a fugitive along with his side-kick and chum of high school days, Mitchel D. Ostwind, 27.

Belle, who within two years after being graduated from the University of Pittsburgh with honors was the kingpin of an 11-company combine, and Ostwind formally were charged with the interstate transportation and fraudulent conversions of $62,500 worth of checks drawn on a now-closed New Jersey bank.

In addition, Belle was charged with transporting from New York City to Saltsburg, Pa., the small Western Pennsylvania town where the fantastic venture started, a $40,000 check obtained from a New York bank by fraud.

Belle and Ostwind last were reported living in an expensive apartment overlooking Rio de Janeiro's exclusive Copacabana Beach. Teitelbaum said he will seek their return, but admitted how was still problematical. Brazil has no extradition treaty with the U.S.

"They are now fugitives and if they were found any place where they are extraditable, they will be extradited," the government attorney said. "If they are in Brazil what the Brazilian government will do is something we will have to find out."

While the complaint filed Tuesday charged fraudulent conversion of only $102,500, a New York attorney investigating Belle's muddled affairs said he believed as much as 2-million dollars may have been milked from the companies involved in the manipulations.

Commission Sets Hearing On SRC Rezoning Request

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — The Anne Arundel County Planning and Zoning Commission will hold a hearing Aug. 7 on the State Roads Commission's application to locate a service area on the Baltimore-Washington Expressway.

Robert O. Bonnell, chairman of the SRC, has requested that a seven-acre tract be rezoned from agriculture to heavy commercial to permit erection of a gas station and restaurant.

The state would lease the facilities to private interests, and it is expected the over-all cost would exceed one million dollars although no such information was included in the rezoning request.

There are no roadside businesses along the expressway, or along other similar controlled - access roads in Maryland. A state-owned, privately-operated system of restaurants and filling stations has been in the planning stages at the SRC for some time.

Maryland officials visited turnpikes in neighboring states to formulate ideas for the type they wished to operate.

The one on the Baltimore-Washington pike would be located about one mile south of Dorsey Road. According to present plans, it would be established on the median strip between the dual lanes.

SRC officials also are understood to be planning assignment of a State Police emergency vehicle to the 50-mile stretch of highway to assist stranded motorists.

Filling station operators on feeder roads connecting with the expressway have voiced opposition to the state leasing plan, and State Sen. Louis N. Phipps (D-Anne Arundel) has been an outspoken critic of the move. He contends it would amount to the state entering a field that should be reserved to private enterprise.

Pigeon With Arrow In Back Still Flies

LOS ANGELES (AP)-Pity the painful plight of this punctured pigeon.

Even though an arrow has pierced his back, it was perched Tuesday on the roof of A. C. Kirkland's home. Occasionally it flew, unimpeded by the shaft, to a street gutter for a drink.

But mostly it just sat.

Kirkland says the fowl has been in this fix for two weeks.

"He looked a little weak at first, but he's flying around very well now."

GIs In Lebanon Fire Only In Self-Defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department said Tuesday that American forces operating in Lebanon have strict orders to fire only in their own defense.

A Pentagon spokesman at the daily news briefing made the statement in explaining how it happened that American Marines in the Beirut airport area got involved in a brief exchange of fire with Lebanese gendarmes.

The officer said that the self-defense order had not been applied by U.S. Navy carrier planes in their daily flights over Lebanon and along its coastline.

The officer said that in spite of the reported fact that at least 16 U.S. Navy planes had been hit, by unidentified small arms fire from the ground, there had been no retaliatory strafing by the American airmen.

Lame Bank Bandit Used Three Cars In Getaway

BALTIMORE (AP) — The limping bandit who robbed a Marlow Heights bank of $38,504 last week used a third car in his getaway, authorities said.

The bandit bought a used car in Aberdeen for about $250 and also purchased new tires for it. He switched license plates from a rented car he had brought from South Carolina, and made good his escape.

Authorities explained this development in the case Tuesday, adding that it was 24 hours after the used car purchase before they were aware of the gunman's move.

The lame bandit who robbed the First National Bank of Southern Maryland at Marlow Heights last week fled in the station wagon of the branch manager. He transferred to a car with South Carolina plates which he had rented July 1.

According to investigators, the fugitive abandoned that auto last Wednesday afternoon off U. S. 40 in Aberdeen and bougnt another vehicle.

A witness told of seeing a man in a gray suit, blue hat and wearing dark glasses leave the car. He was carrying an object believed to be a brief case full of stolen money.

However, the witness was unaware of the robbery that had occurred in Prince Georges County.

Boating Accident Claims Boy's Life

EASTON, Md. (AP) — Doctors worked throughout the night in an effort to save a 13-year-old boy injured in a boating accident but he died early Tuesday.

Police said Edward Hamilton Boyd III was thrown from a boat and his head struck a water ski ramp on Miles River Monday.

He was the son of Edward H. Boyd and Sheila Boyd of Rollyston Farm, near St. Michaels, and Easton.

Police said a companion riding with young Boyd, Jimmy Wilson 13, of St. Michaels, told them Edward leaned over to adjust the motor, and fell into the water as the boat hit the ski ramp.

The Wilson boy went to his rescue.

Edward's heart stopped and doctors got it beating again about 6 p.m. but he died at 4:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Cabbie Uses Taxi To Catch Assailant

BALTIMORE (AP) — A cabbie who was conked on the head used his taxi to corral one of his young assailants and pinned him against a fence until police arrived.

Harry Komins, 48, told police he picked up two teen-age fares Monday night and the boys directed him to drive to a certain street. There, Komins was hit on the head with a blunt object.

He regained consciousness to see one of the boys running away. Komins gave chase in his cab and managed to pin the 17-year-old against a fence in an alley until police came. The boy was treated at a hospital for stomach injuries and returned to police custody.

Bainbridge Suggested As Atom School Site

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee Tuesday turned down a Navy request for $1,368,000 to build a nuclear power school at the Great Lakes Naval Training Center near Chicago.

The committee suggested use of existing, inactive Naval facilities, specifically mentioning the Bainbridge, Md., Naval Training Center.

During consideration of the request, Rep. Charles Raper Jonas (R-NC) argued the school should be on the East Coast, where nuclear powered ships are being built. Navy spokesmen adovated a Midwest site.

Rainy Summer Season Helps Crops In State

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Many Maryland crops have been making excellent headway during this generously rainy summer season.

The Delaware - Maryland Crop Reporting Service here said Tuesday soybeans give indications of an outstanding crop coming up. Lima beans, cucumbers and sweet corns are producing good harvests.

A few watermelons have been picked and the Eastern Shore cantaloupe crop is about to start moving to market.

In the orchard belt of Western Maryland, Transparent and Lodi apple harvests are just about complete.

Picking of Jerseyland peaches is expected to start this week. Golden Jubilee and Redhaven peaches will go to market about Aug. 1.

Meanwhile, tobacco growers in Southern Maryland reported the crop so important to economy in that area is giving every indication there will be a good yield.

Grain harvesting has been retarded in the wet weather. Very little wheat was combined last week, and harvest in North-Central Maryland is about two weeks behind schedule. Only about 60 per cent of the wheat crop was in compared with a full harvest at this time last year.

Spring oats are about two to three weeks behind schedule. About 45 per cent of the second alfalfa cutting was completed west of the bay.

Smuggling Of Knife, Gun Into Jail Probed

BALTIMORE (AP)—An investigation continued Tuesday into the smuggling of a loaded pistol and a knife into a cell at City Jail.

Warden Charles Price said the weapons were found after a screen in the visitors' room was discovered cut.

He said the 4 by 5 inch L-shaped break apparently was made during the Friday afternoon visitor hours but it wasn't discovered until Saturday morning.

A search turned up the .38 pistol and the knife in a cell occupied by three prisoners awaiting trial.

Use Of Prison Labor At Courthouse Halted

HAGERSTOWN (AP)—Prisoners from the county jail won't be used for cleaning and maintenance work around the courthouse any more.

It's not a reflection on their work, but their honesty. Officials have reported money and other property missing from desks, cabinets and personal belongings of employes.

The Washington County Board of Commissioners Tuesday ordered a halt to the practice of using prison labor at the courthouse. Meanwhile, the sheriff is running lie detector tests on the men.

Prisoners may volunteer for outside labor and are paid 50 cents a day. Some have been used on county road jobs.

CHAPLIN WILL MARRY

ST. JEAN - CAP FERRAT, France (UPI) —Sydney Chaplin, actor son of comedian Charlie Chaplin, and French ballerina Noelle Adam announced Tuesday that they will be married soon. It was the third time the 34-year-old Chaplin has announced marriage plans. Previously, he had announced intentions of marrying British screen star Joan Collins and comedienne Judy Holliday.

Swift Indictment Of Bride Slaying Suspect Sought

DENTON, Md. (AP)—The Caroline County grand jury will meet in special session Thursday to consider a murder indictment against a 26-year-old ex-convict charged with strangling a young Eastern Shore bride to death.

James A. Wise, state's attorney, requested the special session and said he would seek swift indictment and trial of Clayton E. Breeding in the case.

Breeding was arrested Monday in Newark, Del., ending a manhunt which began three weeks ago when the body of Mrs. Ruth Ellen Cannon, 19-year-old expectant mother, was found in a wooded area near her Burrsville, Md. home.

Mrs. Cannon had been missing for two days before her body was found June 30.

Breeding was in custody of Maryland State Police at Easton, who were questioning him and planned to transfer him to a jail somewhere in the area. Sheriff William Andrew said he would not be held here because of what he described as an "explosive" situation over the case.

In proportion to population, there are five times as many automobiles in the United States as in Great Britain.

House Group Cuts Navy Academy Fund

WASHINGTON (AP)—Construction projects totaling $42,701,000 have been approved by the House Appropriations Committee for ten Army, Navy and Air Force installations in Maryland.

The U. S. Naval Academy would receive the largest amount, $12,200,000 for expansion of Bancroft Hall, the midshipman dormitory. The committee lopped $2,000,000 off the amount the Navy had requested.

Among other amounts approved was $1,187,000 for Ft. Detrick.

The average American uses about 15 per cent fewer white potatoes today than he did before World War II.

"Missing" Dynamite Caps Cause Jitters

HAGERSTOWN (AP)—A report of 850 highly sensitive dynamite caps missing from a road construction project aroused a case of jitters here Tuesday.

However, a man in charge of the blasting material for the Wright Construction Co., Benjamin Smith, calmed things down by revealing he had moved the dynamite to another project. He had neglected to notify the foremen on the building job for the U.S. Route 11 by-pass.

Law enforcement officers had broadcast warnings and were concerned that their own radio waves would touch off the dynamite caps. A company spokesman said there was that possibility.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Be Organized

On your trip nothing makes you look or feel better than the reflection of an air of confidence. The most simple way to achieve this is to be well organized.

When traveling by automobile, stop early enough in the late afternoon so you can do a few things for yourself. You won't be too exhausted and the whole group will be happier.

Take time out to have a leisurely bath (or swim for those who like that) and even a short nap before dinner.

After dining there'll be time to do your laundry, fix your nails and put up your hair (if this is a daily ritual with you) if you stopped earlier enough for your overnight stay.

Try to get at least seven hours of sleep each night — preferably more if you require it.

Take clothes that won't crush easily. These are easy to find now that fabrics are specially treated to resist mussing and wrinkles.

It's wise to take time now and then to rearrange the luggage, straighten the glove compartment and sweep out the car.

Leave your everyday thinking and doing at home. Set free your curiosity, understanding and enthusiasm. Take it easy. You'll be charmed with your travels—and charming.

Consultants Would Triple Medical Research Outlay

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of special consultants said recently that spending on medical research in this country should be tripled to about one billion dollars a year by 1970.

"The world is experiencing a scientific and technological revolution that will leave no aspect of human life untouched," they said. "Medical research, like other areas of science, will become broader in dimension and more penetrating in depth."

The consultants, working under assignment from the Health and Welfare Department, urged that the cost, with private idustry and philanthropy taking care of the rest.

Last year the federal government paid out approximately 90 million and private philanthropy accounted for 35 million. The total for the three was 311 million dollars.

The consultants' report said an effort of the magnitude they proposed would require increasing the number of physicians and other scientists engaged in medical research from 20,000 now to 45,000 by 1979.

As a major step in this direction they urged the construction of 14 to 20 new medical schools at a cost of from 500 million to one billion dollars.

The consultants who prepared the report included 10 prominent medical educators and industry research executives headed by Dr. Stanhope Bayne-Jones, former dean of the Yale University School of Medicine. The group was appointed by Marion Folsom, secretary of health, education and welfare, about a year ago to advise him on longterm needs in medical research and education.

"The expension of medical research and education required in the national interest will be costly and should not be restricted by lack of funds," the 117-page report said.

The report offered no specific recommendations on who would finance the construction of new medical schools, but asserted:

"Unless there is a marked change in social philosophy leading to private gifts or state appropriations on an unprecedented scale, large federal appropriations will be required."

Pretty Chemist Labors 10 Years To Find Safe Means Of Poison Ivy Immunization

By MARY PRIME
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—What is one man's poison ivy is Margaret Strauss' meat.

For 10 years, she worked on a safe and painless method of immunization against ivy poisoning. The result of her labors, a preparation called "Aqua Ivy," has just been made available commercially in tablet form.

The pretty research chemist is director of one of the nation's largest allergy laboratories at University Hospital, which is connected with New York University. She also is on the staff of the New York Post Graduate Medical College.

A native of Baltimore, she worked eight years in the chemical division of the Johns Hopkins Medical Department where she began her study of poison ivy.

Wherever she goes, Miss Strauss keeps her eye open for the plant.

Still Wears Gloves

"There's a wonderful specimen at the golf course where I play—stems are half an inch thick," she said.

Once she nearly was arrested for picking a "fine stand" of ivy, but she lectured the state trooper and was ordered to clear out all the leaves.

About 80 per cent of the population reacts to primary irritants such as poison ivy, which is not a true allergen, she said. Most of us can become sensitive with sufficient exposure, but Miss Strauss is one of the few with a natural immunity to the stuff. She has gathered bushels of it, ground the leaves in a meat grinder and baked them in an oven, but she always wears gloves "just in case."

"I've gotten to the stage where I think poison ivy is pretty. I want to plant some at home, so I'll always be able to get it," she said in an interview.

Helps Allergy Victims

As lab director, Miss Strauss also supervises the making of several hundred other extracts a year for testing patients with allergies.

"Our place looks more like a kitchen than a lab. We make every kind of fruit and vegetable extract available, plus extracts of meat, fish and cereal. We get food in by the crate," she said.

The lab's most important work is done with inhalents, such as pollen, dust, feathers and animal dander. Botanists bring in pollen, and all patients are asked to contribute vacuum cleaner dust.

"We try to get dust from every possible household. Of course, some snooty women insist they don't have dust in their homes," said Miss Strauss.

"Once we got a package of smelly deer skins from a doctor who was testing a hunter. Then there was the woman who was sensitive to mink and sent in her fur coat.

"I told the doctor I'd take the coat and relieve her of the allergy altogether."

Winner In 250 Contests Offers Some Inside Tips

By GARBER DAVIDSON

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Did you ever have a yen to win one of those jingle or slogan contests where the prize, say, is $25,000 or a trip to Paris?

Mrs. Nita Parks, a Pasadena, Calif., housewife, got the yen when she first moved to Muncie, Ind., in 1950 and was lonely and bored in the new town.

She started working contests. Since then she has won $40,000 has had winning entries in more than 250 contests.

Now she's willing to pass along a few inside tips.

"These contests are not won by luck," she warns at the outset, "but by really trying, studying, working and knowing what you are doing."

Strangely enough, she can't give you the winning combination for a limerick line that won her biggest prize, $25,000 in 1951 from a soap company.

She completed this limerick:

"My housekeeping now is a treat,
"I live at No. 1 Easy Street.
"I now work and play the Easy Street way,
"..... .....

She can't divulge that last line, because she had to sign an affidavit not to. This protects the company from having it appropriated and also, strangely, the limerick that the company paid $25,000 for has never been used in its advertising.

Mrs. Parks said the companies seldom use the winning slogan or jingles.

"The contests are strictly for advertising purposes to sell the company's products," she explained in an interview Saturday during a convention of contesters.

"The companies are not really interested in the slogans. They have advertising men to do that work."

As for winning, she gives these tips:

1. Follow the rules to the letter.
2. "Sincerity is perhaps the next thing. You should find out about the product and be sincere about it."
3. Originality. "Perhaps you can find a different word, one not usually associated with this product."
4. Aptness. You should be specific about what this product will do, not just about the general line of products in this field.
5. Be brief.
6. Slant. You should slant a slogan or jingle for a particular set of judges. The information as to what agency's judging board is to decide a contest is printed on the contest blank. The trick is to know if the particular judges in the contest prefer their slogans clever, or want them simple, or like puns, etc.

Mrs. Parks says there are various aids, such as contest books, magazines and even two correspondence courses on the subject. She has written a book, "How to Win a Fortune," published last year.

Asked for an example of a good slogan winner, she recited the following—not her own—submitted in a recent contest for a night-time safety driving slogan:

"Budget your speed after dark and live within your beams."

Water Being Conserved Through Use Of Meters

Water conservation through the use of meters instead of flat rates is revealed in the Water Department's annual report of consumption for the fiscal year 1957-58.

Water Commissioner G. Ray Light and Chief Clerk Andrew G. Bender released the report yesterday.

Water delivered to the city from the Lake Gordon dam totaled 4,262,310,000 gallons. This included 1,939,503,500 for industrials and 2,322,806,500 for domestic users.

The total figure represented better than 100,000,000 less water use than during the previous fiscal year of 1956-57, Bender said, adding that a major portion of the saving was effected through the removal of flat rates and placing these users on metered rates.

During 1956-57, total consumption was 4,379,300,000 gallons including 1,924,204,500 industrial and 2,455,095,500 domestic.

In 1956-57, Bender said there were 1,548 flat rate users. This has been reduced to 900 as of July 1, this year.

Father Dies In Fire Near Slanesville

The father of five children was burned to death late Saturday night in his one-room dwelling on West Virginia Route 45 near Slanesville.

West Virginia State Police at Romney, who investigated, said the fire victim was Lorenzo Roberson, 58.

Police said Roberson resided in the one-room frame dwelling by himself. It is believed he started a fire in his small coal stove and the dwelling caught fire.

Volunteer firemen from Paw Paw and Slanesville answered the call, but the building was destroyed when firemen arrived.

After the building had "cooled" off police found the remains of Roberson.

He was born near Augusta, W. Va., in Hampshire County and was unemployed at the time of his death.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Mary Roberson, who resides with a daughter in Martinsburg, W Va., and four other children.

The body was taken to the McKee Funeral Home in Augusta where services were conducted Monday. Interment was in the Augusta Cemetery.

Library Thanks County Board

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday received a letter of thanks from the board of directors of the Cumberland Free Public Library for improvements to the building.

Signed by James Alfred Avirett, president, the letter stated the installation of acoustic tile in the reading room has greatly improved the library facilities.

An invitation was received from Isaac T. Long, secretary of the Oldtown Sportsmen's Club, to attend the annual fishing rodeo sponsored by the club, the Cumberland Recreation Department and Cumberland Outdoor Club at the Battie Mixon Fishing Hole at Oldtown.

The board also signed an order suspending John Moravia, an orderly at Sylvan Retreat, until charges against him by Raymond Messmer, superintendent, can be heard by the Civil Service Commission. It is the first case to be filed since the Civil Service Commission was instituted in June 1957.

Suit Is Docketed Against Coal Firm

Suit was docketed in Allegany County Circuit Court yesterday by the Arrowhead Company, Inc., of Duluth, Minn., against the Howell Coal Company and Henry Leroy Davis, both of this city.

The declaration stated that the Arrowhead firm had contracted with the Howell Company to haul a large trailer from Polish Mountain to Cumberland on April 29, 1958.

It was stated that Davis, an employe or agent of the Howell company, hooked the tractor onto the trailer in a negligent manner and when he pulled out the trailer overturned.

It is alleged that the trailer was damaged and the driver's expenses due to the delay while the trailer was being repaired and other costs resulted through no fault of the plaintiff. Damages of $3,000 are being asked.

At least seven billion acres of the earth's surface is forested.

Local Labor To Work On Navy Project

The House Appropriations Committee yesterday in Washington recommended that $63,500,000 be provided for construction of a Naval Research Laboratory at Sugar Grove, W. Va., about 25 miles west of Harrisonburg, Va.

A number of local building trades will supply some labor for the gigantic project, it was learned.

The radio telescope facilities are planned to speed the electronic exploration of space, according to details released some weeks ago. The facility would be located on a 1,500-acre tract on Little Fork Creek in the foothills of the Shanandoah Mountain and border on George Washington National Forest. A Dayton, Va., company was awarded the contract for first structures on the site June 27.

Information about the radio research laboratory is secret, but the official announcement by the Navy said bids will be offered late this summer for the prime contractor. The Kennedy Company of Cohasset, Mass., will build the 60-foot antenna which will be the core of the radio telescope.

An Associated Press dispatch earlier said the observatory will also serve as a jamming-free military transmitter for bouncing signals off the planets to distant points around the earth.

Bids Are Requested For Local School

Sealed proposals will be received until August 15 at 10:30 a. m. by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners for the sale of the old Maryland Avenue School.

The building, which has been vacant for many years and is in a bad state of repair, was used for several years after World War II as a GI trade school. The deed to the property has been turned over to the county by the Board of Education.

City Officials Kept Busy By Budget Work

The Finance Department and others of the city are concentrating efforts toward preparation of proposed budgets for the 1958-59 fiscal year and Commissioner Lucile Roeder repeated yesterday she had asked commissioners to submit their budgets by August 1.

Conferences have been instituted by the department with city officials including Mayor J. Edwin Keech, City Attorney William R. Carscaden and City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson. Budgets from last year are being scanned and officials are familiarizing themselves with the procedure necessary to prepare the overall budget.

Other conferences are being held. Yesterday, for example, Mrs. Roeder and Water Commissioner G. Ray Light discussed in general terms the insurance setup on facilities at Lake Gordon.

Mrs. Roeder said she has also received bids from four companies on tax bill forms which will go out in September. Since the cost of the bill forms will be under $500, an order by the Mayor and Council is not necessary, it was pointed out.

The population of Sweden is about seven million.

Red Cross Groups Set Meetings

Two meetings are scheduled today and Thursday in the office of the Allegany County Chapter of American Red Cross in the Post Office Building.

The water safety committee and instructors will meet at 7:30 p. m. with the co-chairmen, Dr. John Gorman, and Eugene Mason.

They will discuss progress of this program in the county during this season.

On Thursday at 4 p. m. the chairmen and the treasurers of the various branches of the county chapter will meet.

The business session will be conducted by C. M. Sanner, county chairman, and Robert L. Ebert, county treasurer.

Harry Skelly Is Named New Roads Supervisor

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday approved the appointment of two County Roads Department officials who had been listed as qualified for their posts by the Civil Service Commission.

They are Harry S. Skelly, of LaVale, who will become supervisor of the Roads Department on August 1 to succeed J. Walker Chapman, who is retiring.

Joseph Price will become foreman of the Little Orleans-Oldtown section of the Roads Department. He will replace Roy Smith, who retires July 31 after many years with the department. Smith is the oldest department employe in point of service.

The appointment of Skelly was not unanimous as Commissioner Charles N. Wilkinson voted against approval stating that the post should have been filled by an engineer and the examination should have been open.

Skelly and Price were the only applicants for the promotional examination and were given the tests last Friday night to determine if they met qualifications of the Civil Service Commission.

Skelly has been the assistant supervisor for some years and with the department since 1947. Price, who worked on the Big Inch pipe line and Pennsylvania Turnpike projects, has also been with the department for some years.

Skelly is a veteran of the Air Force during World War II and was a technical sergeant. He will assume his new post August 1 with the classification of Grade 1.

An examination will be conducted by the Civil Service Commission to select a successor to Skelly as assistant supervisor.

LaVale Road Job Contract Is Awarded

The State Roads Commission has awarded the contract for Route 40 project in LaVale and has given another contractor notice to proceed on a phase of the industrial boulevard of the Cumberland Thruway.

G. Bates Chaires, district engineer for the SRC, said the S. T. Brotemarkle Construction Company of this city has been awarded the widening and resurfacing job on Route 40 in LaVale.

This project runs from the intersection of Route 40 with Route 36, (the Mt. Savage Road), to Long, a distance of nearly one mile. The cost will be $363,810, Chaires added.

In other action of the State Roads Commission, the Cumberland Contracting Company was given the notice to proceed on the phase of the industrial boulevard leading from the Route 51 bridge over Evitts reek and through the Mapleside section to Virginia and Laing Avenues.

The cost will be $779,305.56, Chaires noted. It covers 1.83 miles.

The district engineer also reported that the Central Pennsylvania Quarry, Stripping and Construction Company is blacktopping its project on the west slope of and top of Polish Mountain.

It is expected that this work will be completed by the end of the summer or by early fall.

Much road work is being continued this summer. Busy spots are at the Evitts Creek concrete, three-span bridge; Polish Mountain, and Route 36 from Route 40 2.956 miles through Corriganville, and on Route 40 between existing and the relocated Route 36.

Work in progress in Garrett County is as follows:

Grading, draining, widening, reing Route 219 from Gortner northerly to Oakland, 4.036 miles; Route 135 from Mountain Lake Park westerly to Oakland, 1.753 miles.

Grading, draining, wideing, relocating and resurfacing of Route 135 from Deer Park to Mountain Lake Park, 3.371 miles and Route 135, Swanton-Bloomington Road, fro mthe Allegany County line westerly 2.66 miles.

Building Permits Issued By City

The city building engineer has issued two permits.

BPO Elks Lodge 63 obtained a permit to construct a 46 by 9-foot adidtion to its home on South Centre Street. The brick structure will cost an estimated $800.

John H. Fossett of 5 Utah Avenue obtained a permit to construct a dwelling at 1111 Michigan Avenue. The building will have concrete block foundation, brick veneer walls, asphalt shingle roof and is estimated to cost $9,000.

County Board Approves Court Clerk Pay Raise

The salary of Robert Thomas, court reporter for Allegany County Circuit Court, yesterday was increased to $5,070 per year by the Board of Allegany County Commissioners.

He had been receiving $4,070 for his work in the court here and and additional $1,000 for similar work when the Garrett County Circuit Court was in session.

Approval of the salary raise was made on the recommendation of Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris. The letter of Judge Harris said that Thomas' salary is below that received by court reporters in the Second Judicial Circuit and for Baltimore City and other metropolitan areas. The Second Judicial Circuit pays its reporters $6,000 annually.

Judge Harris also pointed out that there are indications that the Circuit Court for Garrett County may employe a full-time court reporter in the near future.

The court reporter is appointed by the judges and the salary recommendations are made to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners which formally approves such requests. The law requires compliance with the judge's request.

After the board received a number of reports from J. Walker Chapman, county roads supervisor, on road requests, action was taken by the commissioners.

A request for the county commissioners to pay George J. Heinrich, Ford Avenue, Potomac Park, the sum of $300 for materials and work in repairing that roadway was rejected.

Chapman reported the road was not in the county system. The board also stated the work had not been authorized by the board and was the responsibility of Heinrich.

Chapman also reported that Poplar Street, Westernport, for which repairs had been asked, is not a county road. No work was authorized for this road.

Chapman also told the board that residents of the Woodland section near Midland have been installing concrete pipe in a ditch and they want the county to construct a catch basin to carry off the water.

Chapman said the catch basin would also drain water from the county road and would be an improvement at that point. He said the residents of Woodland are installing the concrete pipe at their own expense. The board authorized the installation of the catch basin.

The Bowling Green Fire Company's request for closing Walnut Street between the Fire Hall and McMullen Highway during the organization's festival the week of July 28 was granted.

Chapman said there are other exits and entrances to the area near the Fire Hall and the work the group does in fire protection is a worthy one. The county will furnish the barricades for the street closing.

Chapman also reported a request of last week concerning a drainage situation in the Barton area on the old Shaw farm should have gone to the State Roads Commission district office. The property in question is not near any county road, Chapman said.

City Receives Plans For Housing Project

The city has received site plans for the third low-rent housing project planned by the Cumberland Housing Authority, according to Mayor J. Edwin Keech.

Plans have been turned over to City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum.

The third project, to be constructed on a triangular plot bounded by Cresap Street, Oldtown Road and Thomas Street, will contain 80 units, according to James B. Raines, executive director of the Authority.

Nuzum said plans were prepared by S. Russ Minter, local architect.

Tuesday, August 5 at 2 p. m., a meeting will be held in Mayor Keech's office to discuss the new housing project and its relationship with "Line C"—the Industrial Boulevard—phase of the Cumberland Thruway project.

To be discussed are relocation of existing utilities and from the city standpoint, the abandoning of present sewers in the area. Some houses have already been razed in the area and others have been purchased and will be torn down, Nuzum said.

Representatives from the State Roads Commission will attend the meeting along with those from C&A Gas Company, C&P Telephone Company, Potomac Edison Company, Housing Authority, Engineering, Water and Street departments and the Mayor and Council.

Man Killed Instantly By Freight Train

A 45-year-old Terra Alta man who was killed instantly Sunday night when struck by a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad train east of the Hopemont crossing in Preston County, W. Va., was identified late Monday.

West Virginia State Police, who investigated, identified the victim as Delbert Likens of Terra Alta. Police said the man was married and had several children. His body is at the Fike-Watson Funeral Home in Terra Alta.

J. T. Dailey Jr., prosecuting attorney for Preston County, said Likens was killed when struck by Train No. 97 hauling 89 cars from Cumberland to St. Louis.

Dailey said the engineer stated he saw something that looked "like a keg of nails" on the tracks, but did not see it in time to stop the train.

After striking the object the train crew went back and found Likens' body.

Magistrates Handle 199 Motor Cases

A total of 199 motor vehicle cases were handled during the month of June in Cumberland's Trial Magistrate courts.

Magistrate Morris Baron and J. Milton Dick handed out fines totaling $3,177.60 for the motor vehicle violations. The court costs netted $208.15.

The magistrates also heard 59 civil cases and collected $84.50 in costs. Costs of the criminal cases during the month totaled $45.

Husbands Strive To Recoup Much Of Domestic Authority

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

American husbands, reputedly shorn of much of their domestic authority, seem to be trying to get it back.

And in many cases, the wives say they'd like for the men to reassume their old job as master of the house.

These tendencies — among couples of all faiths — were reported today by Roman Catholic leaders who have made intensive studies in the field.

"There's a trend for men to reassert their position of leadership," said the Rev. Kenneth J. Dolgan, church family-life director of Scranton, Pa.

"Year by year, more fathers are beginning to take the initiative as head of the home."

But it's a tough struggle for them to recoup, as the analysts see it, in view of how far U.S. husbands have gone in losing their traditional role of steering the family.

"They've lost it, that's obvious," said the Rev. Bertin Roll, of Pittsburgh, national director of the church's Christian Mothers Organization.

And the women, he added, have taken over many rightful functions of the men — often necessarily — and usually to their own disillusionment.

"Men have got so absorbed with success in their careers, they don't have time for the home," said Dr. A. H. Clemens, a noted sociologist and marriage counseling authority of Catholic University, Washington.

"They've passed the buck to their wives all down the line."

The upshot, he added, is what the social scientists all modern America's matriarchy — rule of women.

Both men and women, however, are frustrated and basically distressed by the situation, the church scholar said — a result of upsetting the natural order of the sexes as set by God.

The views were expressed in interviews this week at the National Catholic Family-Life Convention in Buffalo, N.Y.

Dr. Clemens said many women were reacting to the switched man-women pattern "with rank rebellion, by turning to drink, nagging and becoming hypercritical of their husbands and children."

Numerous factors were cited as causing the blurred lives of demarkation in male-female roles in the home, including World War II, when many women took jobs, with others since joining the country's labor ranks — now one-third female.

But a main, fundamental cause given was the intensified pursuit of money.

"Our society now equates success in terms of dollars," Dr. Clemens said. "This wasn't true years ago. Men were judged by over-all performance. Now, a fine father who is poor gets little acclaim. But a second-rate father who is a financial success gets society's pat on the back.

"The result is that men have become so preoccupied with career and business they've forgotten their basic job is the family. They've inflated their success at the office, and deflated their success at home."

Father Roll said women, by learning to drive cars, furthered the process. Men used to hold the wheel, he said, but now "women are scott free. They go where they please, and get into all sorts of things."

Conference To Halt Something Only He Would Start Sought By Khrushchev

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

The Anglo-American decision not to intervene in Iraq unless the new government there seeks to abrogate the country's oil contracts has greatly lessened the possibility of war in the Middle East.

It leaves Nikita Khrushchev asking for a conference to stop something that only he would start.

The background of Khrushchev's message proposing a top-level conference on the Middle East would have required the Allies, if they agreed, to admit that they had done something threatening world peace.

Their position is that if the Soviet Union wishes to make such charges, she can do so before the U.N. Security Council, a world authority set up for the very purpose of hearing them.

The logic of the Allied position is, indeed, a little tenuous. Britain and the United States acted outside the U.N., though within the limits of its charter, on the ground that there was no time.

Now they want to go back to the world organization, and Khrushchev says there is no time.

The Allies have it on their side, however, that physical events were actually rolling in the Middle East when they moved. Since then the waves of action have slowed, at least temporarily.

The Baghdad government has avowed its intention of keeping open the Western access to the oil.

There is a certain logic in the belief in some quarters that Egypt's Nasser realizes an East-West conflict in the Middle East would submerge him and his Arab internationalist movement. He also knows that, once in the area, the Soviet Union would never get out any more than she has out of Eastern Europe.

The position of the Hussein government in Jordan has been temporarily secured, and the Western powers have deterred any idea the King might have had of staking his small forces against the Baghdad army.

Turkey is reported to have been similarly restrained from a first reaction that she should move into Iraq in self-defense.

That leaves the Soviets to choose between very risky intervention and the appearance, for once, of being a paper tiger. The Allies realize fully that to put her in such a position is dangerous.

That is why they are now publicizing their realization that when Middle Eastern settlement time comes the Soviet Union will have to be in on it.

They want to ease the strain on the Kremlin at the same time they want to halt its exploitation of Arab nationalism.

But they won't want to let the Soviet Union appear before the world as the only peacemaker in the Middle East.

Army Releases Math Genius

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — A university professor said Monday night the Army granted a special discharge to a private whose mathematical genius the professor insisted the Army was misusing.

Dr. Carl C. Lindegren, director of biological research at Southern Illinois University, stirred up a controversy last fall with charges the talents of Pvt. Ernest Shult, his former student, were being wasted.

Following Lindegren's complaints, the Army transferred Shult, 25, from clerk-typist duties at Ft. Lee, Va., to the Army Chemical Center in Edgewood, Md.

Lindegren said Monday night he recently wrote Maj. Gen. Herbert M. Jones, adjutant general complaining Shult was still misplaced in the Army and was needed for more important research.

Shult telephoned Lindegren to report he will return to SIU in two weeks, the professor said.

Lindegren said Shult's release is "in the public interest." The professor plans to use Shult's talents in a series of experiments dealing with heredity and cancer.

"He is essential to the continued productivity of the laboratory," Lindegren declared.

Shult is a native of Fairbury, Ill.

Due Bill

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The artist who painted a portrait of former Wisconsin Gov. Walter Goodland more than 10 years ago is finally getting paid for it.

Goodland died after he commissioned Christian Abrahamson, Chicago artist, to do the painting. The canvas went into storage at the capitol here and over the years Abrahamson sought payment from the state which finally approved a $2,500 settlement.

The painting now will hang in the executive offices.

Two months before, burglars took $8,700 from a diner located just across the street from the station.

Lot Of New Faces Will Be In Congress No Matter What Happens In November

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP)—No matter what happens in the fall elections, a lot of new faces will be seen around Congress.

Already 6 senators and 31 representatives have said they have had it. And more may drop out voluntarily—or be wiped out in the remaining 25 state primaries.

What's the matter, gentlemen, ladies? Has Congress lost its appeal?

Well, no. As so frequently is true, the figures are a mite deceiving. Six representatives, for instance, who will not run for re-election in the House, still hope to be around Congress next January as senators.

One senator, William F. Knowland (R), wants to stay in the thick of politics, as governor of California. It's a historical truth that a governor has a much better chance to become president than a senator has.

One representative, James P. Devereux (R), hopes to be governor of Maryland. Another, Pat Hillings (R), would like to be California's attorney general. Still another, Henry J. Latham (R-NY) may wind up as a federal judge.

But a sizable group simply is dropping out. Roll Call, a newspaper published on Capitol Hill, has made a study of congressional casualty lists, and says this is the largest in recent years.

Certainly the Senate presents an unusual and, for the Republicans, bleak picture. All six who are retiring are Republicans, each has served at least two terms and so has worked his way up the Senate's seniority ladder.

Some of the congressmen who are dropping out:

Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-NJ) a senator for 14 years. Only 11 senators have served longer.

Rep. Thomas A. Jenkins (R-Ohio), in Congress since March 4, 1925.

Rep. Charles A. Wolverton (R-NJ), here since March 4, 1927, and Rep. Richard Wigglesworth (R-Mass), here since Nov. 6, 1928.

Why are they quitting? A number of reasons: old age; health that's not too good; opposition that's far too good. Sens. Smith and Edward Martin (R-Pa) are 78; Reps. Jenkins and Wolverton are 77.

One fact that makes retirement easier to take is a congressional pension system that, for those who have been here more than 30 years, may pay out as much as $18,000 annually.

But lest anyone get the idea Congress really has lost its allure, there is a description, read into the record by Rep. Robert L. F. Sikes (D-Fla), of a strange disease known as "kongressionitis."

"As the disease becomes chronic, graver symptoms appear: Delusions of grandeur, the feeling that his words will change the world and that all who contradict him are persecutors; highly contagious; treatment consists of isolation, silence," he said.

"Cures are unfortunately only temporary and recidivation"—that's a relapse—"is always to be feared."

Gen. Winfield Scott was the last of the presidential candidates nominated by the Whig party. He was nominated in the election of 1852.

Cook Who Admitted Frauds Released

BALTIMORE (AP)—A 32-year-old cook who admitted a series of 22 frauds on Red Cross offices in 1953 and 1954 was granted a suspended sentence Monday by Federal Judge R. Dorsey Watkins.

Elbert Cecil Joseph, a native of Florida, admitted he had obtained temporary aid on the basis of false statements that he was due an Air Force disability pension which was overdue.

Actually, Joseph had served only briefly in the Navy by improper enlistment at 15 and was discharged when his age was revealed.

The indictment against Joseph was returned by a federal grand jury in New York and transferred to Baltimore because the defendant now lives here. Two of the Red Cross frauds occurred in Maryland, eight in New York State, and others in states from Connecticut to Texas.

W.Va. Colleges Seek Policy On Admissions

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Another step was taken Tuesday toward setting up a policy on selective admission to the nine state colleges under the supervision of the State Board of Education.

The board, in the final session of a two-day mid-summer meeting, heard a report on the progress of a college presidents' committee which will make a definite recommendation in September.

Concord College President Virgil Stewart told the board that his committee needed additional information in three specific fields before it could submit that recommendation.

The committee chairman said the information would be gathered in the following areas:

—Securing a West Virginia norm on school and college ability tests given all 11th grade public school students.

—Setting up a standard transcript form for transmitting credits.

—A uniform method of establishing class rank.

The board also heard a recommendation from the Council of College and University Presidents that the board ask the next session of the Legislature to run College audits over to the State Tax Department.

The council also asked for an opinion by the attorney general on the exemption of fees on scholarships given by each school.

The colleges are permitted to give scholarships amounting to 5 per cent of their enrollment. The question arose as to whether the awarding institution was to have the discretion of giving tuition to some recipients and tuition and fees to others.

In another action, the board referred to the Council of Presidents for its recommendation a proposal to set up a permanent record file on graduates of their schools.

The American Institute of Architects will prepare and submit a standard form for use of the college heads when they first request consideration of new buildings or major renovations.

This form will include a survey of needs, sketches showing building plans and elevations, preliminary building details and an accurate estimate of cost.

The board also allotted functions to the colleges; approved plans and specifications for construction of athletic field bleachers and dressing room facilities at Shepherd College; approved use of facilities at West Virginia State College for a graduate center of West Virginia University, and heard a report by Buildings and Maintenance Supervisor Georte T. West on recommendations by the State Fire Marshal.

New College Building Slated At Fairmont

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The State Board of Education accepted Tuesday an overall $276,614 net bid for construction of a student union building at Fairmont State College and rejected a $1,784,796 low bid for construction of a health and physical education building at Marshall College.

The board also tentatively approved at the close of a two-day meeting $119,000 worth of additional work for a women's dormitory now under construction at West Liberty State College.

George D. Shaw and Sons, Fairmont, submitted a low bid of $219,380 for construction of the student union building. Four other firms submitted bids totaling $57,234 for plumbing, heating and ventilating, electrical work and and kitchen equipment.

A low bid by Kenhill Construction Co., Charleston for construction of the Marshall College physical education building was turned down because it was $545,223 more than the $1,239,573 available for the work, the board said. Plans and specifications will be revised and submitted to the board at its next meeting.

The additional work at West Liberty will be handled by general contractor Grubb Construction Co., Wheeling, who bid $575,000 for the job last month subject to the approval of the federal Housing and Home Finance Agency. The college has $820,000 available for the work.

Some Tax Returns Are Due July 31

Employers are reminded that several types of tax returns are due by July 31, Irving Machiz, acting director of the Internal Revenue for the Baltimore District, announced yesterday.

Mr. Machiz said returns are due for the months of April, May and June from the following employers:

Employers who file quarterly federal tax returns, Form 941. This combined return is for reporting withholding and social Security taxes on employes for the second quarter of 1958.

Employers who have domestic servants such as cooks, janitors, maids, chauffeurs and other workers who perform services of a household nature, are subject to Social Security taxes (Form 942) if $50 or more was paid in wages in the second quarter of 1958.

Returns from persons liable for quarterly excise tax (Form 720) are due July 31. Excise taxes include taxes on facilities and services, manufacturing excise taxes and taxes on products and commodities.

Where the withholding, Social Security and excise taxes exceed $100 a month, a depositary receipt system must be used.

Mr. Machiz added a public law was enacted last February to insure that employers comply with the law after they have been notified in person if they failed to file a proper return.

Persons who after this notification fail to obey the provision are, unless they have a legitimate reason, guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction are subject to a fine of $5,000, one year imprisonment, or both.

Teen-agers Face Trial Today

Two teen-agers are scheduled for trial at 10 a. m. today in Allegany County Circuit Court on burglary charges preferred against them in criminal informations filed in court last Friday.

One of the informations concerns Jackie Wayne Poffenberger, 17, of Polish Mountain, charged with breaking into the dwelling of Merle Hinkle on Polish Mountain June 26. In the two-count information, Poffenberger is accused of having stolen a rifle valued at $79.95, a pistol and holster worth $47.95, a German dagger and scabbard valued at $2.50, ammunition worth $5, and a $20 bill. Total value of the loot was set at $155.40.

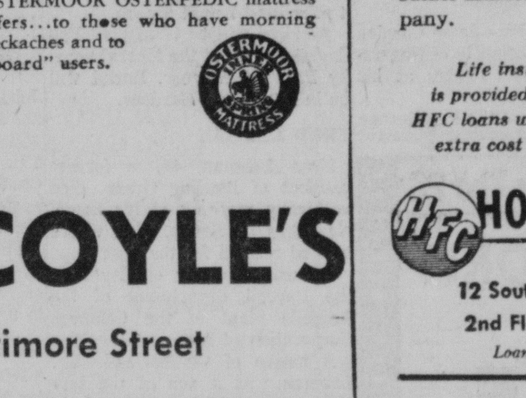

Named in the other information is Phillip L. Miller, 18, of Springfield, W. Va., accused of breaking into a storeroom of Brock's Scrap and Salvage Company in South Cumberland June 23 and stealing $270, a $20 pistol and cartridges worth $1.

George R. Hughes Jr. has been court-appointed as defense attorney for the two boys.

Canada Refinances Its Indebtedness

From the backs of desk drawers, from safety deposit boxes in banks and from less conventional hiding places, Canadians are taking out their Victory Bonds for conversion into the new government issues. The sum involved is vast—$6.4 billion — and represents 40 per cent of Canada's national debt. If the U. S. engaged in similar refinancing, $125 billion in bonds would be called in for reconversion into new issues.

In the normal course, these Canadian bonds would be maturing from 1959 to 1966. The proximity of these maturity dates, and the immense amount involved, had had a disturbing effect on the Canadian bond market in general.

Provincial governments, municipalities and corporations, wishing to float bond issues for important public works and industrial expansion, have found the market sluggish. Investors wanted to know what reconversion terms the government would offer on victory bonds before they committed themselves to buying new bonds.

Now investors know the conversion terms and they are regarded as attractive. It is expected that when the conversion is completed two weeks hence there will be an upsurge of long-term confidence. This is good news because the state of the Canadian economy has a direct bearing on that of the U. S.

These Days

They Don't Want To Know

Swifter and more general means of communications do not necessarily mean better and more complete understanding. One would have imagined that that would always have been recognized, for otherwise how can it be explained that those who live under one roof, husband and wife, father and son, mother and sister, fail to understand each other; in fact, often grow apart as the years pass?

Despite all the effort that has been put into achieving a more effective exchange of views between the United States and Soviet Russia, very little progress has been made. I quote a paragraph from "Izvestia," the official government newspaper of Soviet Russia, as an example of total misunderstanding:

"The President's explanation . . . exaggerates the role of the United States in the development of historical events. This has obviously not been done without purpose, but to justify the current rearmament of the United States and those military measures which it is taking in all parts of the world on the pretext of insuring peace.

"This wrong idea about the exceptional role of the United States in the shaping of world events, which attempts to ignore the interest of other states, is used as the basis for the U.S. President's reply. For instance, the stubborn raising by the President of the question of the social systems in the European people's democracies, and even in the Soviet Union, is dictated precisely by such an idea. The time has come to realize that the question of the existence of socialist countries was decided by history long ago, and is not 'subject' to the American monopolies, which, as consolation, still appear to consider themselves all-powerful . . ."

The very language of this paragraph is confusing to an American.

"On the pretext of insuring peace": after all, since 1917, whether we have been right or wrong, we have expended the wealth of our country, sacrificed our sons, borne the burden of taxes and debt, in the hope of achieving world peace. If Woodrow Wilson was wrong in establishing the League of Nations, at any rate, whatever he did was to achieve peace.

Similarly, the United States went into World War II in partnership with Soviet Russia for the cause of peace and human rights. In this cause, the United States gave Soviet Russia $11,000,000,000 in goods and funds with the object of assisting Russia to establish a modern industrial plant.

"People's democracies": this phrase, we Americans cannot understand. Certainly after what happened in Hungary, Americans must ask, what have the people to do with it? And how can it be a democracy when it is a dictatorship by a political oligarchy instituted by the conquering nation?

Nevertheless the term, "people's democracy," is employed by Soviet Russia to describe a satellite country, that is, one that has been conquered but has not been completely absorbed by the Soviet Union. Thus, in the organization of a universal state, Soviet Russia employs an intermediate political form, the satellite, which while giving the appearance of independence, actually is not independent in any respect.

"American monopolies:" this term is employed by Communists to describe the American system of private enterprise. It assumes that the means of production, distribution and exchange in this country is owned by "trusts" which enslave the people by a price system which keeps them in poverty.

Earl Browder, formerly leader of the American Communist Party, has written a book, "Marx and America," which has just been published by Duell, Sloan and Pearce, in which he says:

"Marx clearly recognized America's exceptional position, demonstrated by its deviation from his doctrine of impoverishment or 'pauperism' as the 'absolute general law of capitalist accumulation.' This exceptional position must have had exceptional causes . . ."

Another phrase they use is "U.S. ruling circles." Who rules in the United States? The Russians, out of their experience with Czarist autocracy and Communist dictatorship, seek a ruling class here. They seek a counterpart of their own Communist hierarchy. The fact that we live by difference and controversy, by debate and discussion, by a two party system of majority and minority, is altogether foreign to them.

At one time, the Communists made a great to-do about Wall Street which became for them a symbol of a dominant ruling class. There are financial firms that employ fixers in Washington, but not one such fixer possesses the power or influence, let us say, of Walter Reuther of the AFL-CIO.

Italian Plan For Developing Near East May Be Way Out Of Lebanon Crisis

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—Just one year ago, Dr. Giuseppe Pella, foreign minister of Italy, came to Washington to give John Foster Dulles a plan for the Near East. Dulles said no. If it had been adopted we would not be in the Near Eastern mess we are in today.

Dr. Pella foresaw that Nasserism would sweep all the Near East, to be followed by Communism, if the West did not help conquer the poverty, the filth, the dusty, disease-swept alleys, the contrasts between bejeweled kings and ragged fellahs in the Near East. He saw what Nasser had done in dividing up the irrigated land of Egypt, once dominated by only 27 families. He saw how the new Syria had divided up the land from the old aristocracy. Both Syria and Egypt, incidentally, had followed the land reform law of little Israel which they hate, but which nevertheless helped make Nasser popular with the masses.

So the Italian foreign minister proposed that a fund for the development of under-developed areas be created from the Marshall Plan loans which west European nations were then due to repay the U. S. A. He proposed that the American repayments be matched by payments from European nations, and the money be spent for irrigation on the River Jordan, on the Nile, the Tigris, the Euphrates and elsewhere, to resettle Palestinian refugees and generally improve the economic-social condition of the Near East.

This, essentially, was the plan Harry Truman had been working on when he left the White House.

"The solution for the Near East," he once told me, "is not arms, but dams and more electric power and more wheat. This area used to hold 60,000,000 people in the days of the Greeks and Romans. Now it holds 25,000,000 because the Mongols knocked out the irrigation works and because these people have been too busy figthing against each other.

"We have got to teach the Arabs that they need Jewish know-how and that they all need each other. It's not easy, but with patience, leadership and a big public works program it can be done."

The U. S. A. Needs A Friend

Amintore Fanfani, bouncing, vivacious new premier of Italy, is a man who believes in backing up his friends. He also believes in taking good ideas from friends and giving good ideas to friends.

When he attended the Chicago and San Francisco presidential nomination conventions in 1956, he took back some American ideas on political organization which helped him bolster the middle-of-the-road Christian Democratic Party.

When the United States was having its old friends turn a cold shoulder on U. S. Marines in Lebanon last week, when Japan publicly disapproved, West Germany grumbled, Belgium frowned and Austria threatened to shoot down U. S. transports, Premier Fanfani arose in the Italian Parliament and said:

"We approve entirely the initiatives taken in Lebanon and Jordan by our allies in the interest of peace. It is also with that conviction that we have granted permission to U. S. forces to use two of our airfields as fueling points for planes transferring troops."

Premier Fanfani stood up and made this speech despite the fact that Italy has the biggest Communist Party in the world outside Russia, and despite the fact that he faced in a few minutes a vote of confidence — which he finally won by a slim eight votes.

In view of this, Fanfani is in an excellent position to renew the Pella Plan for the peaceful development of the Near East.

The United States has got itself in a much worse box on the shores of Lebanon than the American people realize. We can't get out without loss of face. Yet we can't stay on without being increasingly hated in the Near East. A friendly third party like Premier Fanfani could lift the Lebanon controversy to a higher, more important level of peace and reconstruction, not guns and intervention, as a way out.

Ace-In-Hole Adlai

One political ace-in-the-hole Eisenhower has up his sleeve, if he wants to use him, is Adlai Stevenson, whom fate has put right now in Russia. Stevenson, a skilled negotiator, could be drafted as a trouble-shooter to talk to Khrushchev about a summit conference and the Near East, immediately.

Hitherto, Eisenhower has turned the cold shoulder on Truman; and up until this year, ignored Stevenson. However, Franklin Roosevelt in wartime sent Wendell Willkie, the Republican presidential candidate, on a special war mission to Moscow.

FDR also invited Alf Landon, who ran against him in 1936, to serve in his wartime cabinet, and in the end appointed Col. Frank Knox, who ran for vice president, as Secretary of the Navy, with Henry L. Stimson, who had served in the Taft and Hoover cabinets, as his Secretary of War.

The Democrats have been among Ike's staunchest supporters in the present Near East crisis.

"At times like this it is incumbent upon all of us to forget politics and close ranks in the cause of our own national security and the collective security of the free world," said Speaker Sam Rayburn, at the secret White House meeting last week.

Sen. Lyndon Johnson, who could not be at the meeting because of his mother's illness, later told friends: "It doesn't make any differences what we think of Eisenhower. It doesn't do any good to call him names. The country's in a very serious situation and we've got to stick by him."

Adlai Stevenson is an able negotiator who served during the war in the State Department. With the country in a serious crisis, a good president uses good men regardless of politics.

Is Soviet Russia Really Ready For A Showdown?

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The crisis in the world today turns on an age-old and relatively simple issue — whether one side is really ready for a showdown with the other.

For, despite all the Moscow propaganda and its call for a "Summit" conference, the basic facts are clear enough. Those facts convict the Soviet government of subverting the weak governments in the Middle East and of instigating rebellion and then hypocritically denouncing the western powers for coming to the aid of constituted governments.

The hypocrisy is all the more brazen since not so long ago the Soviets were defending their own armed intervention in Hungary on the ground that the existing government in Budapest had requested help.

The letter from Khrushchev urging the government of Britain, France, the United States and India to participate, along with Soviet Russia, in a high-level conference is couched in words of bold distortion in complete disregard of previously established facts.

For obviously if any international conference of heads of government were needed quickly, it could be held — as is being proposed by the British government — in New York City. Already in existence there are the buildings and facilities of the United Nations, which has a Security Council and a General Assembly designed to take up the very problems which Khrushchev now argues almost hysterically should be the subject of formal discussions. Hasn't the United Nations been trying to do that for the last few days through the representatives of the same governments, and isn't the U.N. still striving to accomplish that purpose? Except for the Soviet veto in the Security Council, the U.N. would have been further along now in its efforts to find a peaceful solution.

The Khrushchev note, despite its phrases of braggadocio and "rocket rattling," together with the Communist propaganda accusing America and Britain of "unprovoked aggression" are merely a cover-up for a state of fear inside the Kremlin that perhaps, after all, the hour of showdown is really approaching.

For the Soviet regime doesn't want a war now — it would mean uprisings among the captive peoples in eastern Europe as well as inside the Soviet Union itself. A war does not always consolidate an internal situation on the basis of national patriotism, as was proved in 1917 by the breakaway of the Bolsheviks in the midst of World War I.

It is questionable indeed whether either side would venture now to use nuclear weapons if there is a war. There would probably be a voluntary taboo on them as happened with the self-imposed ban on poison gas in previous wars.

So it's the threat of any war at this time and the fact that the West really may have made up its mind to take now the risks involved to prevent a big war which makes the Moscow regime so worried today. Its latest note betrays anxiety that is genuine. It is not a note based on confidence, but on fear.

Inside the West, on the other hand, a remarkable solidarity exists. There is, of course, a deep-seated dislike of war itself, and here and there is heard some petty partisan sniping. But most people see the difference between craven submission and the use of force that becomes inevitable as the world observes the Soviet Union unscrupulously and clandestinely undermining government after government and then piously denying what it has done.

The question, therefore, is whether the big decision will come while the western alliance is still intact or whether a big war will have to be fought when some of the western countries themselves have also been subverted from within. Winston Churchill in his memoirs published in 1948 gives a soul-searching review of what happened in the 1930s. He writes critically of the policy of six years of "placatory appeasement" and of the "catalogue of surrenders" as having contributed a "line of milestones to disaster." Noting that the British and French had strategic opportunities to fight when the situation was militarily favorable to them, he says they finally found themselves fighting "at the worst possible moment and on the least satisfactory ground." He adds:

"Still, if you will not fight for the right when you can easily win without bloodshed; if you will not fight when your victory will be sure and not too costly; you may come to the moment when you will have to fight with all the odds against you and only a prevarious chance of survival.

"There may even be a worse case. You may have to fight when there is no hope of victory, because it is better to perish than live as slaves."

The Soviets are at geographical disadvantage in trying to help Nasser and his allies militarily in the Middle East. A large-scale military operation by the West now can avert a big war later on. The gobbledygook of the day calls for U.N. debate and some temporary "solution" involving surrender to expediency. The vague talk about "alternatives" and working out something by "negotiation" has a familiar but tragic sound now. For there is only one issue — whether Soviet imperialism is to be crushed once and for all in the Middle East even at the risk of war or whether a "compromise" and and some more so-called guarantees and pledges that are not worth the paper they are written on shall be accepted from the Soviet-controlled regimes in the Middle East which are responsible for the present dilemma.

If the leaders of the West are farsighted, they will face the immediate situation firmly and resolutely and without weakening. If they weaken now — and pay heed to the same type of peace-at-any-price propaganda which fooled England under the Baldwin and Chamberlain ministries — then World War III will became a certainty in the not-far-distant future after the Soviets have so undermined the West as to make possible the success, not necessarily of a nuclear attack by them but of a conventional war across western Europe. It's later than the exponents of appeasement think it is.

Baering Down On The News

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

How do some poor diluted fools figure only one person is guilty in the noble art of briberation?

Both the briberine and the briberoo are equally contagious when playing footsies with itchy toes.

The Nine Old Nodders on the Supreme Bench see it my way if not over my shoulder.

Samuel's sons were guilty of it in 1112 B.C. and it is forbidden in Deut. XVI. 19. England banished its Chief Justice of the Common Pleas way back in 1288.

Case of Cooper versus Slade in 1858 payment of traveling expenses was held to be bribery. And those were the days when salesmen drove up on foot.

In the case of Delilah versus Samson the strong boy got the versus of it. The briberette and the briberine went fifty-fifty while Samson lost out on his twenty-twenty.

E pluribus bribums is a wall-safe motto for neat firms with large keyholes. Any man will accept a retainer, a freshener or a fee. You can tag it an honorarium, a reminder or escalator expenses.

By any other name a rose would smell as sweet. And there are 1,162 varieties.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

Anaheim comes up on the rim of the highway about 25 miles south of Los Angeles. There are the customary groups of terraced bungalows and, off to the right, a medieval castle thrusts its gray turrets above the pepper trees. The castle is the hallmark of a place called Disneyland.

In three years, Disneyland has become the most fabulous playland in the world. It is owned by Mr. Walter Disney, a man who, while others were inventing a better mousetrap, invented a better mouse. He built this palatial playland on 60 acres and he has done a handsome job.

It is too good for children. Although 2,500,000 youngsters have roamed its streets, 8,700,000 adults have been awed by its wonders. Disneyland is divided into five main areas—Frontierland, Adventureland, Tomorrowland, Fantasyland and Main Street U.S.A.—and each requires about a half day to see. Disneyland has helicopter service.

There is a hotel and 18 restaurants. There is a place for babies and one for parking the dog. There are old time railroads which run through cactus country, where almost real rattlesnakes abound and boulders teeter on bluffs over the train. There is a modernistic streamliner and a woodburner which runs through a diorama of the Grand Canyon.

Gayle and I managed to see a small part of Disneyland in one afternoon. We found ourselves on a street straight out of 1880, with old time saloons, blacksmith shops, horse drawn trolley cars, stage coaches and a real mule train.

We walked up the street. I kept muttering: "If your grandpa could see this." We came upon a big square where a band of uniformed men played march tunes. To the left was Adventureland. We took a boat ride up the wild Amazon. Along the banks were realistic zebras, whose tails wagged and their ears flapped—although none of these are living animals—and bull elephants, never before seen on the Amazon, trumpeted at our boat. Alligators snapped their suitcase mouths and our pilot had to draw a gun and fire blanks to keep them subdued. Hippoes bathed placidly on our course and giraffes nibbled the tops of palm trees.

We floated under a real waterfall, and traversed little rapids. Later, we sailed on a real 3-master named Columbia. There is a choice between the old stern-paddle steamer Mark Twain or the Columbia. We picked the latter and, with a few hundred other tourists, sailed up and down a winding river and saw Indian villages, war canoes and, far off, a real stagecoach rocking over the hills.

After awhile, it became difficult to tell which was real and which was simulated. The stagecoach is real. So is the big ship. The Indian villages were not, although some of the Indians waved as the ship went by. A settler's cabin has been in flames for two years. He was done in by Indians and his body lays on the front lawn.

We took a ride in a cable car which runs high above Disneyland. Below we could see children in small cars rolling over hill and dale on tiny highways; we saw mothers and fathers spinning in huge colored teacups in the Alice-in-Wonderland section.

In the one afternoon, we skimmed the top of Disneyland, and we will have to go back there again. And perhaps again. It is ultra clean. I did not see a gum wrapper in all of the streets we walked. It is refreshing and new and the rides are modestly priced. The most expensive is 50 cents. No liquor or beer is permitted on the premises..

It has been a long climb for Disney. When he arrived in Hollywood, 35 years ago, his only assets were $40 and a sensible brother named Roy. Now, at the age of 56, he has millions of dollars, monopolizes the distribution of Academy Awards, owns animated mice, feature motion pictures, Disneyland, (which costs $23,000,000 so far) and a beautiful home in Holmby Hills.

What Causes Hardening Of The Arteries?

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The prevention of arteriosclerosis will come after the cause of this condition is definitely established. When that happy day dawns, life should be prolonged another decade or two. In addition, we will know how to avoid heart attacks, strokes, certain types of circulatory disorders of the legs, kidney disease, and high blood pressure.

We are reasonably certain that hardening of the arteries is a disease and not an unavoidable part of the aging process. Fat in the diet is regarded as the No. 1 troublemaker at the moment. This is based on laboratory research and the high incidence of coronary deaths in countries where the amount of fat in the diet is high.

The type of fat rather than the quantity is what counts most. Animal fats are implicated but their bad effects can be nullified with vegetable fats. As a result, many physicians are recommending liquid vegetable oils such as cottonseed, soybean, and corn oils for patients with arteriosclerosis or high levels of fatty substances such as cholesterol) in the blood. But this advice is subject to change because the evidence is circumstantial.

Physicians are exploring other possible origins of hardening of the arteries, such as a defect in the clotting mechanism. The blood clots faster, for example, during periods of stress. Lack of physical activity is another factor. Heredity enters the picture because some families have more arteriosclerosis than others.

The glandular make-up of the Women, before the menopause, have less arteriosclerosis than men of a comparable age. Female sex hormones reverse the arteriosclerosis process in male laboratory animals.

The other constituents of food must not be overlooked. Disturbances of protein and carbohydrate metabolism may be the villains and by the time the American Heart association meets this fall, the fat theory may be passe.

TURN OVER

L. G. writes: The doctor says that lying on my right side constricts certain muscles in the shoulder or neck, which cuts off circulation to my right arm. He advises me to sleep on my back but after sleeping on my right side for half a century I do not find the change easy. Have you any suggestions.

REPLY

Besides making a conscious effort to lie supine, place pillows at your sides to keep from turning over.

FAT AND PSORIASIS

R. M. writes: Is there a relationship between psoriasis and a high level of cholesterol in the blood?

REPLY

Many victims of psoriasis have a high blood cholesterol; others do not. This suggests that the two conditions may not be related.

TOMORROW: Pet bites.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Henry Youngman knows a woman who finally has hit upon a sure-fire method of getting her good-for-nothing husband out of bed and off to what he laughingly refers to as work every morning. "All I do," explained the woman, "is throw the cat on his bed." "How does that get him up?" asked Youngman. "It's a cinch," chuckled the lady. "He sleeps with the dog."

Thomas Stevens, former secretary to President Eisenhower, once was instructed to invite Presidential assistant Sherman Adams to a fund-raising dinner, and according to reporter Tom Henry, was injudicious enough (probably rushed for time) to address Mr. Adams as "Dear Sher." Adams replied in kind:

"Dear To: I am sorr. I shall be in Minnesot. Lov, Sher."

Speaking of interesting experiments, Doodles Weaver, racing enthusiast, recently crossed a rooster with a Racing Form, and came up with a chicken that lays odds.

An eastern town has just gotten over celebrating Burglary Prevention Week. Wonder where they stole that idea?

Britain's Duke of Bedford announces he is going to open a matel on the grounds of his ancestral home to help pay off $14 million owed in inheritance taxes. Man, what rates he'll have to get!

Lee Whitney, the only resident of Douglas, Ark., has finally moved away. We'd say Lee's got the right idea — a ghost town should be left strictly to the ghosts.

Expert Panel To Be Heard At Moorefield

Poultry Experts Are Booked For State Convention

MORGANTOWN — July 30 - 31 and August 1 are the days that have been set aside for this year's State Poultry Convention to be held at Moorefield, Hardy county, according to Harold M. Hyre, associate poultry husbandman at West Virginia University. Hyre heads the publicity committee for the event.

The program will get under way at 2 p. m. EST Wednesday, July 30, with the annual business meeting of the West Virginia Poultry Association.

EARL F. CROUSE

The program this year will be made up of nationally known personalities, Hyre said. Included in the group of speakers will be Earl Crouse, St. Louis, Mo., of the Doane Agricultural Service. "Mr. Crouse is one of the nation's foremost authorities on 'Contract Farming,'" which is a subject of vital interest to poultry growers. He has some logical reasoning as to what is likely to develop along this line," Hyre explained. "Producers need to look ahead and to keep in step with the rapid changes that are taking place in the poultry industry. These poultry meetings in Moorefield will be an excellent place to get the latest information."

Prof. Paul Margolf of Pennsylvania State University will use as his subject, "Poultry Processing." Professor Margolf is a specialist in this field, Hyre pointed out.

Piedmont Gets PSC Report

PIEDMONT—A report from the Public Service Commission meeting held at Charleston on April 28, at which Mayor Rodney Baker and Council members appeared to ask to increase the town's water rates 33⅓ per cent, has been received.

Mayor Baker stated Monday night that the communication also reported the town would be sent further information soon.

If the request of the town is approved by the commission, it will mean about $4,667 additional revenue from the sale of water. The present minimum charge of $1.20 a month would be increased to $1.60.

Council ordered that the balance on the Studebaker two and one-half ton truck the town has been renting from the Reeves Auto Parts Company be paid off; also to purchase a small truck from Reeves.

It was ordered that a gas stove be purchased from Russell Metcalfe for the town office for $50. The cost of the stove, when new, was $269. The present stove in the Council Chamber will be placed in the adjoining room used for storage and repairs.

Council Adopts 2 Resolutions In Piedmont

PIEDMONT — Two resolutions were unanimously adopted by Mayor Rodney Baker and Council Monday night to complete plans for the request of a loan from the Housing and Finance Agency of the federal government.

The money, if and when loaned to the town, will not include interest to be used for a preliminary survey for a sanitary sewer to be attached to the sewage plant now being constructed by the Upper Potomac River Commission for principal use of the Luke plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company. Luke, Westernport and Piedmont plan to connect into this plant which is being located at the east end of Westernport.

The first resolution outlined reasons for the borrowing of between $35,000 and $70,000 for the construction of the sanitary sewer, interceptors and a pumping station.

The second resolution authorized the Robert T. Regester Engineering Company of Baltimore to do the preliminary survey at an estimated cost of between $1,500 and $2,000; also construct sewers and all necessary engineering inspections and supervision for eight per cent of the costs.

Edward Kidd, an engineer of the Baltimore firm, conferred with council and advised members to employ legal counsel.

Donald Hott, state's attorney of Mineral County and Charles Smith, attorney, were appointed to do the legal work providing fees are acceptable to the town.

Town officials heard various complaints that dogs are running at large and causing damage to gardens.

Mayor Baker warned an ordinance provides that it is unlawful for any person to permit their dog to run at large. On public streets, dogs must be accompanied by an attendant with a leash and also be muzzled.

All regular employes of the town are now entitled to sick benefits. For some years, only salaried employes received sick benefits. They will be given a maximum of 15 working days sick leave, but must present a doctor's certificate verifying the illness. They will receive 15 days leave in any one year and they cannot be accumulated from year to year.

The mayor called attention to the fact that some business places have not yet obtained a license for doing business in the town. "Every one is to be treated alike," the mayor warned, and he expects the town's police officer to check any violation.

Gov. Underwood Makes Plea For Conservation

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y. (UPI) — Noting West Virginia was "close to wildlife" the Mountain State's chief executive Tuesday said only through cooperation by all could natural resources be preserved.

Gov. Cecil H. Underwood, speaking on the occasion of the centennial celebration of the birth of Theodore Roosevelt, said West Virginians have "a love for nature and an instilled appreciation of our natural resources."

Noting that Roosevelt's desire to conserve was "deep seated" and he too, was a "great lover of the out-of-doors," Underwood cited him as the man who set in motion the nationalization of forests in this country.

"The public became aware," Underwood said. "The nation awoke as the teeth-gnasher and phrase-turner in the White House hammered home the importance of conservation."

Underwood said it "is a mistake" to look upon conservation as solely a governmental function.

"Conservation programs will be successful only when those persons in position to conserve resources which they control, use these sources of energy rather than abuse them," he said. "Americans must expand and extend their present-day methods of conservation to ensure the prosperity which Roosevelt envisaged and to see that it is amplified and developed."

Frostburg Beats Hancock, 4-2, In Little League Tourney

Williamsport Is Opponent On Thursday

Tom Wilson Bats In Two Runs; Donnie Richards Victor

Packing their scoring punch into the first two innings, Frostburg's All-Stars advanced to the semi-final round of the district Little League baseball tournament by eliminating Hancock yesterday on the Washington countians' field to the tune of 4-2.

It was the second win in as many days for the Mountain City nine managed by William Groves and William Biggs and their next opponent will be Williamsport which trounced the Valley League All-Stars of Hagerstown yesterday by the score of 14-1.

Play At Home Thursday

The Williamsport - Frostburg game is billed for Thursday at Frostburg at 6 p. m.

On Monday Williamsport ushered out Halfway, 6-0, on a no-hitter by Don Hott while Frostburg won at Oakland by the score of 8-1.

Donnie Richards, brother of pitcher Tommy Richards, of the Montreal Club of the International League, and Dave Richards, well known Beall High School and sandlot league hurler, held Hancock to five safeties in yesterday's contest and had a shutout going until the final stanza when Sheldon Weaver doubled and Danny Kerns blasted a home run.

Richards Fans Eight

Donnie, who twirls for the Elks in the Frostburg League, struck out eight and issued only one pass over the six-inning route. Richards, who hails from Carlos, owns a 2-1 record in the league this season.

Tom Wilson, who obtained three hits, a double and two singles against Oakland on Monday, continued his streak yesterday by rapping a pair of two-baggers. Wayne Miller also smacked a double for the winners while the two other hits were singles.

Wilson's first double set up the initial score in the opening frame as he moved to second on Richards' walk and crossed the platter when Miller came through in the clutch with a timely two-base rap.

Wilson Bats In 2 Runs

In the second frame Frostburg scored thrice on a walk, single, double and two errors. Ronnie Frazier drew a pass, Ronnie Ware singled and after both players advanced a base on an error, Wilson larruped a two-run double. Wayne Harper got a lift on a bobble by the Hancock shortstop and Wilson came home on the miscue.

Sheldon Weaver, who accounted for two of Hancock's five hits, both doubles, took over on the mound for starter McCumber in the second inning and hurled one-hit, shutout ball the remainder of the game. He struck out six and issued four bases on balls.

Harper Fielding Star

The fielding highlight was provided by Wayne Harper, Frostburg second baseman, who turned in a leaping one-hand stab of a line drive from the bat of Dillon in the third frame to stop a Hancock threat.

Two district games scheduled yesterday were postponed on account of rain. They were between the American League and West End League of Hagerstown and the National League of Hagerstown and the Potomac League, composed of West Virginia teams. These games have been rescheduled for today.

Gallant Man Is Victor In Rich Hollywood Race

Wins By 4 Lengths Over Eddie Schmidt In Sunset Handicap

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Gallant Man scored Hollywood Park's golden double by winning the $107,600 Sunset Handicap after having captured the $162,100 Gold Cup 10 days earlier.

The stretch - running Gallant Man, after having stayed closer to the early pace than expected, came on with a rush in the stretch to pull away by some four lengths from Eddie Schmidt, who had also been second to him in the Gold Cup. St. Vincent finished third, barely beating Hakuchikara, the Japanese champion, which ran his best race in finishing fourth in the field of six.

The mile and five-eighth race was run in 2:41 as compared with Swaps world and track record of 2:38 1-5 in winning the Sunset in 1956.

The victory strengthened Gallant Man's bid for "Horse of the Year" honors and marked the first time he had carried more than 130 pounds. Saddled with 132 pounds, Gallant Man spotted his five rivals from 15 to 26 pounds and it was the highest weight ever carried to victory in the Sunset.

Gallant Man was sent off at odds of 1-2 by the closing day crowd of 39,500 and he returned $3.00, $2.40 and $2.20 across the board. Eddie Schmidt returned $3.40 and $2.70 and St. Vincent paid $3.40 for show.

Tribe Splits With Senators

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Rookie Hal Woodeschick reeled off his second straight victory for Cleveland by beating Washington, 5-3, Tuesday night in the nightcap of a twi-night twin-bill after the Senators won the opener, 4-2, on successive 12th - inning homers by Norm Zauchin and Ken Aspromonte.

Woodeschick, recently brought back up from the minors, gave up nine hits, including a homer to opposing pitcher John Romonosky. The Indians could collect only six off Romonosky, who struck out 10 batters while suffering his second loss.

Vic Power gave the Tribe a quick lead when he doubled home two runs in the first inning of the nightcap and after the Senators tied the score with two runs in the third, the Indians went ahead again in the bottom of the frame when Earl Averill singled home two more runs.

Rocky Colavito, who homered in the opener, also connected with the bases empty in the fifth inning of the nightcap to bring his season home run total to 18.

Cal McLish went the distance for Cleveland in the first game and was the victim of the 12th-inning homers by Zauchin and Aspromonte.

Dick Hyde, Washington's bespectacled submarine - ball relief ace, entered the game in the 10th inning and was credited with his eighth victory. Camilo Pascual started for Washington and was relieved by Russ Kemmerer in the sixth.

The loss was McLish's sixth of the season and snapped his five-game winning streak.

Lopez Blast In 9th Sinks Red Sox, 4-3

Two-Run Homer Beats Tom Brewer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Hector Lopez hit a home run with a mate on base and two outs in the bottom of the ninth to give the Kansas City Athletics a 4-3 win over the Boston Red Sox Tuesday night.

Hard-luck Tom Brewer retired the first two batters easily in the ninth but walked Harry Simpson and then Lopez hit the homer that gave Brewer his ninth loss of the season. Tom Gorman, who relieved starter Murry Dickson in the ninth, got credit for the win.

A home run by Jackie Jensen, his 28th of the season, gave Boston a 3-2 lead after Pete Runnels had hit a round-tripper in the fourth for the Red Sox. Jensen's blow followed a walk to Ted Williams.

Kansas City got two unearned runs in the first inning when Bill Tuttle led off with a grounder that was bobbled by Billy Consolo and Roger Maris followed with a walk.

Preston Ward hit a fly ball that advanced Tuttle to third and Bob Cerv, who was honored in pregame ceremonies by the more than 20,000 persons attending, singled to right to score Tuttle.

Maris scored when Simpson forced Cerv. It was Cerv's first return to action since he suffered a swollen forearm when hit by a pitch at New York last Saturday.

Brewer gave up singles in the fifth and seventh innings for the only other hits for the Athletics.

Yanks Rout Tigers, 13-3, Get 23 Hits

Bob Turley Coasts To 15th Triumph

DETROIT (UPI) — Bullet Bob Turley, bidding to become the first New York Yankee pitcher to win more than 21 games since 1934, Tuesday night coasted to his 15th triumph against only three defeats with a 13-3 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Turley, winningest pitcher in the majors, yielded only seven hits. He struck out five batters to boost his league-leading total in that department to 112.

The Yankees made it easy for the big right hander. They blasted five Tiger pitchers for 23 hits, and poured across six runs in the sixth, all of them unearned.

Gil McDougald and Norm Siebern smashed two-run homers to help Turley to a 7-0 lead by the time the Tigers scored their first run in the fifth. The other two Detroit runs came in the ninth and included a homer by Gus Zernial.

Siebern, playing center field for the injured Mickey Mantle, also had three singles to pace the New York attack.

Bill Skowron's double in the sixth was the only other extra-base hit for the Yanks.

A freak play on a pickoff, in which everyone but the outfielders and the second baseman handled the ball, led to the six unearned runs.

McDougald was caught off first with Hank Bauer on third and one out. McDougald finally was tagged out and Bauer, although he was tagged 20 feet from the plate was allowed to score when catcher Jim Hegan was called for obstructing him. The Yankees then went on to score five more runs before the side was retired.

Braves Edge Cards, 2-1

Crandall Sacrifice Wins Game In 8th

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Del Crandall's sacrifice fly, driving in Eddie Mathews, broke up a pitching duel between rookies Carlton Willey and Bob Mabe Tuesday night to give the Milwaukee Braves a 2-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals and allow them to draw to within a half-game of the league - leading San Francisco Giants.

A single by Mathews in the eighth and Henry Aaron's fourth hit of the night, sending Mathews to third, set up the scoring situation for Crandall. His blow allowed the second place Braves to pick up a half-game on the Giants, who were rained out at Philadelphia.

Willey received credit for his third win of the season against three defeats, allowing just five hits and striking out seven batters. Mabe matched Willey's performance on eight hits and five strikeouts, but was sabotaged by four Cardinal errors.

The Cardinal run came in the sixth when Joe Cunningham tripled off Felix Mantilla's glove at the center field fence and Musial doubled him home.

Lown Preserves Pierce's Tenth Win Of Season

Turk Stops Orioles In 9th Frame, 4-2

CHICAGO (UPI) — Turk Lown came on in the ninth to get pinch-batter Jim Marshall on a long fly with the bases loaded to save Billy Pierce's 10th victory of the year as the Chicago White Sox defeated the Baltimore Orioles, 4-2, Tuesday night.

Pierce was coasting toward his fourth shutout of the year until the ninth where he worked himself into a real jam. Bob Nieman opened the inning for the Orioles with a double. Pierce got the next two batters out, but Luis Aparicio's error allowed Bob Boyd to reach first and put Nieman on third.

Pierce then threw 10 straight balls to walk Billy Gardner, Foster Castleman and Gene Woodling, forcing in two runs. Lown relieved and threw two wide pitches before Marshall flied deep to center field for the final out.

Lefty Jack Harshman yielded 8 hits in a seven-inning stint and helped lose his own game when his bad throw to second opened the door for three unearned Chicago runs.

Ray Boone hit a homer in the fifth into the 415-foot center field bull pen off Harshman for the fourth Sox score.

Harshman's misplay occurred in the fourth inning after he gave up a single to Boone and got Sherm Lollar out on a long fly. The Oriole southpaw walked Al Smith and then fielded Don Mueller's tap to the mound. But he threw the ball into the ground in an attempted force play at second.

Aparicio forced Mueller, scoring Boone, and successive singles by Pierce and Goodman accounted for two more runs.

Elks Hand Pete Elliott First Loss

Defeat Vets, 12-9; K. Of C. Win, 7-2

A seven-run rally in the 6th inning enabled the B.P.O. Elks to crack the four - game winning streak of the V.F.W. yesterday at Stitcher Field and move closer to the leaders in the Rocking Chair Softball League. The score was 12-9.

The Vets continue to lead the league with a 13-3 record while the Elks occupy the runner-up spot with 13 wins and five losses.

"Pete" Elliott was the victim of the Elks' 17-hit assault as he suffered his first loss of the campaign after winning six in a row.

"Pooch" Orndorff sparked the attack with three hits in four trips while Bob Price and "Whip" Kreitzburg collected two bingles each. A running catch by Bill Underdonk in left was the fielding gem.

The Vets garnered 11 safeties. Phil Reuschel obtained three safeties and played a bangup game at second base, Ted Durbin banged a double and single and Elliott smacked a triple and single.

The win was the 11th against three losses for Dick Klavuhn.

The Knights of Columbus made their record 10-7 by whipping the Loyal Order of Moose at Post Field by the score of 7-2.

Allan Sheetz tossed a six-hitter and notched win No. 8.

Bob McGreevy with a double and single and George Geatz with a pair of one-base knocks shared four of the Casey's nine blows. Jim Fradiska's two-bagger was among the six hits credited to the Moose.

Joe Brown Defends Title Against Kenny Lane Tonight

Champ Made 12-5 Choice At Houston

Bitter Words Come From Both Camps On Eve Of Fight

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP) — There were bitter words in both camps Tuesday as champion Joe Brown, a 12-5 favorite, predicted he will smash challenger Kenny Lane's bid Wednesday night to become the first left-hander to win the world's lightweight boxing crown.

"I'll smash him but I'd like to punish him a few extra rounds," said the 32-year-old Brown, a Baton Rouge native who moved to Houston after Louisiana prohibited Negroes from competing against whites.

Charges Run-Around

"Joe Brown has given me the run-round a long time and I'm going to cash in now," said the crewcut Lane, the 26-year-old challenger from Muskegon, Mich. "It practically took an act of Congress to get me a title fight."

The scheduled 15-round Sam Houston Coliseum bout will be televised nationally at 9 p.m. (EST) with the Houston area blacked out. A crowd of about 10,000 is expected.

The fight will be the fifth time Brown has placed his title on the line and he will be after his fifth knockout. He said he is not worried about Lane not having been knocked off his feet while compiling a record of 52 victories and five losses.

Lane Bad Mouthed

"Lane's been bad mouthed about this thing," Brown said as he relaxed at his Camp Holden training headquarters northwest of Houston.

"I could end it in three or four rounds but may wait until the sixth or seventh because of that bad mouth," said the champion.

Brown has won 70 fights, lost 15 and recorded nine draws.

Doolan Posts 8th Triumph For Local 26

Beats McIntyre's In Rec Game, 9-2

Local 26 stretched its lead to two full games over runner-up Western Maryland Railway in the Men's Rec Softball League by defeating Don McIntyre's yesterday at Fort Hill Field by the score of 9-2.

The win gave the Rubber Workers a 13-2 record.

Western Maryland (10-3) and the Ridgeley Legion were tied at 1-1 in the 5th inning at Naval Reserve Field when darkness halted hostilities.

"Pickles" Doolan, the winningest pitcher in the league, held McIntyre's to four hits and registered his eighth win of the season. His only loss was a 7-6 decision to Western Maryland.

Local 26 collected seven hits and among them were two-baggers by Bill Houdersheldt and "Chuck" Emery. Dale Fuller collected two hits for McIntyre's. Bob Leasure, shortstop, and Fuller, centerfielder, were the game's fielding stars.

Howton Says Pro Grid Players Need Protection From Owners

Bill Declares They Would Abuse Players If Given Free Hand

By WHITNEY SHOEMAKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — All-Pro end Bill Howton told Senate sports investigators Tuesday a House-passed bill would strip players of protection from what he termed dictatorial policies of football club owners.

Howton, the Green Bay Packers' crack pass receiver, testified "club owners have proven over the years that they abuse the players when they have a free hand."

Would Restrain Owners

He and Creighton Miller, attorney for the National Football League Players Assn., said they prefer legislation to provide some restraint on the owners while granting exemptions from federal antitrust laws.

Lack of restrictions, they said, might lead to such things as blacklisting players or blacking out television of NFL games.

Howton, a star at Rice before turning into one of pro football's best ends, is president of the players association. Miller is the former Notre Dame back hired last year as counsel to the group, which represents players of all 12 NFL teams except the Chicago Bears.

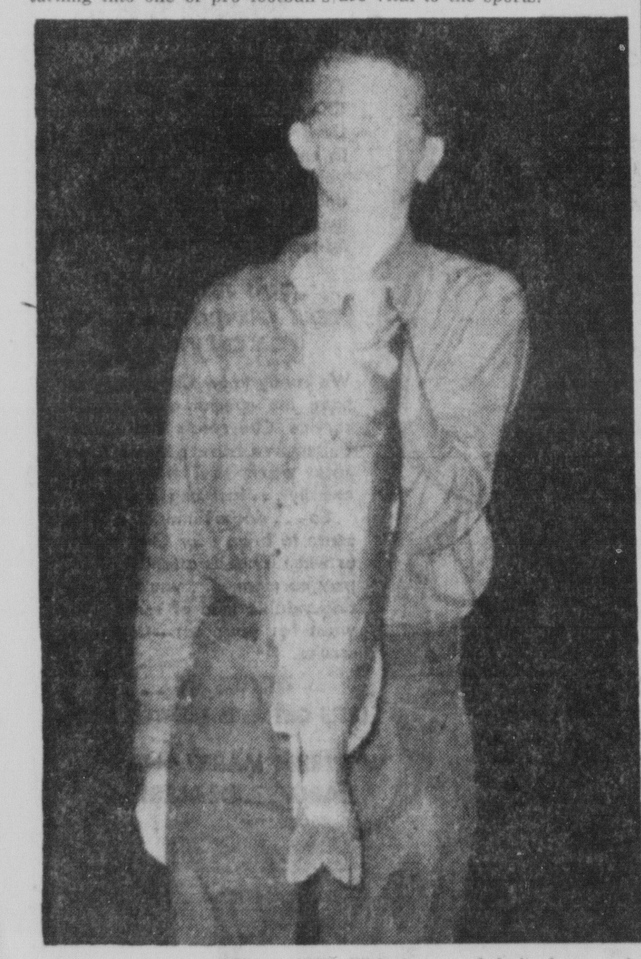

They appeared with Kyle Rote, New York Giants' end and vice president of the association, and Les Richter, Los Angeles Rams' linebacker, before the Senate Antimonopoly subcommittee.

Before switching to football, the subcommittee was asked by Sen. William Langer (R-ND) to recommend a ban on pay television for major league baseball games.

Sen. Mundt Testifies

And Sen. Karl E. Mundt (R-SD) testified in support of his proposal to grant organized baseball antitrust law exemptions only so long as the majors keep a team in Washington.

The bill before the subcommittee would grant pro baseball, football, basketball and hockey flat antitrust exemptions. Passed by the House, it was designed to give leagues and clubs freedom to operate with contract reserve clauses, player drafts and territorial rights which proponents say are vital to the sports.

CONNECTS ON FIRST TRY—With borrowed bait, borrowed boat and borrowed pole, Harry McIntyre, 15, of Pittsburgh, first time fisherman, dropped his line in Deep Creek Lake near the dam and caught a 26 inch Walleye which weighed 6¼ pounds. Harry, whose parents own one of the 2,000 private cottages on Deep Creek, explains that this was the first time he ever has had a line in the water.

Ray Bryson, 72, Bel Air Owner, Taken By Death

Maryland Horseman Dies At Elray Farm

KINGSVILLE, Md. (AP) — G. Ray Bryson, prominent Maryland horse breeder and principal owner of Bel Air Race Track, died Tuesday at Elray Farm, his home here. He was 72.

The Kingsville horseman suffered a heart attack three years ago and had been in ill health recently.

Built Bel-Air Track

Bryson is credited with having built the three-quarter mile Bel Air track and heading it until his death.

His Elray Farm currently maintains 16 brood mares and three stallions, according to breeding records, and Bryson had as many as 100 horses at one time. The race horses are registered in the name of his widow, Ella K. Bryson.

A number of the stable's horses are currently running at Delaware Park, including Kinda Smart and Peeping Tom, a 2-year-old which has been nominated for the Dover Stakes tomorrow.

Bryson, a native of Dayton, Ky., got interested in horse racing while operating a pool hall in Covington, Ky.

"Naturally I heard all the horse talk and drifted to the track at Latonia," he once said. "I bought my first horse, Anna Beall, about 1898."

The 18-year-old horse owner was in the game to stay. He sold the mare a short time later for $250, turning a neat profit, and bought two yearlings. One of them, Water Cooler, set a track record for him at Churchill Downs.

Paid $10,000 For Papp

Bryson was noted at auction sales as a man who preferred to buy a quantity of cheap horses in the hope that one would develop into a worthwhile performer. He said the most costly purchase he ever made was Papp, for which he paid $10,000 in 1919 and saw him succumb to shipping fever after running one race for him.

Bryson developed some outstanding performers for his stable. Calumet Dick, for example, was claimed at Saratoga from Warren Wright, owner of Calumet Farm, for $2,500 and earned to $75,000. He won the 1937 Dixie Handicap at Pimlico.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a. m. Friday at Ruck's Funeral Home in Baltimore with burial at Druid Ridge Cemetery.

Stringtown Wins, Gains On Leaders

Maple Inn's Old Germans whipped Homewood Tavern, 9-2, and Stringtown downed Kennell's Mill, 6-4, in County Softball League games played yesterday.

Stringtown moved within a half game of first place (16-6) when the Corriganville-Hyndman game at the latter place was rained out in the second inning with the Old Exports leading 3-0. This game has been rescheduled for July 30.

Jerry O'Baker became a 10-game winner in the victory of Manager Ray Leighty's Old Germans over Homewood. He scattered five hits, including a triple and double by Perdew and a double and single by Turner.

Jack Brant collected three hits and batted in five runs for the Old G's. O'Baker also had three safeties while Joe Glass and Fay Often garnered two each.

In the contest at Stringtown, Joe Sager was the "big gun" with three blows, "Corky" Jamison rapped a double and single and Solly Emerick also had two hits. Curt Hasselrode and Ray Troutman limited Kennell's Mill to two hits—singles by Gomer and Kreigline. Scores:

Snead To Vie In Baltimore Golf Tourney

Eastern Open Set To Start Thursday

By LOU PANOS

BALTIMORE (AP)—Sam Snead popped up Tuesday as a surprise entry in the Eastern Open and reaffirmed his dislike of anyone skillful at tapping a golf ball into the cup.

"I hate all good putters," declared the slammer from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

For emphasis he whacked a whistling drive off the practice at Mt. Pleasant, Baltimore's municipal course where the $20,000 tournament will be played Thursday through Sunday.

"Like Finsterwald," he grinned as a growing gallery chuckled. Dow Finsterwald, the 28-year-old Ohioan who last Sunday overtook Snead in the last round and won the Professional Golfers Assn. championship at Havertown, Pa., will be in this one, too.

"He'd knock one into the bushes, then beat it out of there about 15 feet from the pin and tap it right in," said Snead. He shook his head and belted another ball into the mist falling on Mt. Pleasant's lush green acres.

Top Prize $2,800

"I just don't see how you guys do it," said the old master, addressing young Gay Brewer Jr.

Brewer, another of the 150 or so pros tournament director Harvey Raynor says will be competing for the $2,800 top prize, just joined in the chuckling. Then he and Snead prepared to take a warm-up round on the 6,895-yard, par-72 course.

Snead didn't mention the three putts he took from four feet away on the 13th hole at the Llanerch Country Club in the PGA. He wound up third.

His appearance here was unexpected because of a mild controversy after his 1952 Eastern Open victory and his absence from the tournament since then.

Snead, winner of every major tournament in golf except the National Open, was reported to have demanded an appearance fee for returning to Baltimore in 1953, touching off rumblings of discontent among other stars of the game.

Other Stars To Vie

Scheffing Is Candidate For NL Manager Of Year

May Give Giants' Rigney Competition For 1958 Laurels

By JACK CUDDY
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bob Scheffing is doing such a good job with the Cubs this season he may give Bill Rigney of the Giants stiff competition for "manager of the year" laurels in the National League.

Thus far, the transplanted San Francisco Giants have been the season's sensation in their see-saw battle with Milwaukee for the league lead.

But the Cubs, popular choice in most pre-season polls for last place, have flabbergasted the experts by coming up to snap at the Braves' and Giants' heels.

In Scheffing's freshman year as a major league pilot with the Cubs in 1957, Chicago did show some late-season improvement; but it finished in a last-place tie with Pittsburgh, one rung below the Giants.

Refuse Cellar Position

And because the Cubs this year had a sophomore pilot in Scheffing and an extremely green pitching-catching combination—along with other uncertainties—most of the experts consigned them to the cellar, a dank suite they're refusing to occupy.

Their vigorous revolt against the basement can be more fully appreciated if one recalls they're making a better fight than any Cub outfit in 11 years. The last time Chicago approached the top was in 1947, when 5½ games out of the lead.

Because of his temperament, training and intelligent efforts, 42-year-old Scheffing must be given much credit for the club's revival.

He was fitted admirably to deal with the big pitching-catching problem because of his own 11 years in the majors behind the plate, with three out for military service. He wore the mask for the Cubs, Redlegs and Cardinals.

Also he coached for the St. Louis Browns and the Cubs. And he managed the Los Angeles Angels nearly two seasons before being named Chicago pilot.

Pitchers Are Young

None of the pitchers he regarded as his top five are more than 25 years old — Moe Drabowsky, Dick Drott, Taylor Phillips, Johnny Briggs and Glen Hobbie. Moreover, catcher Sammy Taylor—up from Atlanta—is 25 and a rookie. But Taylor has been working regularly and hitting around .300.

That green mound-backstop combination could have been a liability, but Bob turned it into a decided asset.

Scheffing's cool guidance was also rewarded by unexpectedly good hitting from veteran Alvin Dark, obtained from the Cardinals; Lee Walls and Ernie Banks.

His knowledge and direction may make him manager of the year.

Eddie Sawyer Replaces Mayo Smith As Phils' Manager

New Leader Guided 1950 Flag Winner

Lost Job In 1952, Signed To Contract Through '59 Season

By NOAH HALPER

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies fired manager Mayo Smith Tuesday and replaced him with Eddie Sawyer who directed the club to the National League pennant in 1950.

"We needed a change," said general manager Roy Hamey in announcing Smith's dismissal.

"It was sudden," said Smith, "but that's baseball."

"I'm glad to be back," commented Sawyer.

Hamey's answer as to why the Phillies were rehiring a man they fired because he didn't win, was:

Had Good Record

"Eddie had a good record while he was here."

That record was a third place finish in 1949, a pennant in 1950, fifth in 1951, and fourth in 1952, when Sawyer was replaced in mid-season by Steve O'Neill.

Since then, Sawyer has been a manufacturer's representative with no baseball connection.

Hamey said he had been considering the move about a month. He said, "no one thing tipped the scale. I just thought we needed a change."

Smith, who was signed by Hamey in 1955, leaves the club in sixth place, half a game out of the cellar, two games from the first division, and 8½ behind the front running San Francisco Giants, the opponent Tuesday night as Sawyer takes over.

Trailed By 2½ Games

The Phillies, just prior to the All-Star Game, won seven in a row and vaulted to third place in the topsy turvey National League race. They were 2½ games from first place.

But following the All-Star break, the club nosed dived into the second division. Everything went wrong. The hitters slumped. The pitching went sour.

Smith said he got the word about 1 p.m. (EDT) Tuesday. "Nobody feels good about being fired," he said. "But that's the way baseball is and that's the risk you take. I'll go home to Lake Worth (Fla.) in a couple of days. I have no definite plans, but certainly hope to remain in baseball."

Smith in the final year of a three year contract, guided the Phillies to fourth place his first season with the club. The past two years the Phillies were fifth. He came from the farm system of the New York Yankees where as a manager he won two pennants and wound up in the first division two other years.

Signs Through 1959

Sawyer, who was signed for the rest of this season and through 1959, declined to appraise the club.

The only players still on the club who were here when Sawyer last managed were pitchers Robin Roberts, Curt Simmons, and Bob Miller; catcher Stan Lopata, infielder Willie Jones and outfielder Richie Ashburn.

Nah Hiss Scores In Jamaica 6th

JAMAICA, N. Y., July 22 (AP)—Mrs. Jules Schwartz's Nah Hiss out-gamed Valley Farm's Impasse to win the Brighton Beach Purse by a nose at Jamaica Race Track today.

Three quarters of a length back came Byrnalan Stable's Civet. Nah Hiss, a 4-year-old son of Call Over-Waymark, ridden by Bob Ussery, stepped the mile and an eighth in the good time of 1:50 3/5 on the fast track.

Nah Hiss sprinted to the lead soon after the start and held on gamely through the long stretch drive.

Lukewarm favorite with the crowd of 17,283, Nah Hiss returned the across the board mutuels of $6.30, $3.70 and $3.10. Impasse paid $4.60 and $3.60 and Civet was $3.40 to show.

Swiped 25 Passes

DETROIT—The Detroit Lions ranked second in the National Football League in interceptions in 1957 with 25 for 311 yards and one touchdown.

Scientists say that continued research during the past 25 years has raised the average egg production for each hen from one every three days to one in less than every two days.

Willie Hartack Chalks Up Triple

OCEANPORT, N. J., July 22 (AP)—Lord Gregor, a 3-year-old colt by Cosmic Bomb who had not won since capturing his first start of the year at Bowie this winter, charged to a neck victory over a tiring filly, Right Chere, to give Willie Hartack his third success at Monmouth Park today.

Lord Gregor, who provided trainer Bernie P. Bond with his second winner of the afternoon, ran the sprint in 1.12 3/5 over a sloppy track while carrying 118 pounds.

The colt owned by Melvin H. Schlosberg, of Washington, D. C., returned $19.20, $9.80 and $5.80 to his backers in the crowd of 19,139.

Hartack's first winner of the day, Market Right ($13.20) completed the $62.00 daily double. The meeting's leading rider also scored astride Eglantine ($10.00) in the fourth.

The life span of a house fly is from 10 to 12 days.

Pikadon Wins 4th Straight

Defeats Woody Glen In Mud At Delaware

STANTON, Del., July 22 (AP)—Pikadon, flying the Willowbrook Stables banner of H. Dorsey Shipley of Riderwood, Md., splashed over a sloppy track to his fourth straight victory before 10,247 at Delaware Park today.

The much improved 5-year-old gelding splashed mud in the faces of eight other veterans almost from the start of the one-mile Black Polly Purse. He reached the wire a length and a quarter in advance of former Jockey Carl Hanford's Woody Glen, who in turn held four lengths margin over P. Hunter Faulconer's Edsun for the place.

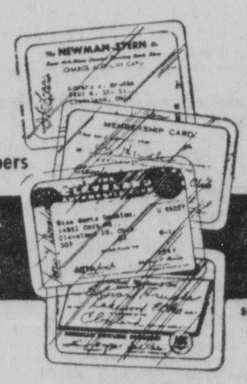

Woody Glen, an English-bred, was a luke warm favorite with Jockey Eldon Nelson seeking his third victory of the overcast afternoon. Keith Stuart was astride the victor, who returned the liberal across-the-board prices of $15.60, $7 and $4.60. Woody Glen paid $5.40 and $4.40, and Edsun, $3.00 for show. Pikadon made the very creditable time of 1:38 2/5 in the wet going.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — When Stanley Kramer sets his heart on anything, you are safe in betting he'll put it over. He's wanted Gregory Peck to play the American naval officer in "On The Beach" and Greg is going to do just that. The contract was signed over the week end and Neville Shutes' depressing novel goes before the screen in January.

I am told Stanley has been able to get an excellent script. Perhaps if this picture could be made in time to show all the battling nations the tragedy of hydrogen and atomic bombs destroying the world (as it did in the book) it could be valuable propaganda.

The loose threads are now being woven into place and Lana Turner who was inclined to be a bit difficult at first has changed her tactics and is being more cooperative at the rehearsals of "Imitation of Life."

John Gavin who denied he gave an interview saying he felt he was too young to play opposite Lana, was on the Universal-International lot at 7:30 a.m. to test with Lana for her key wardrobe shots — and what a wardrobe created by Jean Louis.

It will take a minimum of 18 costumes to test for the 31 changes. Some are trimmed with mink, some with chinchilla, and other with lace. A half million dollars worth of jewelry is being supplied by jeweler Laykin, who is also providing his own guards.

Anything and everything about Brigitte Bardot is news these days because of the Bardot bonanza at the box office. So, in what I suppose we can call a "flash" from Paris, Raoul Levy who has produced many of her pictures, sends word that the French sex-kitten will star in "Babette Goes To War." Like most of Brigette's movies it's as sexy as the censors will allow — all about a French girl whose talent for camp following makes her invaluable as an undercover spy.

The idea offers such opportunities to show off La Bardot's appeal that Levy is planning not just one picture, but a series based on this central idea. I met Levy when he was in Hollywood not long ago and he's a smart producer whose slogan might well be "The more Bardot the more dough."

Talked to June Haver who with Fred MacMurray was having a great time at their ranch near San Francisco. "I love a county fair," June said, "And we are showing ten of our black Angus cattle at the Sonora Fair. This is the first time I have been away from the twins."

I asked June if she is going to co-star with Fred in "Justice Ends With a Gun" for Charles Schneer (not to be confused with Charles Schnee) for Columbia.

"Fred has talked with Charlie Schneer, who is an old friend," June said, "But I am too happy being a wife and mother to risk losing all this by returning to motion pictures."

With the world so topsy-turvy, Dinah Shore is planning to spend her vacation right here in the U. S. A. She says as soon as George Montgomery finishes "The Return to King Solomon's Mines" at MGM, she, George, daughter Missy and little son Jody will get in their car and visit the zoo in San Diego, Yosemite Park, and possibly Yellowstone Park.

"I am just so happy to be in my back yard resting," said Dinah, "I hate to think of traveling, but I do believe George, the children and I should have this holiday but not go too far away from home."

Sammy Davis Jr. does such great business in his nightclub act that he could keep busy (and prosperous) just playing the Moulin Rouge in Hollywood and the Sands in Las Vegas. But this boy is a demon for work in all fields. Right now he's in love with making movies.

He's just bought "Rebel Territory" which he'll produce and star in, sometime in 1959 — and when I say "sometime" that's the right word. Having just completed the movie "Anna Lucasta" he's making time at the Moulin Rouge until Sam Goldwyn is ready to start "Porgy and Bess" again. Following this, Sammy's set for "Oceans 11" with Frank Sinatra. Aaronn Spelling has been signed the job of scripting "Rebel Territory," a post - Civil War story about a slave and a Quaker.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Hope Lange will have her baby in Ireland where Don Murray goes to film "Shake Hands With the Devil."

They were lined up solidly in front of the Luau when Clark Gable, Kay and Kay's daughter came out, waiting for autographs.

Debra Paget and her mother leave town July 28 to forget it all. They go to Germany and India where Debbie will appear in "The Indian Tomb," a movie.

Kathryn Grant Crosby is spending the day at Columbia today to talk to the press on the telephone about "Gunman's Walk." This is the picture she was supposed to ballyhoo with personal appearances but the act of God — the baby, that is — keeps her here.

Television and Radio

by John Crosby

Small Music

The record for original musicals on television is universally lousy. From "Cinderella," a Rodgers and Hammerstein opus that set CBS back roughly half a million clams, to "Aladdin" which Cole Porter wrote the music for, to "Crescendo" which boasted Rex Harrison and about thirty stools, the trail has been littered with the wreckage of huge budgets and high hopes and when Richard Adler announced that he would contribute two original musicals to TV next fall, he was flying in the face both of tradition and common sense.

So, the other day, over-powered by curiosity, I asked Mr. Adler, in Heaven's name, why? "One of the big reasons I think there have been no successful musicals for TV is that the writers treat the TV screen like a Broadway stage," explained Mr. Adler, who at thirty-six looks much too young to have been co-author of "Damn Yankees" and "The Pajama Game." "They write big expansive broad songs and music. If a painter wants a big picture, he uses oils. If he wants a smaller subject, watercolors might be right.

"Well, when I write for TV, I intend to use watercolors. TV songs should have a small intimate feeling. They should not be the kind that have to bounce off the walls of a theater and get to the guy in the thirtieth row. For instance, "There Is Nothing Like a Dame" is a great song but it's too explosive for TV. It's a big yak song. My comedy songs on television will be intended to get a chuckle but not a yak."

I pointed out that television money is not anything like stage money.

"There isn't a lot of money in TV as compared with the stage. I'm doing it—and mind you I'm not a crusader—because I think it's a terribly important medium. The people in the musical theater say the problem is insurmountable, that it can't be licked but I feel it's something that shouldn't be looked down on. There are 50,000,000 people watching—well, anyway millions—and they're entitled to see good television. I have something to say on television and I want to say it. Maybe a year from now I'll be saying the problem can't be licked but right now I'm hoping it can."

Adler's two projects are a musical version of "Little Women," the Louisa May Alcott classic, which has so far avoided television, and another of O. Henry's great stories, "Gift of the Magi." The first was brought to him. The second, a tiny story which occupies only a couple pages of print, is his own idea; he bought the rights from the O. Henry estate and personally sold it to TV. "'Gift of the Magi' has something—a kind of spirit and quality of its own. Sure, it's a little story but then I think that's the very quality that TV musicals should have.

"I didn't really want to do 'Little Women.' It's essentially just a family story with family incidents. There's no story really except Beth's illness. In the movie she dies; in the book she doesn't. Well, we're sticking to the book. I'll probably catch it from the public for not letting her die but if we're going to get belted we might as well catch it for sticking to what Louisa May Alcott intended."

Besides "Pajama Game" and "Damn Yankees" for which he wrote the lyrics, Dick Adler is chiefly famous as the inspiration for Rudy Lorraine, the songwriting character in the book "Say, Darlin'," by Richard Bissell, which is now a very large hit on Broadway. Both in book and play, Rudy Lorraine is a fairly insufferable character—loud-mouthed, outlandishly egotistic and — the unkindest cut of all—not a very good songwriter.

"How are you and Dick Bissell hitting it off these days?" I inquired.

"I think he's a great guy—a great guy to work with, wonderfully witty guy and—well—just great," said Adler who looked as if he meant every word. "Rudy Lorraine? Well, he got the girl didn't he? I think some people's feelings got hurt by the play. Hal Prince, for instance. (Hal Prince is the model for the boy producer in the play.) But not mine."

I think I ought to add that Mr. Adler, unlike Rudy Lorraine, fairly oozed charm throughout lunch.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Danny DeVault, who departed this life 2 years ago today, July 23rd, 1956.

"GONE BUT NOT FORGOTTEN"
The stars are brightly shining,
Upon a silent grave,
In it lies a loved one,
We've loved but could not save.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly, tenderly, fond and true,
There is not a day, dear Danny,
That we do not think of you.
Sadly Missed By His Mother, Dad and Brothers

We wish to express our sincere thanks to our friends and neighbors for the kindness extended to us during the illness and following the death of our husband and father, Notley R. Cook. We wish especially to thank the Rev. Carl E. Price, the choir of the First Methodist Church, the pallbearers, those who sent flowers and those who loaned cars for the funeral.

Local Man

ministered by the Navy Department. There was a rudimentary public school system but it was difficult to get qualified teachers, according to Mr. Perdew, who is visiting his father and his sister, Mrs. R. Rhett Rathbone, before returning to Guam for another two years.

Prospective teachers were sent to Hawaii or California for their collegiate education and most often never returned to their native island. The Territorial College was established to solve this problem.

Stateside Help

The new Guam Legislature has established a 12-year free public school system on the island and requires attendance until the age of 16.

Mr. Perdew got interested in joining the faculty of the Guamanian college through Ohio State University, which has been assisting the new college since its beginning. Mr. Perdew received his master's degree at OSU, worked as an instructor there two years and has done additional graduate work toward his doctorate.

When the Territorial College of Guam opened its doors for the first time six years ago, it had only three full-time teachers. It is temporarily located in seven quonset huts on the George Washington High School campus, half a mile from Agana, the capital of Guam.

Quonset Huts And Ph.D.'s

Although the college still is located in seven quonset huts, plans have been prepared for construction of a modern college plant including an administration building, a two-story classroom building, an air-conditioned library for 20,000 volumes, and a student center. The buildings will accommodate about 250 students. Some $500,000 already has been appropriated for the construction, which is expected to start this year. Completion is planned in time for the 1959-60 school year.

The educational pioneer explained here that the present enrollment is 150 full-time students, 200 part-time students and 120 vocational and adult education students. From its original three teachers, the faculty has expanded to the point that it will have a faculty of 14 in September. Ten of them will be holders of doctor's degrees.

All but two members of the faculty are from stateside United States. The two native Guamanians include Dr. Pedro C. Sanchez, dean of the college, and Jesus B. Guerrero, assistant professor in science and mathematics.

Plans Expansion

Currently a junior college, the institution is in the process now of preparing for accreditation and expansion into a four-year program. Those who have finished the two-year junior college program have had little trouble gaining admittance in colleges and universities in the United States. Mr. Perdew says they have been accepted in 97 colleges, including Ohio State and a number of California institutions of higher learning.

When he leaves Pittsburgh August 13 with his wife and 16-year-old son to return to Guam by plane, Mr. Perdew will return to a promotion on the college faculty. He will be director of the evening program and assistant to the dean.

They will go back to the island of about 225 square miles which is becoming thoroughly "Americanized" without any bitterness toward the United States, according to the traveling educator. He says he has yet to see a thatched roof or a grass skirt on the island.

The native Guamanians are from the Chamorros. Their native tongue has been greatly influenced by the Spanish in more than three centuries. Their language is oral, not written, and consequently the language used in the college is English.

A Varied Career

His current status in Guam is another move for Mr. Perdew in a varied career in education. Although he was born in Cumberland he was graduated from Keyser High School in 1932 at a time when the family had moved to the Mineral County town because of his father's job transfer. After two years at Potomac State College he worked a year and then completed his undergraduate education at Wittenburg College in Ohio.

Mr. Perdew's first five years of teaching were in nearby West Virginia. In the five years he taught at Elk Garden, Wiley Ford and Ridgeley, all in Mineral County. The next year he worked at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company. In 1943 and 1944 he returned to Wittenberg on the staff of the Army Training School. Then came two years in the Navy.

From 1946 until 1948, Mr. Perdew taught at Bellefontaine, Ohio, High School. Then came two years at Ohio State University, where he obtained his master's degree while working as an instructor. Then he served as dean of students at Lorain, Ohio, High School. Back to Ohio State, where he was working toward his doctorate when the opportunity unfolded for his work on Guam.

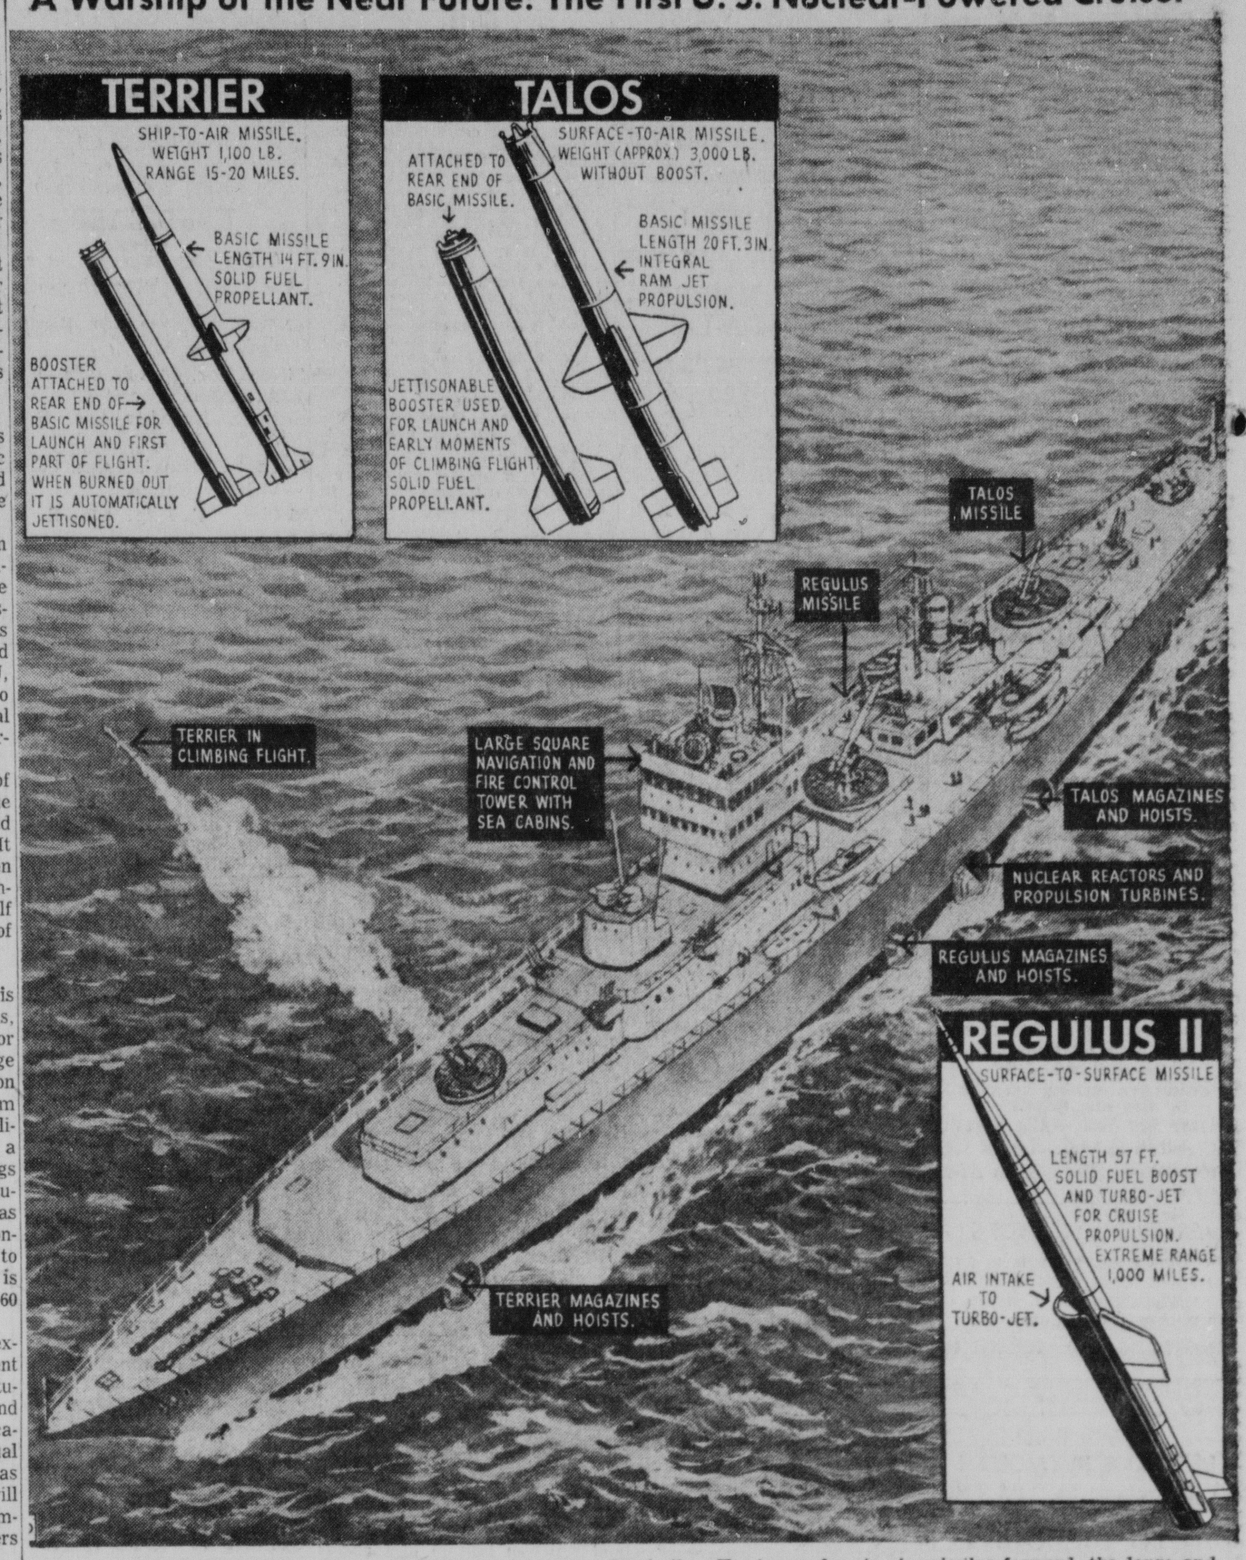

His wife is the former Miss Mary Francis Coffman of Keyser and they have a 16-year-old son, Paul, who thinks skin diving is one of the most pleasant recreations on Guam.

They seem to enjoy their experience on Guam a great deal, and Mr. Perdew apparently would be happy if he could recruit a teacher to return to the island with him.

A Warship of the Near Future: The First U. S. Nuclear-Powered Cruiser

The keel of the first ship of a new and powerful class of guided missile cruisers for the U. S. Navy has recently been laid at the Quincy (Mass.) Yard of the Bethlehem Steel Company, and it is hoped that this nuclear-powered vessel will be joining the fleet in 1961. Named Long Beach, she will be approximately 14,000 tons, and some 750 feet long. The first nuclear-powered surface ship in the world, she is also the first cruiser to be designed and constructed from the keel up in the United States since the end of the Second World War. She will be without funnels, but she is to have a large square tower in which will be housed much of her navigation, control and radar equipment. Her armament will reportedly consist almost entirely of guided missiles: Terrier surface-to-air missiles forward, the large and powerful Regulus II surface-to-surface missiles amidships, and Talos surface-to-air missiles aft. It is believed that her missile magazines will have automatic hoisting and loading equipment of a revolutionary type. Long Beach will also have the latest anti-submarine weapons.

Mr. Davis' drawing, based on an official sketch, gives an impression of this notable ship as she may appear on completion. The exact position of her forward launching platform has apparently not yet been finally decided, but the superstructure will probably be chosen as it is higher and less liable to be "washed out" when the ship is in action in a seaway.

City Air Pollution Station Discussed

Two members of the State Health Department staff yesterday conferred with Mayor J. Edwin Keech on air pollution.

Dr. William F. Reindollar, chief of the Industrial Health and Air Pollution division, and a member of his staff came here to see if the City of Cumberland is still interested in an air pollution control station.

Dr. Ton van Strien, county health officer, said the discussion was a preliminary one. He added that the station would cost $2,500 and yearly maintenance costs $300.

The city abandoned its air pollution program several years ago after railroads converted to Diesel power and many homes and businesses went to gas or oil heating.

Bedford Fair Predicts 100,000 Visitors In Aug.

BEDFORD, Pa.—With larger premium lists and greater exhibit space than ever in its long history, the Great Bedford County Fair plans to offer one of its finest shows, attracting more than 100,000 visitors during this Bicentennial year for Fort Bedford.

Because of the attractive premium lists, an increasing number of exhibitors, particularly in livestock divisions, are drawn to the Bedford Fair. It's an adage among them that the quality of exhibits is such that "if you can win at Bedford, you can win anywhere in Pennsylvania." Many top winners at Bedford go on to capture blue ribbons at other state and national expositions.

The livestock exhibits will be highlighted by some of the finest dairy and beef cattle in the Tri-state area, as well as 4-H and F.F.A. displays from a three-county area, including Blair, Bedford and Fulton counties.

Marked by the colorful GAC-Hamid "Satellite Revue" at night, the fair offers a wide variety of entertainment.

Mnday, Aug. 4—Entry day, featuring Jack Kochman's auto daredevils in front of the grandstand at 8:30 p. m. James E. Strates' carnival on the midway.

Tuesday, Aug. 5—First of two Children's Days, with all children admitted free. Harness racing in the afternoon, together with circus and vaudeville acts.

Highlighted by the Four Freshmen, radio and television stars, the first showing of the GAC-Hamid revue, "Satellite Spectacular," will take place Tuesday night, followed by a display of fireworks. The show will continue all week, with Jimmy Dean succeeding the Four Freshmen as the featured star on Thursday and Friday.

Wednesday, Aug. 6—Parade of High School Bands from a five-county area, as well as the Pennsylvania State Police Rodeo in the afternoon, and Satellite Revue at night.

Thursday, Aug. 7—Traditionally the "big day," with harness racing, circus acts, cavalcade of livestock, awarding of trophies and many special events.

Friday, Aug. 8—Second Children's Day, with youngsters again admitted free. Special events will include the 4-H tractor driving contest, and sale of baby beef, with the last day of harness racing scheduled in the afternoon and the Satellite Revue at night.

Saturday, Aug. 9—Auto race day, with world champion drivers competing under the direction of Sam Nunis. The final showing of "Satellite Spectacular" will bring fair week to a close Saturday night.

A new Impala convertible will be given away by the fair management at the close of the evening performance. All gate and grandstand admissions during the week are eligible for the grand prize and the winner must be present.

Circus and vaudeville acts appearing during the week include Natal the Monkey Man, an entertaining novelty act; the Bruxellos, daring acrobats; Rudi Sisters and Co., in a death-defying aerial and flying trapeze act; and the Marthys, a clever balancing act.

In addition, the Navy said, a troop transport—the U.S. Walker—has been ordered out of mothballs "to meet current requirements." It said the maritime administration also has agreed to provide the fleet with two more cargo vessels.

A 23-year-old Keyser youth is in "critical" condition at an Arlington, Va., hospital where he was admitted Saturday following an accident at a Lee Highway service station.

He is a son of James (Spike) Swick of Keyser and Mrs. Mary Frances Ullery who now resides in Monaca, Pa.

Mr. Swick and his wife, the former Miss Margie Smith of Keyser, had recently moved to the Washington area and reside at 1521 North 18th Street in Arlington.

Strong Spots Overshadow Declines In Stock Market

NEW YORK (UPI)—Heavy demand for chemical shares lifted prices in that group as much as 2 points and turned an early loss into another plus on the record—the sixth in a row for the averages, now in new high ground for almost a year.

Routine profit-taking after the recent run-up—climaxed with the best gain of the year Monday—kept prices in most groups irregular throughout the session with a few recent strong spots down a point or more.

The strong spots overshadowed the declines, however. In addition to the chemicals, there were gains in selected oils, tires, metals, machinery issues, and in rails.

Volume continued heavy. Turnover dipped just 20,000 shares below Monday's 3,440,000 total which was best since Jan. 16.

Olin-Mathieson, Crucible Steel, Alleghany Corp., Bethlehem Steel, Monsanto Chemical, North American Aviation, Avco, Commercial Solvents, General Motors, Hooker Electrochemical, U. S. Steel, General Electric, Royal Dutch, Aluminium and Kaiser Aluminum were the most actively traded. Only Alleghany, off ¼ point, and Bethlehem and U. S. Steel, each unchanged, failed to show a gain on the day.

Of a total 1,202 issues traded—broadest market since June 19—430 were higher, 460 lower. There were 113 new highs sets, only one new low—in Westinghouse Electric preferred.

Gains in the chemicals ran to 2 points in Allied, nearly 2 in Dow and Hooker Electrochemical. Union Carbide, Monsanto, American Potash, Commercial Solvents, Olin Mathieson, Vick added a point or more. In the pharmaceuticals Pfizer gained close to 2.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Grain futures prices closed mixed, generally firm to easy on the Chicago Board of Trade Tuesday.

At Chicago, wheat finished off ¼ to 1¼ cents; corn (old) off ½ to 2½ cents; corn (new) off ⅞ to 1⅜ cents; oats off to 3 cents; rye off ¾ to up 1 cent; soybeans off 1 to up 2¼ cents.

Reports of good weather and a cautious waiting for additional international news swung the price pendulum away from an early firmness in most grains. Considerable hedging was noticed in wheat, largely by milling interests. The tendency in corn was toward liquidation with local dealers directing most of the activity.

There was scant optimism that the market would reach much higher than in recent days.

Soybean meal hit an early decline which carried bean trading into a lower register throughout the day. The dip reflected a general selloff in the other grains.

The winter wheat harvest was reported 90 per cent completed in Kansas and more than 50 per cent finished in north-central Colorado. The range:

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

3 hearts	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 clubs	Pass	4 no trump	Pass
5 hearts	Pass	5 no trump	Pass
6 clubs	Pass	6 hearts	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Spade jack.

If I were asked to state in a phrase the most important guide to the successful play of the cards, I would probably offer this: "Make the opposition play before you use your important cards." It is a distinct advantage to play fourth hand to any trick and the one who plays first is under a handicap. South's failure to grasp this principle involved him in a loss which ran into several figures.

Today's bidding was more or less routine. North had ample values for his jump shift and after a temporizing rebid, he embarked on a Blackwood inquiry eventually consigning the hand to a small slam contract in hearts.

The jack of spades was opened. West showed out of trumps on the second round and declarer discontinued the suit. He cashed the ace of clubs and then led over to the king, which was ruffed by East.

Declarer was obliged to lose another club trick and the contract went on the rocks. He had neglected to employ the technique of getting the opposition to play first before using his important card. He should not have permitted the king of clubs to be trumped.

This could have been accomplished in a very simple manner. East is the one open to the suspicion of being short in clubs. The first club should be won with the king, not the ace. Then a low club is led from dummy.

What is East to do? If he ruffs, declarer gives up a little club and his work is over. If East discards as he should, declarer will win with the queen and enter dummy to lead another club, again forcing the enemy to play before he used an important club.

Let us assume that East ducks again. The ace of clubs wins and the 10 of clubs is ruffed with dummy's 5 of trumps. East can overruff but that is the only trick the defense can take.

Boys Obtain Merchandise By Fraud

Charge Items On Customers' Accounts

City police yesterday picked up a local boy, 16, who implicated another 16-year-old in a series of swindles whereby the lads obtained over $130 worth of merchandise from downtown stores under false pretenses.

Members of the detective bureau said yesterday the two boys apparently would find out about accounts at the local stores, would then call the stores pretending to be a customer with an account, and would advise the management that the boys would be in later to charge some merchandise.

The boys then would enter the establishment and pick out various items to be placed on some unsuspecting customer's account.

Most of the merchandise fraudulently charged to others' accounts were clothing and jewelry, detectives said.

The 16-year-old boy was released to the custody of his parents after being questioned yesterday in Police Headquarters. The second boy will be brought in for questioning today, police added.

Meanwhile, the detective bureau is checking to determine if there are other cases of a similar nature involved.

Police said that checking into the background of the first youth revealed the lad also was involved in the theft of an automobile which later was found demolished last March.

The boy admitted he took the car belonging to Robert V. Chisholm, 305 Beall Street, on March 1 when he and another boy drove the vehicle east on U. S. Route 40 toward Flintstone and then wrecked the car on Murley's Branch Road.

The boys were unhurt, although the car was a total loss, police said. The boys hitchhiked their way back to Cumberland.

Investigating the cases are Detectives George Furstenburg and Thomas See and Lt. James E. Van.

Local Laundry To Begin New Self-Service

The Crystal Laundry Company, 201 South Mechanic Street, will put into operation tomorrow a public washing and drying service, according to George M. Young, president of the Company.

Mr. Young said 14 washers and five driers have been installed at the South Mechanic Street location and will be available for public use 24 hours a day after the service is formally opened Monday.

The laundry president said the machines will be in operation free of charge tomorrow, Friday and Saturday from 7:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m.

He said the public is invited to test the new machines during the three-day inspection period. Both the washers and the driers operate on a 30-minute cycle.

The laundry room will have available a soap dispensing machine and a coin changer. A supplementary water softener and water heater also is a part of the new equipment.

The part of the building formerly used for storage and office was reconverted to house the washers and driers.

Similar services have been offered in the West and Southwest and lately have become popular in the Baltimore and Washington areas, Mr. Young said.

Visitors Examine Guam Yearbook

Perdew, a native of Cumberland, who is on the faculty of the Territorial College of Guam, is shown with his wife and 16-year-old son, Paul, while here on their first visit to continental United States in two years. Local Man Educational Pioneer At Guam College

By ALBERT D. DARBY
News Staff Writer

A Cumberland native who previously had taught in public schools of West Virginia and Ohio is now enjoying a rewarding experience as an educational pioneer on the Island of Guam as a member of the faculty of the only college within a 1,500 mile radius.

He is George M. Perdew, son of Arch G. Perdew of this city. He's the third generation of his family to be interested in the teaching profession. His grandfather, for whom he was named, was assistant superintendent of Allegany County public schools at the time of his death in 1916. Although his father was employed by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for nearly 30 years until his retirement in 1948, he also taught in Garrett County at Altamont, Deer Park and Grantsville before giving up teaching in order to support his family by working for the railroad.

Two years ago George M. Perdew went to Guam for the first time to develop the science department of the Territorial College of Guam, which had opened in June 1952. This new college was established under the authority of the Organic Act of Guam and the First Guam Legislature for the purpose of providing educational opportunities for the people of Guam.

8,000 Miles Away

Guam, located in the Western Pacific, 5,000 miles west of San Francisco and 1,500 miles east of Manila, has been a possession of the United States for almost 60 years. It was ceded to this country by the Treaty of Paris December 10, 1898, which ended the Spanish-American War.

Discovered by Magellan in 1521, it was a Spanish possession for more than 360 years. It is the southernmost, largest and most populous in a chain of 17 volcanic islands known as the Marianas.

The real development of Guam as an American possession has come since Congress passed the Organic Act of Guam in 1950, making Guam a territory of the United States and authorizing the establishment of a legislature on the island. The Governor is appointed by the President of the United States.

Before 1950, Guam was considered simply an important United States naval station and was ad-

The request was made after members of the delegation brought Mr. Fleming up to date on wages and working conditions in the departments.

County CD Gets Direct Tie-In With Pikesville

New Civil Defense Equipment Installed

A direct tie-in with Civil Defense headquarters in Pikesville has been established in Allegany County with the installation of equipment in Central Fire Station here.

William G. Barger, county director for Civil Defense, said installation of the equipment was started yesterday by local C&P Telephone Company crews.

The telephone line will be a part of the National Air Warning Alerting System and places Cumberland in the statewide air raid warning network operated by the U. S. Air Force.

Mr. Barger explained that the direct line to Pikesville eliminates the relay of all messages through Hagerstown to the western end of the state. It will shorten the delay time in notification of enemy attack and may even be used as a hurricane warning system, he said.

State headquarters of the Eastern Air Defense Command sends simultaneous messages from Pikesville to all county Civil Defense units, and the direct line to Cumberland will enable Allegany County defense units to receive warnings with the greatest possible speed.

The Central Fire Station was selected as the site of the direct communications setup because its switchboard is manned 24 hours a day.

The county now has a standard notification procedure on all important messages whereby certain key individuals and telephone switchboards throughout the city are notified immediately. These persons and switchboards, in turn, have a set table of calls to be made to alert industries, hospitals, and key Civil Defense personnel with all possible speed.

Meanwhile, Allegany County's Civil Defense headquarters remains responsible for relaying all messages to Garrett County, Mr. Barger said.

Teamsters Local Plans Hearing On Election Dispute

Local 453, Teamsters Union, has been ordered to hold a hearing on an allegation of fraud in the local's 1957 election, according to an Associated Press report from Washington.

The AP said Teamsters headquarters in Washington reported the election was held in January 1957 and that no protest was filed at that time.

A formal protest was filed this April, and the Eastern Conference of Teamsters on July 18 ordered Local 453 to hold a hearing on the protest, the report said.

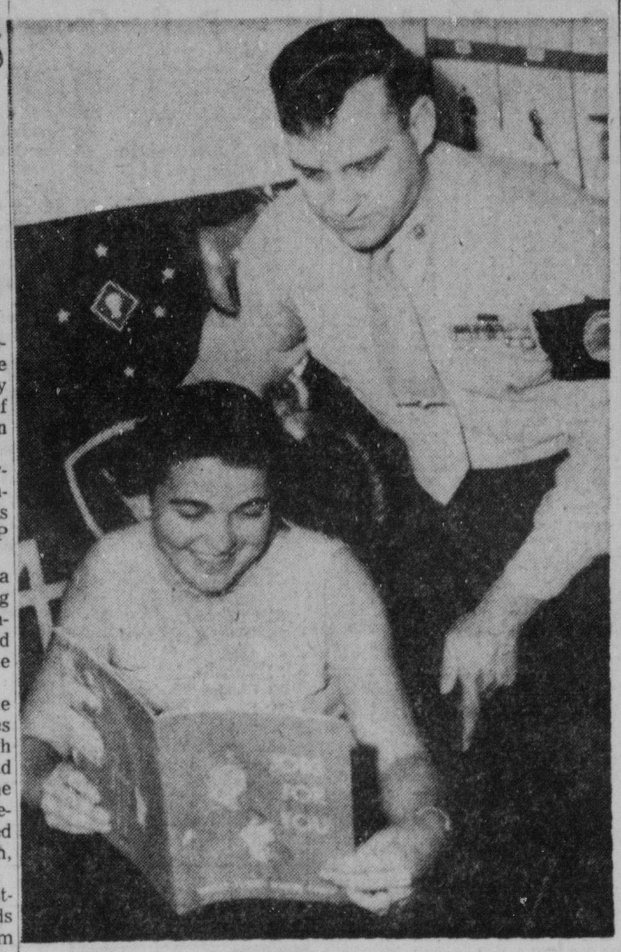

A spokesman for the Cumberland local declined to comment on the protest except to say that the Executive Board will hold a hearing in strict accordance with procedure set up by the union's constitution.

Area Concert Association Formed Here

Membership Drive Slated Sept. 8-13

The Tri-State Community Concert Association was formed here this week to fill a gap in the cultural atmosphere of the Cumberland area.

Peter Lukas was elected president of the association, which was formally organized at a meeting Monday evening in Central YMCA. Other officers are:

Robert M. Hainsfurther, first vice president; Mrs. A. N. Golladay, executive secretary, Mrs. J. M. Pitkethley, assistant executive secretary; Mrs. Mary I. Matthews, correspondent, and Ronald Downey, treasurer.

Drive Is Planned

Edward Eichner was named dinner chairman for the association.

Plans were mapped for a membership campaign to be held throughout the area from September 8 to 13. A kickoff meeting for campaign workers was scheduled September 7.

At least 150 workers are expected to join in the membership campaign throughout the Tri-State area.

Present to outline the agreement, later signed by top officers of the association, was Carl H. P. Dahlgren, Princeton, N. J., a representative of the national office of the Community Concerts organization.

Adopt Constitution

A constitution and by-laws for the new association were also adopted at the organization meeting.

Directors of the association said the primary purpose of the group will be to cultivate in the citizens of Cumberland and its surrounding area interest in good music and to encourage all musical undertakings.

"This new venture," Mr. Lukas said, "will need the support of every music-loving citizen of the Tri-State area. A successful campaign will bring joy and entertainment not only to the few but to music lovers in all communities of this area."

Representatives from Cumberland and Frostburg were present at the meeting. In the future, it is anticipated that Bedford, Keyser, Oakland and Romney and other area communities will be represented.

Youths Admit Shoplifting In Local Stores

Two local youths, 16 and 15 years old, were arrested yesterday and police said they admitted shoplifting over $30 worth of merchandise from various stores in the city.

City police said the pair took fishing equipment, rifle cartridges and other items from two or three business places on Baltimore Street. They later were released to the custody of their parents pending court action in the case.

Local police also wrapped up two other cases in which two large lawn ornaments valued at $20, and two porch vases valued at $14, were stolen and recovered.

Detective Kenneth Morrissey said he located the lawn ornaments and the vases at the home of a local woman.

The lawn ornaments were stolen July 9 from a home on Broadway Circle and the vases were reported taken from a residence on Baltimore Street on July 3.

Morrissey said the woman stated she had found the lawn ornaments in a nearby wooded area and that she had purchased the vases from a youth for $3.

The detective said he later apprehended the youth who admitted taking the vases. No charges, however, have been filed pending further investigation in the case.

Meanwhile, police have received numerous other complaints in the past several days.

The Queen City Neon Company, Oldtown Road, informed police that vandals damaged a large sign valued at $150 on its property.

Saturday, a local taxi driver telephoned police that someone took $9 from him while he was asleep in his cab office, and the same day the Cumberland Ice and Storage Company, Frederick Street, reported somebody attempted to break into a coin box there.

Edward Cramer, 622 Elm Street, reported Monday that his wrist watch, valued at $71.50, was taken at Constitution Park.

House Unit Approves Tax Break For Self-Employed

Legislation Would Defer Retirement Fund Tax Payments

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Ways & Means Committee gave its final approval Tuesday to a bill to grant a special tax break to self - employed persons trying to build retirement funds for their old age.

The measure, which won tentative approval last week, was okayed 18-7 despite strong Treasury Department opposition and charges that it ignored millions of other Americans who do not belong to pension systems.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills (D-Ark.) and six other committee members lined up against the bill, indicating it may face rough going on the House floor. Even if it passes the House, it stands a good chance of getting lost in the Senate in the adjournment rush. That would force sponsors to start all over again next year with a new bill.

The tax relief authorized by the bill would not go into effect until 1959. Thus, it would not apply to tax returns on this year's income which must be filed by next April.

The bill would make eligible for the tax relief all physicians and ministers and all self-employed persons covered by the social security system.

Under the bill, self - employed persons could postpone until age 70 payment of federal taxes on sums placed in retirement trust funds or endowment or annuity policies up to a ceiling of $2,500 a year or a lifetime limit of $50,000.

However, it would limit the maximum tax deferral for persons under 50 to 10 per cent of their income, meaning a person would have to make $25,000 to qualify for the maximum benefit. The income ceiling would be 20 per cent for those over 50 on the theory they have less time to provide for their old age.

Khrushchev Visit Would Pose Major Police Task

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
United Press International

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) —If Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev came to the United Nations for a top-level meeting on the Middle East crisis, his visit would precipitate unprecedented police precautions.

Frank Begley, security chief at U.N., said that Khrushchev "would be handled like any leader of state" — like President Eisenhower, for example.

"If Khrushchev came to New York," said Begley, "We'd have federal and city police, U.S.S.R. agents and U.N. security police protecting him.

"It would be the same if other heads of state came. If Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Great Britain came we'd have the same set up, except we'd have Scotland Yard instead of U.S.S.R. agents. And with Gen. Charles de-Gaulle we'd have the French Surete."

When former President Harry S. Truman came to the U.N. at Flushing Meadows during the Korean war, the authorities parked his train at Belmont and some 1,400 police were strung along the line all the way to U.N. headquarters. A sub-machine gun was mounted on the roof of the U.N. building.

It was announced in the House of Commons Tuesday morning that Macmillan would accept a U. N. summit meeting if Khrushchev wanted to come to the Security Council for a meeting under U.N. auspices.

A U.N. meeting with Khrushchev, however, would not necessarily have to be held in New York. The council is empowered to meet anywhere, at any time. It could go to Geneva where security measures are usually very tight.

If Khrushchev came to New York, he would be tightly guarded every inch of the way. His every move at the U.N. would be put on TV minute by minute, hour by hour.

Begley said that right now at the U.N. there are three "controversial groups" — the Lebanese group and two Iraqi groups, those representing the new and the old regimes.

"We are feeling our way to see how this will jump," Begley explained.

Holmes, Father Of Travelogue, Dies At Age 88

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The father of the travelogue, Burton Holmes, died Tuesday at the age of 88.

Death came as the lean, bearded lecturer slept in a small hilltop home once occupied by matinee idol Francis X. Bushman.

Holmes has been in retirement since 1950 and in failing health for months.

It was nearly seven decades ago that his fascination for photography led to the presentation of the first travelogue in Chicago.

Holmes was nipped by the travel bug in 1886, when he accompanied his grandmother on a trip to Europe. Four years later, he went back with her, taking along a camera.

The Chicago Camera Club, of which he was secretary, was short of funds when he returned in 1890 and he agreed to try to raise funds by showing some of his travel pictures.

Before the showing, he was struck by a novel idea of presentation. Instead of just saying "This is the Milan Cathedral," he wrote a script and narrated the entire production. It was such a success the club hired a hall to present Holmes in his first travel lecture.

For more than a half century thereafter, Holmes combed the world in every conveyance imaginable—from rickshaw to airplane —accumulating material that never rewarded him with riches, but left him richly rewarded.

It was in 1897 that Holmes introduced the motion picture as a vehicle for illustrating travel talks. His first movie series was well received, even though the scenes lasted only 20 seconds each and involved such common adventures as "The Omaha Fire Department responding to an alarm" and "Neapolitans eating spaghetti."

The term "travelogue" was coined by the Burton Holmes organization in 1904 when he made his first appearance in London.

Butler Assured By Eisenhower

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John Marshall Butler (R-Md.) said Tuesday President Eisenhower has assured him a number of the Navy's non-combatant ships will be converted and repaired in private shipyards.

This, he said, will be done to compensate for the repair and conversion work on 43 combatant vessels in government yards. The vessels are destined for transfer from the fleet reserve to friendly nations.

Butler, in a recent letter to the President, asked that at least 50 per cent of the work on the 43 transfer ships be performed in private shipyards. The senator said such a directive would be in keeping with the administration's objective of reducing unfair government competition with private industry.

The President's reply, released by Butler, said the 43 transfer vessels are, in the main, combatant types, and added:

"I must agree with the Navy that their yards are technically better qualified and more experienced in conversion and repair of combatant ships; but even so, in assigning the conversion of these combatant vessels to Navy yards, the Navy will divert work on non-combatant ships to private shipyards.

"This diversion is expected to amount to more than 50 per cent of the work involved in converting the 43 ships. In fact, the Navy anticipates no significant increase in its yard force in the handling of this project."

The number of families with husband and wife working is about one in every four.

Charges Filed Against Stock Manipulator

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—The FBI filed fraud and conspiracy charges Tuesday against Earl Belle, 26-year-old stock manipulator who fled to South America when his 5-million dollar paper financial empire crumpled.

U.S. Attorney Hubert I. Teitelbaum branded the self-styled "voluntary exile" a fugitive along with his side-kick and chum of high school days, Mitchel D. Ostwind, 27.

Belle, who within two years after being graduated from the University of Pittsburgh with honors was the kingpin of an 11-company combine, and Ostwind formally were charged with the interstate transportation and fraudulent conversions of $62,500 worth of checks drawn on a now-closed New Jersey bank.

In addition, Belle was charged with transporting from New York City to Saltsburg, Pa., the small Western Pennsylvania town where the fantastic venture started, a $40,000 check obtained from a New York bank by fraud.

Belle and Ostwind last were reported living in an expensive apartment overlooking Rio de Janeiro's exclusive Copacabana Beach. Teitelbaum said he will seek their return, but admitted how was still problematical. Brazil has no extradition treaty with the U.S.

"They are now fugitives and if they were found any place where they are extraditable, they will be extradited," the government attorney said. "If they are in Brazil what the Brazilian government will do is something we will have to find out."

While the complaint filed Tuesday charged fraudulent conversion of only $102,500, a New York attorney investigating Belle's muddled affairs said he believed as much as 2-million dollars may have been milked from the companies involved in the manipulations.

through diplomatic channels that the Western reply include a specific offer rather than an indirect bid favored by Eisenhower.

Authoritative officials said Eisenhower reluctantly would attend such a session if Khrushchev and Macmillan show up, even though far from convinced it would help ease tensions.

Commission Sets Hearing On SRC Rezoning Request

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — The Anne Arundel County Planning and Zoning Commission will hold a hearing Aug. 7 on the State Roads Commission's application to locate a service area on the Baltimore-Washington Expressway.

Robert O. Bonnell, chairman of the SRC, has requested that a seven-acre tract be rezoned from agriculture to heavy commercial to permit erection of a gas station and restaurant.

The state would lease the facilities to private interests, and it is expected the over-all cost would exceed one million dollars although no such information was included in the rezoning request.

There are no roadside businesses along the expressway, or along other similar controlled - access roads in Maryland. A state-owned, privately-operated system of restaurants and filling stations has been in the planning stages at the SRC for some time.

Maryland officials visited turnpikes in neighboring states to formulate ideas for the type they wished to operate.

The one on the Baltimore-Washington pike would be located about one mile south of Dorsey Road. According to present plans, it would be established on the median strip between the dual lanes.

SRC officials also are understood to be planning assignment of a State Police emergency vehicle to the 50-mile stretch of highway to assist stranded motorists.

Filling station operators on feeder roads connecting with the expressway have voiced opposition to the state leasing plan, and State Sen. Louis N. Phipps (D-Anne Arundel) has been an outspoken critic of the move. He contends it would amount to the state entering a field that should be reserved to private enterprise.

Pigeon With Arrow In Back Still Flies

LOS ANGELES (AP)-Pity the painful plight of this punctured pigeon.

Even though an arrow has pierced his back, it was perched Tuesday on the roof of A. C. Kirkland's home. Occasionally it flew, unimpeded by the shaft, to a street gutter for a drink.

But mostly it just sat.

Kirkland says the fowl has been in this fix for two weeks.

GIs In Lebanon Fire Only In Self-Defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department said Tuesday that American forces operating in Lebanon have strict orders to fire only in their own defense.

A Pentagon spokesman at the daily news briefing made the statement in explaining how it happened that American Marines in the Beirut airport area got involved in a brief exchange of fire with Lebanese gendarmes.

The officer said that the self-defense order had not been applied by U.S. Navy carrier planes in their daily flights over Lebanon and along its coastline.

The officer said that in spite of the reported fact that at least 16 U.S. Navy planes had been hit, by unidentified small arms fire from the ground, there had been no retaliatory strafing by the American airmen.

Lame Bank Bandit Used Three Cars In Getaway

BALTIMORE (AP) — The limping bandit who robbed a Marlow Heights bank of $38,504 last week used a third car in his getaway, authorities said.

The bandit bought a used car in Aberdeen for about $250 and also purchased new tires for it. He switched license plates from a rented car he had brought from South Carolina, and made good his escape.

Authorities explained this development in the case Tuesday, adding that it was 24 hours after the used car purchase before they were aware of the gunman's move.

The lame bandit who robbed the First National Bank of Southern Maryland at Marlow Heights last week fled in the station wagon of the branch manager. He transferred to a car with South Carolina plates which he had rented July 1.

According to investigators, the fugitive abandoned that auto last Wednesday afternoon off U. S. 40 in Aberdeen and bougnt another vehicle.

A witness told of seeing a man in a gray suit, blue hat and wearing dark glasses leave the car. He was carrying an object believed to be a brief case full of stolen money.

However, the witness was unaware of the robbery that had occurred in Prince Georges County.

Boating Accident Claims Boy's Life

EASTON, Md. (AP) — Doctors worked throughout the night in an effort to save a 13-year-old boy injured in a boating accident but he died early Tuesday.

Police said Edward Hamilton Boyd III was thrown from a boat and his head struck a water ski ramp on Miles River Monday.

He was the son of Edward H. Boyd and Sheila Boyd of Rollyston Farm, near St. Michaels, and Easton.

Police said a companion riding with young Boyd, Jimmy Wilson 13, of St. Michaels, told them Edward leaned over to adjust the motor, and fell into the water as the boat hit the ski ramp.

The Wilson boy went to his rescue.

Edward's heart stopped and doctors got it beating again about 6 p.m. but he died at 4:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Cabbie Uses Taxi To Catch Assailant

BALTIMORE (AP) — A cabbie who was conked on the head used his taxi to corral one of his young assailants and pinned him against a fence until police arrived.

Harry Komins, 48, told police he picked up two teen-age fares Monday night and the boys directed him to drive to a certain street. There, Komins was hit on the head with a blunt object.

He regained consciousness to see one of the boys running away. Komins gave chase in his cab and managed to pin the 17-year-old against a fence in an alley until police came. The boy was treated at a hospital for stomach injuries and returned to police custody.

Bainbridge Suggested As Atom School Site

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee Tuesday turned down a Navy request for $1,368,000 to build a nuclear power school at the Great Lakes Naval Training Center near Chicago.

The committee suggested use of existing, inactive Naval facilities, specifically mentioning the Bainbridge, Md., Naval Training Center.

During consideration of the request, Rep. Charles Raper Jonas (R-NC) argued the school should be on the East Coast, where nuclear powered ships are being built. Navy spokesmen adovated a Midwest site.

Rainy Summer Season Helps Crops In State

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Many Maryland crops have been making excellent headway during this generously rainy summer season.

The Delaware - Maryland Crop Reporting Service here said Tuesday soybeans give indications of an outstanding crop coming up. Lima beans, cucumbers and sweet corns are producing good harvests.

A few watermelons have been picked and the Eastern Shore cantaloupe crop is about to start moving to market.

In the orchard belt of Western Maryland, Transparent and Lodi apple harvests are just about complete.

Picking of Jerseyland peaches is expected to start this week. Golden Jubilee and Redhaven peaches will go to market about Aug. 1.

Meanwhile, tobacco growers in Southern Maryland reported the crop so important to economy in that area is giving every indication there will be a good yield.

Grain harvesting has been retarded in the wet weather. Very little wheat was combined last week, and harvest in North-Central Maryland is about two weeks behind schedule. Only about 60 per cent of the wheat crop was in compared with a full harvest at this time last year.

Spring oats are about two to three weeks behind schedule. About 45 per cent of the second alfalfa cutting was completed west of the bay.

Smuggling Of Knife, Gun Into Jail Probed

BALTIMORE (AP)—An investigation continued Tuesday into the smuggling of a loaded pistol and a knife into a cell at City Jail.

Warden Charles Price said the weapons were found after a screen in the visitors' room was discovered cut.

He said the 4 by 5 inch L-shaped break apparently was made during the Friday afternoon visitor hours but it wasn't discovered until Saturday morning.

A search turned up the .38 pistol and the knife in a cell occupied by three prisoners awaiting trial.

Use Of Prison Labor At Courthouse Halted

HAGERSTOWN (AP)—Prisoners from the county jail won't be used for cleaning and maintenance work around the courthouse any more.

It's not a reflection on their work, but their honesty. Officials have reported money and other property missing from desks, cabinets and personal belongings of employes.

The Washington County Board of Commissioners Tuesday ordered a halt to the practice of using prison labor at the courthouse. Meanwhile, the sheriff is running lie detector tests on the men.

Prisoners may volunteer for outside labor and are paid 50 cents a day. Some have been used on county road jobs.

CHAPLIN WILL MARRY

ST. JEAN - CAP FERRAT, France (UPI) —Sydney Chaplin, actor son of comedian Charlie Chaplin, and French ballerina Noelle Adam announced Tuesday that they will be married soon. It was the third time the 34-year-old Chaplin has announced marriage plans. Previously, he had announced intentions of marrying British screen star Joan Collins and comedienne Judy Holliday.

Swift Indictment Of Bride Slaying Suspect Sought

DENTON, Md. (AP)—The Caroline County grand jury will meet in special session Thursday to consider a murder indictment against a 26-year-old ex-convict charged with strangling a young Eastern Shore bride to death.

James A. Wise, state's attorney, requested the special session and said he would seek swift indictment and trial of Clayton E. Breeding in the case.

Breeding was arrested Monday in Newark, Del., ending a manhunt which began three weeks ago when the body of Mrs. Ruth Ellen Cannon, 19-year-old expectant mother, was found in a wooded area near her Burrsville, Md. home.

Mrs. Cannon had been missing for two days before her body was found June 30.

Breeding was in custody of Maryland State Police at Easton, who were questioning him and planned to transfer him to a jail somewhere in the area. Sheriff William Andrew said he would not be held here because of what he described as an "explosive" situation over the case.

In proportion to population, there are five times as many automobiles in the United States as in Great Britain.

House Group Cuts Navy Academy Fund

WASHINGTON (AP)—Construction projects totaling $42,701,000 have been approved by the House Appropriations Committee for ten Army, Navy and Air Force installations in Maryland.

The U. S. Naval Academy would receive the largest amount, $12,200,000 for expansion of Bancroft Hall, the midshipman dormitory. The committee lopped $2,000,000 off the amount the Navy had requested.

Among other amounts approved was $1,187,000 for Ft. Detrick.

"Missing" Dynamite Caps Cause Jitters

HAGERSTOWN (AP)—A report of 850 highly sensitive dynamite caps missing from a road construction project aroused a case of jitters here Tuesday.

However, a man in charge of the blasting material for the Wright Construction Co., Benjamin Smith, calmed things down by revealing he had moved the dynamite to another project. He had neglected to notify the foremen on the building job for the U.S. Route 11 by-pass.

Law enforcement officers had broadcast warnings and were concerned that their own radio waves would touch off the dynamite caps. A company spokesman said there was that possibility.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Be Organized

On your trip nothing makes you look or feel better than the reflection of an air of confidence. The most simple way to achieve this is to be well organized.

When traveling by automobile, stop early enough in the late afternoon so you can do a few things for yourself. You won't be too exhausted and the whole group will be happier.

Take time out to have a leisurely bath (or swim for those who like that) and even a short nap before dinner.

After dining there'll be time to do your laundry, fix your nails and put up your hair (if this is a daily ritual with you) if you stopped earlier enough for your overnight stay.

Try to get at least seven hours of sleep each night — preferably more if you require it.

Take clothes that won't crush easily. These are easy to find now that fabrics are specially treated to resist mussing and wrinkles.

It's wise to take time now and then to rearrange the luggage, straighten the glove compartment and sweep out the car.

Leave your everyday thinking and doing at home. Set free your curiosity, understanding and enthusiasm. Take it easy. You'll be charmed with your travels—and charming.

Consultants Would Triple Medical Research Outlay

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of special consultants said recently that spending on medical research in this country should be tripled to about one billion dollars a year by 1970.

"The world is experiencing a scientific and technological revolution that will leave no aspect of human life untouched," they said. "Medical research, like other areas of science, will become broader in dimension and more penetrating in depth."

The consultants, working under assignment from the Health and Welfare Department, urged that the cost, with private idustry and philanthropy taking care of the rest.

Last year the federal government paid out approximately 90 million and private philanthropy accounted for 35 million. The total for the three was 311 million dollars.

The consultants' report said an effort of the magnitude they proposed would require increasing the number of physicians and other scientists engaged in medical research from 20,000 now to 45,000 by 1970.

As a major step in this direction they urged the construction of 14 to 20 new medical schools at a cost of from 500 million to one billion dollars.

The consultants who prepared the report included 10 prominent medical educators and industry research executives headed by Dr. Stanhope Bayne-Jones, former dean of the Yale University School of Medicine. The group was appointed by Marion Folsom, secretary of health, education and welfare, about a year ago to advise him on longterm needs in medical research and education.

"The expension of medical research and education required in the national interest will be costly and should not be restricted by lack of funds," the 117-page report said.

The report offered no specific recommendations on who would finance the construction of new medical schools, but asserted:

"Unless there is a marked change in social philosophy leading to private gifts or state appropriations on an unprecedented scale, large federal appropriations will be required."

Pretty Chemist Labors 10 Years To Find Safe Means Of Poison Ivy Immunization

By MARY PRIME
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—What is one man's poison ivy is Margaret Strauss' meat.

For 10 years, she worked on a safe and painless method of immunization against ivy poisoning. The result of her labors, a preparation called "Aqua Ivy," has just been made available commercially in tablet form.

The pretty research chemist is director of one of the nation's largest allergy laboratories at University Hospital, which is connected with New York University. She also is on the staff of the New York Post Graduate Medical College.

A native of Baltimore, she worked eight years in the chemical division of the Johns Hopkins Medical Department where she began her study of poison ivy.

Wherever she goes, Miss Strauss keeps her eye open for the plant.

Still Wears Gloves

"There's a wonderful specimen at the golf course where I play—stems are half an inch thick," she said.

Once she nearly was arrested for picking a "fine stand" of ivy, but she lectured the state trooper and was ordered to clear out all the leaves.

About 80 per cent of the population reacts to primary irritants such as poison ivy, which is not a true allergen, she said. Most of us can become sensitive with sufficient exposure, but Miss Strauss is one of the few with a natural immunity to the stuff. She has gathered bushels of it, ground the leaves in a meat grinder and baked them in an oven, but she always wears gloves "just in case."

"I've gotten to the stage where I think poison ivy is pretty. I want to plant some at home, so I'll always be able to get it," she said in an interview.

Helps Allergy Victims

As lab director, Miss Strauss also supervises the making of several hundred other extracts a year for testing patients with allergies.

"Our place looks more like a kitchen than a lab. We make every kind of fruit and vegetable extract available, plus extracts of meat, fish and cereal. We get food in by the crate," she said.

The lab's most important work is done with inhalents, such as pollen, dust, feathers and animal dander. Botanists bring in pollen, and all patients are asked to contribute vacuum cleaner dust.

"We try to get dust from every possible household. Of course, some snooty women insist they don't have dust in their homes," said Miss Strauss.

"Once we got a package of smelly deer skins from a doctor who was testing a hunter. Then there was the woman who was sensitive to mink and sent in her fur coat.

"I told the doctor I'd take the coat and relieve her of the allergy altogether."

Winner In 250 Contests Offers Some Inside Tips

By GARBER DAVIDSON

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Did you ever have a yen to win one of those jingle or slogan contests where the prize, say, is $25,000 or a trip to Paris?

Mrs. Nita Parks, a Pasadena, Calif., housewife, got the yen when she first moved to Muncie, Ind., in 1950 and was lonely and bored in the new town.

She started working contests. Since then she has won $40,000 has had winning entries in more than 250 contests.

Now she's willing to pass along a few inside tips.

"These contests are not won by luck," she warns at the outset, "but by really trying, studying, working and knowing what you are doing."

Strangely enough, she can't give you the winning combination for a limerick line that won her biggest prize, $25,000 in 1951 from a soap company.

She completed this limerick:

"My housekeeping now is a treat,
"I live at No. 1 Easy Street.
"I now work and play the Easy
Street way,
"....."

She can't divulge that last line, because she had to sign an affidavit not to. This protects the company from having it appropriated and also, strangely, the limerick that the company paid $25,000 for has never been used in its advertising.

Mrs. Parks said the companies seldom use the winning slogan or jingles.

"The contests are strictly for advertising purposes to sell the company's products," she explained in an interview Saturday during a convention of contesters.

"The companies are not really interested in the slogans. They have advertising men to do that work."

As for winning, she gives these tips:

1. Follow the rules to the letter.
2. "Sincerity is perhaps the next thing. You should find out about the product and be sincere about it."
3. Originality. "Perhaps you can find a different word, one not usually associated with this product."
4. Aptness. You should be specific about what this product will do, not just about the general line of products in this field.
5. Be brief.
6. Slant. You should slant a slogan or jingle for a particular set of judges. The information as to what agency's judging board is to decide a contest is printed on the contest blank. The trick is to know if the particular judges in the contest prefer their slogans clever, or want them simple, or like puns, etc.

Mrs. Parks says there are various aids, such as contest books, magazines and even two correspondence courses on the subject. She has written a book, "How to Win a Fortune," published last year.

Asked for an example of a good slogan winner, she recited the following—not her own—submitted in a recent contest for a night-time safety driving slogan:

"Budget your speed after dark and live within your beams."

Water Being Conserved Through Use Of Meters

Water conservation through the use of meters instead of flat rates is revealed in the Water Department's annual report of consumption for the fiscal year 1957-58.

Water Commissioner G. Ray Light and Chief Clerk Andrew G. Bender released the report yesterday.

Water delivered to the city from the Lake Gordon dam totaled 4,262,310,000 gallons. This included 1,939,503,500 for industrials and 2,322,806,500 for domestic users.

The total figure represented better than 100,000,000 less water use than during the previous fiscal year of 1956-57, Bender said, adding that a major portion of the saving was effected through the removal of flat rates and placing these users on metered rates.

During 1956-57, total consumption was 4,379,300,000 gallons including 1,924,204,500 industrial and 2,455,095,500 domestic.

In 1956-57, Bender said there were 1,548 flat rate users. This has been reduced to 900 as of July 1, this year.

Father Dies In Fire Near Slanesville

The father of five children was burned to death late Saturday night in his one-room dwelling on West Virginia Route 45 near Slanesville.

West Virginia State Police at Romney, who investigated, said the fire victim was Lorenzo Roberson, 58.

Police said Roberson resided in the one-room frame dwelling by himself. It is believed he started a fire in his small cook-stove and the dwelling caught fire.

Volunteer firemen from Paw Paw and Slanesville answered the call, but the building was destroyed when firemen arrived.

After the building had "cooled" off police found the remains of Roberson.

He was born near Augusta, W. Va., in Hampshire County and was unemployed at the time of his death.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Mary Roberson, who resides with a daughter in Martinsburg, W. Va., and four other children.

The body was taken to the McKee Funeral Home in Augusta where services were conducted Monday. Interment was in the Augusta Cemetery.

Local Man Elected Head Of State 40&8 Society

RICHARD REID

Richard A. (Dick) Reid, 72 Marion Street, has been elected grand chef de gare of the Forty & Eight Society of the State of Maryland.

Reid was elected and installed at the grand promenade over the weekend at the Lord Baltimore Hotel in Baltimore.

This marks the first time since the early 1930s that a Cumberland man has been elected to the top office in the society.

Reid is also the first World War II veteran to hold the highest state office.

Reid has been a member of Voiture 164 of Cumberland for the past six years and has held a number of local and state offices.

He is the immediate past grand chef de train, a past grand cheminot locale and past grand commis voyaguer. In the local organization, Reid served as chef de gare and cheminot locale.

As head of the state organization, Reid will travel approximately 5,000 miles during the coming year visiting the various organizations in Maryland, the Middle Atlantic States and nearby West Virginia.

Other local men being elected to state offices at the convention were as follows:

Paul C. Weisenmiller, 532 North Centre Street, grand commis voyaguer; Robert Ferree, Eckhart, grand cheminot; Edward J. Rider, 409 Beall Street, sous grand correspondent; Charles H. Local Labor To Work On Navy Project

The House Appropriations Committee yesterday in Washington recommended that $63,500,000 be provided for construction of a Naval Research Laboratory at Sugar Grove, W. Va., about 25 miles west of Harrisonburg, Va.

A number of local building trades will supply some labor for the gigantic project, it was learned.

The radio telescope facilities are planned to speed the electronic exploration of space, according to details released some weeks ago. The facility would be located on a 1,500-acre tract on Little Fork Creek in the foothills of the Shanandoah Mountain and border on George Washington National Forest. A Dayton, Va., company was awarded the contract for first structures on the site June 27.

Information about the radio research laboratory is secret, but the official announcement by the Navy said bids will be offered late this summer for the prime contractor. The Kennedy Company of Cohasset, Mass., will build the 60-foot antenna which will be the core of the radio telescope.

An Associated Press dispatch earlier said the observatory will also serve as a jamming-free military transmitter for bouncing signals off the planets to distant points around the earth.

City Officials Kept Busy By Budget Work

The Finance Department and others of the city are concentrating efforts toward preparation of proposed budgets for the 1958-59 fiscal year and Commissioner Lucile Roeder repeated yesterday she had asked commissioners to submit their budgets by August 1.

Conferences have been instituted by the department with city officials including Mayor J. Edwin Keech, City Attorney William R. Carscaden and City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson. Budgets from last year are being scanned and officials are familiarizing themselves with the procedure necessary to prepare the overall budget.

Other conferences are being held. Yesterday, for example, Mrs. Roeder and Water Commissioner G. Ray Light discussed in general terms the insurance setup on facilities at Lake Gordon.

Mrs. Roeder said she has also received bids from four companies on tax bill forms which will go out in September. Since the cost of the bill forms will be under $500, an order by the Mayor and Council is not necessary, it was pointed out.

The population of Sweden is about seven million.

Local Youth Gets Scholarship

Robert W. Powell, 19, of 431 Grand Avenue, has been awarded a four-year senatorial scholarship to the Johns Hopkins University School of Engineering in Baltimore, according to an announcement yesterday by State Sen. Charles M. See.

Powell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Powell, is a 1957 graduate of Fort Hill High School. While at Fort Hill, he was a member of the varsity football and track teams and active in boys' Hi-Y.

Powell recently completed six months' Army service, receiving basic training at Fort Knox, Ky., and then a course at Military Intelligence School, Fort Holabird, Md.

Powell said he is to report to Johns Hopkins September 16. He is employed for the summer at Mayfair Laundry.

Bids Are Requested For Local School

Sealed proposals will be received until August 15 at 10:30 a. m. by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners for the sale of the old Maryland Avenue School.

The building, which has been vacant for many years and is in a bad state of repair, was used for several years after World War II as a GI trade school. The deed to the property has been turned over to the county by the Board of Education.

Suit Is Docketed Against Coal Firm

Suit was docketed in Allegany County Circuit Court yesterday by the Arrowhead Company, Inc., of Duluth, Minn., against the Howell Coal Company and Henry Leroy Davis, both of this city.

The declaration stated that the Arrowhead firm had contracted with the Howell Company to haul a large trailer from Polish Mountain to Cumberland on April 29, 1958.

It was stated that Davis, an employe or agent of the Howell company, hooked the tractor onto the trailer in a negligent manner and when he pulled out the trailer overturned.

It is alleged that the trailer was damaged and the driver's expenses due to the delay while the trailer was being repaired and other costs resulted through no fault of the plaintiff. Damages of $3,000 are being asked.

At least seven billion acres of the earth's surface is forested.

Harry Skelly Is Named New Roads Supervisor

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday approved the appointment of two County Roads Department officials who had been listed as qualified for their posts by the Civil Service Commission.

They are Harry S. Skelly, of LaVale, who will become supervisor of the Roads Department on August 1 to succeed J. Walker Chapman, who is retiring.

Joseph Price will become foreman of the Little Orleans-Oldtown section of the Roads Department. He will replace Roy Smith, who retires July 31 after many years with the department. Smith is the oldest department employe in point of service.

The appointment of Skelly was not unanimous as Commissioner Charles N. Wilkinson voted against approval stating that the post should have been filled by an engineer and the examination should have been open.

Skelly and Price were the only applicants for the promotional examination and were given the tests last Friday night to determine if they met qualifications of the Civil Service Commission.

Skelly has been the assistant supervisor for some years and with the department since 1947. Price, who worked on the Big Inch pipe line and Pennsylvania Turnpike projects, has also been with the department for some years.

Skelly is a veteran of the Air Force during World War II and was a technical sergeant. He will assume his new post August 1 with the classification of Grade 1.

An examination will be conducted by the Civil Service Commission to select a successor to Skelly as assistant supervisor.

LaVale Road Job Contract Is Awarded

The State Roads Commission has awarded the contract for Route 40 project in LaVale and has given another contractor notice to proceed on a phase of the industrial boulevard of the Cumberland Thruway.

G. Bates Chaires, district engineer for the SRC, said the S. T. Brotemarkle Construction Company of this city has been awarded the widening and resurfacing job on Route 40 in LaVale.

This project runs from the intersection of Route 40 with Route 36, (the Mt. Savage Road), to Long, a distance of nearly one mile. The cost will be $363,810, Chaires added.

In other action of the State Roads Commission, the Cumberland Contracting Company was given the notice to proceed on the phase of the industrial boulevard leading from the Route 51 bridge over Evitts reek and through the Mapleside section to Virginia and Laing Avenues.

The cost will be $779,305.56, Chaires noted. It covers 1.83 miles.

The district engineer also reported that the Central Pennsylvania Quarry, Stripping and Construction Company is blacktopping its project on the west slope of and top of Polish Mountain.

It is expected that this work will be completed by the end of the summer or by early fall.

Much road work is being continued this summer. Busy spots are at the Evitts Creek concrete, three-span bridge; Polish Mountain, and Route 36 from Route 40 2.956 miles through Corriganville, and on Route 40 between existing and the relocated Route 36.

Work in progress in Garrett County is as follows:

Grading, draining, widening, reing Route 219 from Gortner northerly to Oakland, 4.036 miles; Route 135 from Mountain Lake Park westerly to Oakland, 1.753 miles.

Grading, draining, wideing, relocating and resurfacing of Route 135 from Deer Park to Mountain Lake Park, 3.371 miles and Route 135, Swanton-Bloomington Road, fro mthe Allegany County line westerly 2.66 miles.

Building Permits Issued By City

The city building engineer has issued two permits.

BPO Elks Lodge 63 obtained a permit to construct a 46 by 9-foot adidtion to its home on South Centre Street. The brick structure will cost an estimated $800.

John H. Fossett of 5 Utah Avenue obtained a permit to construct a dwelling at 1111 Michigan Avenue. The building will have concrete block foundation, brick veneer walls, asphalt shingle roof and is estimated to cost $9,000.

County Board Approves Court Clerk Pay Raise

The salary of Robert Thomas, court reporter for Allegany County Circuit Court, yesterday was increased to $5,070 per year by the Board of Allegany County Commissioners.

He had been receiving $4,070 for his work in the court here and and additional $1,000 for similar work when the Garrett County Circuit Court was in session.

Approval of the salary raise was made on the recommendation of Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris. The letter of Judge Harris said that Thomas' salary is below that received by court reporters in the Second Judicial Circuit and for Baltimore City and other metropolitan areas. The Second Judicial Circuit pays its reporters $6,000 annually.

Judge Harris also pointed out that there are indications that the Circuit Court for Garrett County may employe a full-time court reporter in the near future.

The court reporter is appointed by the judges and the salary recommendations are made to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners which formally approves such requests. The law requires compliance with the judge's request.

After the board received a number of reports from J. Walker Chapman, county roads supervisor, on road requests, action was taken by the commissioners.

A request for the county commissioners to pay George J. Heinrich, Ford Avenue, Potomac Park, the sum of $300 for materials and work in repairing that roadway was rejected.

Chapman reported the road was not in the county system. The board also stated the work had not been authorized by the board and was the responsibility of Heinrich.

Chapman also reported that Poplar Street, Westernport, for which repairs had been asked, is not a county road. No work was authorized for this road.

Chapman also told the board that residents of the Woodland section near Midland have been installing concrete pipe in a ditch and they want the county to construct a catch basin to carry off the water.

Chapman said the catch basin would also drain water from the county road and would be an improvement at that point. He said the residents of Woodland are installing the concrete pipe at their own expense. The board authorized the installation of the catch basin.

The Bowling Green Fire Company's request for closing Walnut Street between the Fire Hall and McMullen Highway during the organization's festival the week of July 28 was granted.

Chapman said there are other exits and entrances to the area near the Fire Hall and the work the group does in fire protection is a worthy one. The county will furnish the barricades for the street closing.

Chapman also reported a request of last week concerning a drainage situation in the Barton area on the old Shaw farm should have gone to the State Roads Commission district office. The property in question is not near any county road, Chapman said.

City Receives Plans For Housing Project

The city has received site plans for the third low-rent housing project planned by the Cumberland Housing Authority, according to Mayor J. Edwin Keech.

Plans have been turned over to City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum.

The third project, to be constructed on a triangular plot bounded by Cresap Street, Oldtown Road and Thomas Street, will contain 80 units, according to James B. Raines, executive director of the Authority.

Nuzum said plans were prepared by S. Russ Minter, local architect.

Tuesday, August 5 at 2 p. m., a meeting will be held in Mayor Keech's office to discuss the new housing project and its relationship with "Line C"—the Industrial Boulevard—phase of the Cumberland Thruway project.

To be discussed are relocation of existing utilities and from the city standpoint, the abandoning of present sewers in the area. Some houses have already been razed in the area and others have been purchased and will be torn down, Nuzum said.

Representatives from the State Roads Commission will attend the meeting along with those from C&A Gas Company, C&P Telephone Company, Potomac Edison Company, Housing Authority, Engineering, Water and Street departments and the Mayor and Council.

Man Killed Instantly By Freight Train

A 45-year-old Terra Alta man who was killed instantly Sunday night when struck by a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad train east of the Hopemont crossing in Preston County, W. Va., was identified late Monday.

West Virginia State Police, who investigated, identified the victim as Delbert Likens of Terra Alta. Police said the man was married and had several children. His body is at the Fike-Watson Funeral Home in Terra Alta.

J. T. Dailey Jr., prosecuting attorney for Preston County, said Likens was killed when struck by Train No. 97 hauling 89 cars from Cumberland to St. Louis.

Dailey said the engineer stated he saw something that looked "like a keg of nails" on the tracks, but did not see it in time to stop the train.

After striking the object the train crew went back and found Likens' body.

Husbands Strive To Recoup Much Of Domestic Authority

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

American husbands, reputedly shorn of much of their domestic authority, seem to be trying to get it back.

And in many cases, the wives say they'd like for the men to reassume their old job as master of the house.

These tendencies — among couples of all faiths — were reported today by Roman Catholic leaders who have made intensive studies in the field.

"There's a trend for men to reassert their position of leadership," said the Rev. Kenneth J. Dolgan, church family-life director of Scranton, Pa.

"Year by year, more fathers are beginning to take the initiative as head of the home."

But it's a tough struggle for them to recoup, as the analysts see it, in view of how far U.S. husbands have gone in losing their traditional role of steering the family.

"They've lost it, that's obvious," said the Rev. Bertin Roll, of Pittsburgh, national director of the church's Christian Mothers Organization.

And the women, he added, have taken over many rightful functions of the men — often necessarily — and usually to their own disillusionment.

"Men have got so absorbed with success in their careers, they don't have time for the home," said Dr. A. H. Clemens, a noted sociologist and marriage counseling authority of Catholic University, Washington.

"They've passed the buck to their wives all down the line."

The upshot, he added, is what the social scientists all modern America's matriarchy — rule of women.

Both men and women, however, are frustrated and basically distressed by the situation, the church scholar said — a result of upsetting the natural order of the sexes as set by God.

The views were expressed in interviews this week at the National Catholic Family-Life Convention in Buffalo, N.Y.

Dr. Clemens said many women were reacting to the switched man-women pattern "with rank rebellion, by turning to drink, nagging and becoming hypercritical of their husbands and children."

Numerous factors were cited as causing the blurred lives of demarkation in male-female roles in the home, including World War II, when many women took jobs, with others since joining the country's labor ranks — now one-third female.

But a main, fundamental cause given was the intensified pursuit of money.

"Our society now equates success in terms of dollars," Dr. Clemens said. "This wasn't true years ago. Men were judged by over-all performance. Now, a fine father who is poor gets little acclaim. But a second-rate father who is a financial success gets society's pat on the back.

"The result is that men have become so preoccupied with career and business they've forgotten their basic job is the family. They've inflated their success at the office, and deflated their success at home."

Father Roll said women, by learning to drive cars, furthered the process. Men used to hold the wheel, he said, but now "women are scott free. They go where they please, and get into all sorts of things."

Conference To Halt Something Only He Would Start Sought By Khrushchev

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

The Anglo-American decision not to intervene in Iraq unless the new government there seeks to abrogate the country's oil contracts has greatly lessened the possibility of war in the Middle East.

It leaves Nikita Khrushchev asking for a conference to stop something that only he would start.

The background of Khrushchev's message proposing a top-level conference on the Middle East would have required the Allies, if they agreed, to admit that they had done something threatening world peace.

Their position is that if the Soviet Union wishes to make such charges, she can do so before the U.N. Security Council, a world authority set up for the very purpose of hearing them.

The logic of the Allied position is, indeed, a little tenuous. Britain and the United States acted outside the U.N., though within the limits of its charter, on the ground that there was no time.

Now they want to go back to the world organization, and Khrushchev says there is no time.

The Allies have it on their side, however, that physical events were actually rolling in the Middle East when they moved. Since then the waves of action have slowed, at least temporarily.

The Baghdad government has avowed its intention of keeping open the Western access to the oil.

There is a certain logic in the belief in some quarters that Egypt's Nasser realizes an East-West conflict in the Middle East would submerge him and his Arab internationalist movement. He also knows that, once in the area, the Soviet Union would never get out any more than she has out of Eastern Europe.

The position of the Hussein government in Jordan has been temporarily secured, and the Western powers have deterred any idea the King might have had of staking his small forces against the Baghdad army.

Turkey is reported to have been similarly restrained from a first reaction that she should move into Iraq in self-defense.

That leaves the Soviets to choose between very risky intervention and the appearance, for once, of being a paper tiger. The Allies realize fully that to put her in such a position is dangerous.

That is why they are now publicizing their realization that when Middle Eastern settlement time comes the Soviet Union will have to be in on it.

They want to ease the strain on the Kremlin at the same time they want to halt its exploitation of Arab nationalism.

But they won't want to let the Soviet Union appear before the world as the only peacemaker in the Middle East.

Army Releases Math Genius

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — A university professor said Monday night the Army granted a special discharge to a private whose mathematical genius the professor insisted the Army was misusing.

Dr. Carl C. Lindegren, director of biological research at Southern Illinois University, stirred up a controversy last fall with charges the talents of Pvt. Ernest Shult, his former student, were being wasted.

Following Lindegren's complaints, the Army transferred Shult, 25, from clerk-typist duties at Ft. Lee, Va., to the Army Chemical Center in Edgewood, Md.

Lindegren said Monday night he recently wrote Maj. Gen. Herbert M. Jones, adjutant general complaining Shult was still misplaced in the Army and was needed for more important research.

Shult telephoned Lindegren to report he will return to SIU in two weeks, the professor said.

Lindegren said Shult's release is "in the public interest." The professor plans to use Shult's talents in a series of experiments dealing with heredity and cancer.

"He is essential to the continued productivity of the laboratory," Lindegren declared.

Shult is a native of Fairbury, Ill.

Due Bill

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The artist who painted a portrait of former Wisconsin Gov. Walter Goodland more than 10 years ago is finally getting paid for it.

Goodland died after he commissioned Christian Abrahamson, Chicago artist, to do the painting. The canvas went into storage at the capitol here and over the years Abrahamson sought payment from the state which finally approved a $2,500 settlement.

The painting now will hang in the executive offices.

Lot Of New Faces Will Be In Congress No Matter What Happens In November

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP)—No matter what happens in the fall elections, a lot of new faces will be seen around Congress.

Already 6 senators and 31 representatives have said they have had it. And more may drop out voluntarily—or be wiped out in the remaining 25 state primaries.

What's the matter, gentlemen, ladies? Has Congress lost its appeal?

Well, no. As so frequently is true, the figures are a mite deceiving. Six representatives, for instance, who will not run for re-election in the House, still hope to be around Congress next January as senators.

One senator, William F. Knowland (R), wants to stay in the thick of politics, as governor of California. It's a historical truth that a governor has a much better chance to become president than a senator has.

One representative, James P. Devereux (R), hopes to be governor of Maryland. Another, Pat Hillings (R), would like to be California's attorney general. Still another, Henry J. Latham (R-NY) may wind up as a federal judge.

But a sizable group simply is dropping out. Roll Call, a newspaper published on Capitol Hill, has made a study of congressional casualty lists, and says this is the largest in recent years.

Certainly the Senate presents an unusual and, for the Republicans, bleak picture. All six who are retiring are Republicans, each has served at least two terms and so has worked his way up the Senate's seniority ladder.

Some of the congressmen who are dropping out:

Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-NJ) a senator for 14 years. Only 11 senators have served longer.

Rep. Thomas A. Jenkins (R-Ohio), in Congress since March 4, 1925.

Rep. Charles A. Wolverton (R-NJ), here since March 4, 1927, and Rep. Richard Wigglesworth (R-Mass), here since Nov. 6, 1928.

Why are they quitting? A number of reasons: old age; health that's not too good; opposition that's far too good. Sens. Smith and Edward Martin (R-Pa) are 78; Reps. Jenkins and Wolverton are 77.

One fact that makes retirement easier to take is a congressional pension system that, for those who have been here more than 30 years, may pay out as much as $18,000 annually.

But lest anyone get the idea Congress really has lost its allure, there is a description, read into the record by Rep. Robert L. F. Sikes (D-Fla), of a strange disease known as "kongressionitis."

"As the disease becomes chronic, graver symptoms appear: Delusions of grandeur, the feeling that his words will change the world and that all who contradict him are persecutors; highly contagious; treatment consists of isolation, silence," he said.

"Cures are unfortunately only temporary and recidivation"—that's a relapse—"is always to be feared."

Cook Who Admitted Frauds Released

BALTIMORE (AP)—A 32-year-old cook who admitted a series of 22 frauds on Red Cross offices in 1953 and 1954 was granted a suspended sentence Monday by Federal Judge R. Dorsey Watkins.

Elbert Cecil Joseph, a native of Florida, admitted he had obtained temporary aid on the basis of false statements that he was due an Air Force disability pension which was overdue.

Actually, Joseph had served only briefly in the Navy by improper enlistment at 15 and was discharged when his age was revealed.

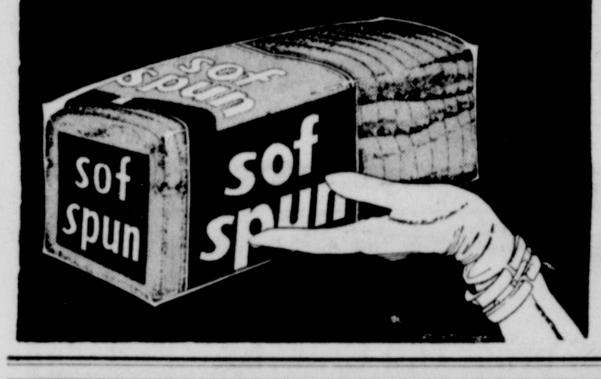

The indictment against Joseph was returned by a federal grand jury in New York and transferred to Baltimore because the defendant now lives here. Two of the Red Cross frauds occurred in Maryland, eight in New York State, and others in states from Connecticut to Texas.

Gen. Winfield Scott was the last of the presidential candidates nominated by the Whig party. He was nominated in the election of 1852.

W.Va. Colleges Seek Policy On Admissions

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Another step was taken Tuesday toward setting up a policy on selective admission to the nine state colleges under the supervision of the State Board of Education.

The board, in the final session of a two-day mid-summer meeting, heard a report on the progress of a college presidents' committee which will make a definite recommendation in September.

Concord College President Virgil Stewart told the board that his committee needed additional information in three specific fields before it could submit that recommendation.

The committee chairman said the information would be gathered in the following areas:

—Securing a West Virginia norm on school and college ability tests given all 11th grade public school students.

—Setting up a standard transcript form for transmitting credits.

—A uniform method of establishing class rank.

The board also heard a recommendation from the Council of College and University Presidents that the board ask the next session of the Legislature to run College audits over to the State Tax Department.

The council also asked for an opinion by the attorney general on the exemption of fees on scholarships given by each school.

The colleges are permitted to give scholarships amounting to 5 per cent of their enrollment. The question arose as to whether the awarding institution was to have the discretion of giving tuition to some recipients and tuition and fees to others.

In another action, the board referred to the Council of Presidents for its recommendation a proposal to set up a permanent record file on graduates of their schools.

The American Institute of Architects will prepare and submit a standard form for use of the college heads when they first request consideration of new buildings or major renovations.

This form will include a survey of needs, sketches showing building plans and elevations, preliminary building details and an accurate estimate of cost.

The board also allotted functions to the colleges; approved plans and specifications for construction of athletic field bleachers and dressing room facilities at Shepherd College; approved use of facilities at West Virginia State College for a graduate center of West Virginia University, and heard a report by Buildings and Maintenance Supervisor Georte T. West on recommendations by the State Fire Marshal.

New College Building Slated At Fairmont

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The State Board of Education accepted Tuesday an overall $276,614 net bid for construction of a student union building at Fairmont State College and rejected a $1,784,796 low bid for construction of a health and physical education building at Marshall College.

The board also tentatively approved at the close of a two-day meeting $119,000 worth of additional work for a women's dormitory now under construction at West Liberty State College.

George D. Shaw and Sons, Fairmont, submitted a low bid of $219,380 for construction of the student union building. Four other firms submitted bids totaling $57,234 for plumbing, heating and ventilating, electrical work and and kitchen equipment.

A low bid by Kenhill Construction Co., Charleston for construction of the Marshall College physical education building was turned down because it was $545,223 more than the $1,239,573 available for the work, the board said. Plans and specifications will be revised and submitted to the board at its next meeting.

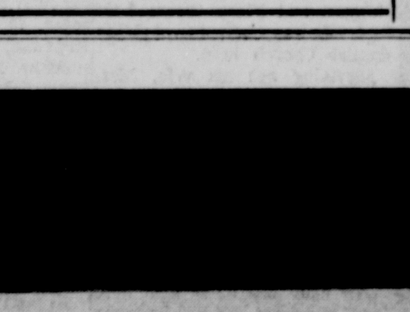

The additional work at West Liberty will be handled by general contractor Grubb Construction Co., Wheeling, who bid $575,000 for the job last month subject to the approval of the federal Housing and Home Finance Agency. The college has $820,000 available for the work.

Some Tax Returns Are Due July 31

Employers are reminded that several types of tax returns are due by July 31, Irving Machiz, acting director of the Internal Revenue for the Baltimore District, announced yesterday.

Mr. Machiz said returns are due for the months of April, May and June from the following employers:

Employers who file quarterly federal tax returns, Form 941. This combined return is for reporting withholding and social Security taxes on employes for the second quarter of 1958.

Employers who have domestic servants such as cooks, janitors, maids, chauffeurs and other workers who perform services of a household nature, are subject to Social Security taxes (Form 942) if $50 or more was paid in wages in the second quarter of 1958.

Returns from persons liable for quarterly excise tax (Form 720) are due July 31. Excise taxes include taxes on facilities and services, manufacturing excise taxes and taxes on products and commodities.

Where the withholding, Social Security and excise taxes exceed $100 a month, a depositary receipt system must be used.

Mr. Machiz added a public law was enacted last February to insure that employers comply with the law after they have been notified in person if they failed to file a proper return.

Persons who after this notification fail to obey the provision are, unless they have a legitimate reason, guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction are subject to a fine of $5,000, one year imprisonment, or both.

In the two-count information, Poffenberger is accused of having stolen a rifle valued at $79.95, a pistol and holster worth $47.95, a German dagger and scabbard valued at $2.50, ammunition worth $5, and a $20 bill. Total value of the loot was set at $155.40.

Named in the other information is Phillip L. Miller, 18, of Springfield, W. Va., accused of breaking into a storeroom of Brock's Scrap and Salvage Company in South Cumberland June 23 and stealing $270, a $20 pistol and cartridges worth $1.

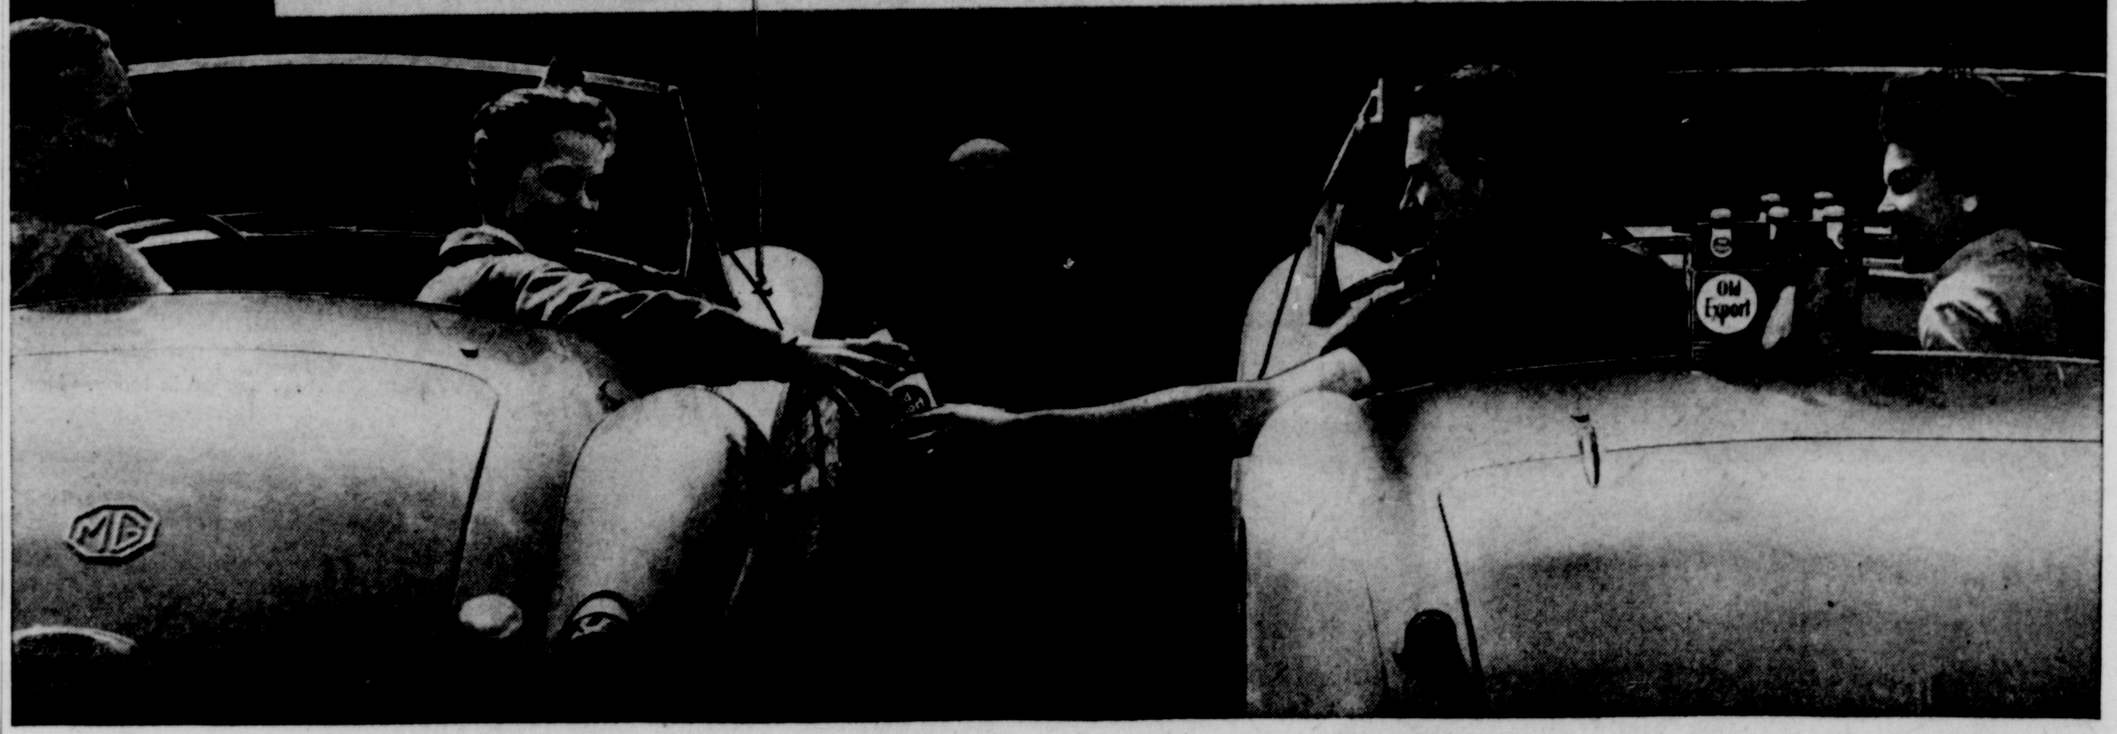

George R. Hughes Jr. has been court-appointed as defense attorney for the two boys.

Canada Refinances Its Indebtedness

From the backs of desk drawers, from safety deposit boxes in banks and from less conventional hiding places, Canadians are taking out their Victory Bonds for conversion into the new government issues. The sum involved is vast—$6.4 billion — and represents 40 per cent of Canada's national debt. If the U. S. engaged in similar refinancing, $125 billion in bonds would be called in for reconversion into new issues.

In the normal course, these Canadian bonds would be maturing from 1959 to 1966. The proximity of these maturity dates, and the immense amount involved, had had a disturbing effect on the Canadian bond market in general.

Provincial governments, municipalities and corporations, wishing to float bond issues for important public works and industrial expansion, have found the market sluggish. Investors wanted to know what reconversion terms the government would offer on victory bonds before they committed themselves to buying new bonds.

Now investors know the conversion terms and they are regarded as attractive. It is expected that when the conversion is completed two weeks hence there will be an upsurge of long-term confidence. This is good news because the state of the Canadian economy has a direct bearing on that of the U. S.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

They Don't Want To Know

Swifter and more general means of communications do not necessarily mean better and more complete understanding. One would have imagined that that would always have been recognized, for otherwise how can it be explained that those who live under one roof, husband and wife, father and son, mother and sister, fail to understand each other; in fact, often grow apart as the years pass?

Despite all the effort that has been put into achieving a more effective exchange of views between the United States and Soviet Russia, very little progress has been made. I quote a paragraph from "Izvestia," the official government newspaper of Soviet Russia, as an example of total misunderstanding:

"The President's explanation . . . exaggerates the role of the United States in the development of historical events. This has obviously not been done without purpose, but to justify the current rearmament of the United States and those military measures which it is taking in all parts of the world on the pretext of insuring peace.

"This wrong idea about the exceptional role of the United States in the shaping of world events, which attempts to ignore the interest of other states, is used as the basis for the U.S. President's reply. For instance, the stubborn raising by the President of the question of the social systems in the European people's democracies, and even in the Soviet Union, is dictated precisely by such an idea. The time has come to realize that the question of the existence of socialist countries was decided by history long ago, and is not 'subject' to the American monopolies, which, as consolation, still appear to consider themselves all-powerful . . ."

The very language of this paragraph is confusing to an American.

"On the pretext of insuring peace": after all, since 1917, whether we have been right or wrong, we have expended the wealth of our country, sacrificed our sons, borne the burden of taxes and debt, in the hope of achieving world peace. If Woodrow Wilson was wrong in establishing the League of Nations, at any rate, whatever he did was to achieve peace.

Similarly, the United States went into World War II in partnership with Soviet Russia for the cause of peace and human rights. In this cause, the United States gave Soviet Russia $11,000,000,000 in goods and funds with the object of assisting Russia to establish a modern industrial plant.

"People's democracies": this phrase, we Americans cannot understand. Certainly after what happened in Hungary, Americans must ask, what have the people to do with it? And how can it be a democracy when it is a dictatorship by a political oligarchy instituted by the conquering nation?

Nevertheless the term, "people's democracy," is employed by Soviet Russia to describe a satellite country, that is, one that has been conquered but has not been completely absorbed by the Soviet Union. Thus, in the organization of a universal state, Soviet Russia employs an intermediate political form, the satellite, which while giving the appearance of independence, actually is not independent in any respect.

"American monopolies:" this term is employed by Communists to describe the American system of private enterprise. It assumes that the means of production, distribution and exchange in this country is owned by "trusts" which enslave the people by a price system which keeps them in poverty.

Earl Browder, formerly leader of the American Communist Party, has written a book, "Marx and America," which has just been published by Duell, Sloan and Pearce, in which he says:

"Marx clearly recognized America's exceptional position, demonstrated by its deviation from his doctrine of impoverishment or 'pauperism' as the 'absolute general law of capitalist accumulation.' This exceptional position must have had exceptional causes . . ."

Another phrase they use is "U.S. ruling circles." Who rules in the United States? The Russians, out of their experience with Czarist autocracy and Communist dictatorship, seek a ruling class here. They seek a counterpart of their own Communist hierarchy. The fact that we live by difference and controversy, by debate and discussion, by a two party system of majority and minority, is altogether foreign to them.

At one time, the Communists made a great to-do about Wall Street which became for them a symbol of a dominant ruling class. There are financial firms that employ fixers in Washington, but not one such fixer possesses the power or influence, let us say, of Walter Reuther of the AFL-CIO.

Italian Plan For Developing Near East May Be Way Out Of Lebanon Crisis

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—Just one year ago, Dr. Giuseppe Pella, foreign minister of Italy, came to Washington to give John Foster Dulles a plan for the Near East. Dulles said no. If it had been adopted we would not be in the Near Eastern mess we are in today.

Dr. Pella foresaw that Nasserism would sweep all the Near East, to be followed by Communism, if the West did not help conquer the poverty, the filth, the dusty, disease-swept alleys, the contrasts between bejeweled kings and ragged fellahs in the Near East. He saw what Nasser had done in dividing up the irrigated land of Egypt, once dominated by only 27 families. He saw how the new Syria had divided up the land from the old aristocracy. Both Syria and Egypt, incidentally, had followed the land reform law of little Israel which they hate, but which nevertheless helped make Nasser popular with the masses.

So the Italian foreign minister proposed that a fund for the development of under-developed areas be created from the Marshall Plan loans which west European nations were then due to repay the U. S. A. He proposed that the American repayments be matched by payments from European nations, and the money be spent for irrigation on the River Jordan, on the Nile, the Tigris, the Euphrates and elsewhere, to resettle Palestinian refugees and generally improve the economic-social condition of the Near East.

This, essentially, was the plan Harry Truman had been working on when he left the White House.

"The solution for the Near East," he once told me, "is not arms, but dams and more electric power and more wheat. This area used to hold 60,000,000 people in the days of the Greeks and Romans. Now it holds 25,000,000 because the Mongols knocked out the irrigation works and because these people have been too busy figthing against each other.

"We have got to teach the Arabs that they need Jewish know-how and that they all need each other. It's not easy, but with patience, leadership and a big public works program it can be done."

The U. S. A. Needs A Friend

Amintore Fanfani, bouncing, vivacious new premier of Italy, is a man who believes in backing up his friends. He also believes in taking good ideas from friends and giving good ideas to friends.

When he attended the Chicago and San Francisco presidential nomination conventions in 1956, he took back some American ideas on political organization which helped him bolster the middle-of-the-road Christian Democratic Party.

When the United States was having its old friends turn a cold shoulder on U. S. Marines in Lebanon last week, when Japan publicly disapproved, West Germany grumbled, Belgium frowned and Austria threatened to shoot down U. S. transports, Premier Fanfani arose in the Italian Parliament and said:

"We approve entirely the initiatives taken in Lebanon and Jordan by our allies in the interest of peace. It is also with that conviction that we have granted permission to U. S. forces to use two of our airfields as fueling points for planes transferring troops."

Premier Fanfani stood up and made this speech despite the fact that Italy has the biggest Communist Party in the world outside Russia, and despite the fact that he faced in a few minutes a vote of confidence — which he finally won by a slim eight votes.

In view of this, Fanfani is in an excellent position to renew the Pella Plan for the peaceful development of the Near East.

The United States has got itself in a much worse box on the shores of Lebanon than the American people realize. We can't get out without loss of face. Yet we can't stay on without being increasingly hated in the Near East. A friendly third party like Premier Fanfani could lift the Lebanon controversy to a higher, more important level of peace and reconstruction, not guns and intervention, as a way out.

Ace-In-Hole Adlai

One political ace-in-the-hole Eisenhower has up his sleeve, if he wants to use him, is Adlai Stevenson, whom fate has put right now in Russia. Stevenson, a skilled negotiator, could be drafted as a trouble-shooter to talk to Khrushchev about a summit conference and the Near East, immediately.

Hitherto, Eisenhower has turned the cold shoulder on Truman; and up until this year, ignored Stevenson. However, Franklin Roosevelt in wartime sent Wendell Willkie, the Republican presidential candidate, on a special war mission to Moscow.

FDR also invited Alf Landon, who ran against him in 1936, to serve in his wartime cabinet, and in the end appointed Col. Frank Knox, who ran for vice president, as Secretary of the Navy, with Henry L. Stimson, who had served in the Taft and Hoover cabinets, as his Secretary of War.

The Democrats have been among Ike's staunchest supporters in the present Near East crisis.

"At times like this it is incumbent upon all of us to forget politics and close ranks in the cause of our own national security and the collective security of the free world," said Speaker Sam Rayburn, at the secret White House meeting last week.

Sen. Lyndon Johnson, who could not be at the meeting because of his mother's illness, later told friends: "It doesn't make any differences what we think of Eisenhower. It doesn't do any good to call him names. The country's in a very serious situation and we've got to stick by him."

Adlai Stevenson is an able negotiator who served during the war in the State Department. With the country in a serious crisis, a good president uses good men regardless of politics.

Is Soviet Russia Really Ready For A Showdown?

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The crisis in the world today turns on an age-old and relatively simple issue — whether one side is really ready for a showdown with the other.

For, despite all the Moscow propaganda and its call for a "Summit" conference, the basic facts are clear enough. Those facts convict the Soviet government of subverting the weak governments in the Middle East and of instigating rebellion and then hypocritically denouncing the western powers for coming to the aid of constituted governments.

The hypocrisy is all the more brazen since not so long ago the Soviets were defending their own armed intervention in Hungary on the ground that the existing government in Budapest had requested help.

The letter from Khrushchev urging the government of Britain, France, the United States and India to participate, along with Soviet Russia, in a high-level conference is couched in words of bold distortion in complete disregard of previously established facts.

For obviously if any international conference of heads of government were needed quickly, it could be held — as is being proposed by the British government — in New York City. Already in existence there are the buildings and facilities of the United Nations, which has a Security Council and a General Assembly designed to take up the very problems which Khrushchev now argues almost hysterically should be the subject of formal discussions. Hasn't the United Nations been trying to do that for the last few days through the representatives of the same governments, and isn't the U.N. still striving to accomplish that purpose? Except for the Soviet veto in the Security Council, the U.N. would have been further along now in its efforts to find a peaceful solution.

The Khrushchev note, despite its phrases of braggadocio and "rocket rattling," together with the Communist propaganda accusing America and Britain of "unprovoked aggression" are merely a cover-up for a state of fear inside the Kremlin that perhaps, after all, the hour of showdown is really approaching.

For the Soviet regime doesn't want a war now — it would mean uprisings among the captive peoples in eastern Europe as well as inside the Soviet Union itself. A war does not always consolidate an internal situation on the basis of national patriotism, as was proved in 1917 by the breakaway of the Bolsheviks in the midst of World War I.

It is questionable indeed whether either side would venture now to use nuclear weapons if there is a war. There would probably be a voluntary taboo on them as happened with the self-imposed ban on poison gas in previous wars.

So it's the threat of any war at this time and the fact that the West really may have made up its mind to take now the risks involved to prevent a big war which makes the Moscow regime so worried today. Its latest note betrays anxiety that is genuine. It is not a note based on confidence, but on fear.

Inside the West, on the other hand, a remarkable solidarity exists. There is, of course, a deep-seated dislike of war itself, and here and there is heard some petty partisan sniping. But most people see the difference between craven submission and the use of force that becomes inevitable as the world observes the Soviet Union unscrupulously and clandestinely undermining government after government and then piously denying what it has done.

The question, therefore, is whether the big decision will come while the western alliance is still intact or whether a big war will have to be fought when some of the western countries themselves have also been subverted from within. Winston Churchill in his memoirs published in 1948 gives a soul-searching review of what happened in the 1930s. He writes critically of the policy of six years of "placatory appeasement" and of the "catalogue of surrenders" as having contributed a "line of milestones to disaster." Noting that the British and French had strategic opportunities to fight when the situation was militarily favorable to them, he says they finally found themselves fighting "at the worst possible moment and on the least satisfactory ground." He adds:

"Still, if you will not fight for the right when you can easily win without bloodshed; if you will not fight when your victory will be sure and not too costly; you may come to the moment when you will have to fight with all the odds against you and only a prevarious chance of survival.

"There may even be a worse case. You may have to fight when there is no hope of victory, because it is better to perish than live as slaves."

The Soviets are at geographical disadvantage in trying to help Nasser and his allies militarily in the Middle East. A large-scale military operation by the West now can avert a big war later on. The gobbledygook of the day calls for U.N. debate and some temporary "solution" involving surrender to expediency. The vague talk about "alternatives" and working out something by "negotiation" has a familiar but tragic sound now. For there is only one issue — whether Soviet imperialism is to be crushed once and for all in the Middle East even at the risk of war or whether a "compromise" and and some more so-called guarantees and pledges that are not worth the paper they are written on shall be accepted from the Soviet-controlled regimes in the Middle East which are responsible for the present dilemma.

If the leaders of the West are farsighted, they will face the immediate situation firmly and resolutely and without weakening. If they weaken now — and pay heed to the same type of peace-at-any-price propaganda which fooled England under the Baldwin and Chamberlain ministries — then World War III will became a certainty in the not-far-distant future after the Soviets have so undermined the West as to make possible the success, not necessarily of a nuclear attack by them but of a conventional war across western Europe. It's later than the exponents of appeasement think it is.

Baering Down On The News

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

How do some poor diluted fools figure only one person is guilty in the noble art of briberation?

Both the briberine and the briberoo are equally contagious when playing footsies with itchy toes.

The Nine Old Nodders on the Supreme Bench see it my way if not over my shoulder.

Samuel's sons were guilty of it in 1112 B.C. and it is forbidden in Deut. XVI. 19. England banished its Chief Justice of the Common Pleas way back in 1288.

Case of Cooper versus Slade in 1858 payment of traveling expenses was held to be bribery. And those were the days when salesmen drove up on foot.

In the case of Delilah versus Samson the strong boy got the versus of it. The briberette and the briberine went fiffy-fifty while Samson lost out on his twenty-twenty.

E pluribus bribums is a wall-safe motto for neat firms with large keyholes. Any man will accept a retainer, a freshener or a fee. You can tag it an honorarium, a reminder or escalator expenses.

By any other name a rose would smell as sweet. And there are 1,162 varieties.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

Anaheim comes up on the rim of the highway about 25 miles south of Los Angeles. There are the customary groups of terraced bungalows and, off to the right, a medieval castle thrusts its gray turrets above the pepper trees. The castle is the hallmark of a place called Disneyland.

In three years, Disneyland has become the most fabulous playland in the world. It is owned by Mr. Walter Disney, a man who, while others were inventing a better mousetrap, invented a better mouse. He built this palatial playland on 60 acres and he has done a handsome job.

It is too good for children. Although 2,500,000 youngsters have roamed its streets, 8,700,000 adults have been awed by its wonders. Disneyland is divided into five main areas—Frontierland, Adventureland, Tomorrowland, Fantasyland and Main Street U.S.A.—and each requires about a half day to see. Disneyland has helicopter service.

There is a hotel and 18 restaurants. There is a place for babies and one for parking the dog. There are old time railroads which run through cactus country, where almost real rattlesnakes abound and boulders teeter on bluffs over the train. There is a modernistic streamliner and a woodburner which runs through a diorama of the Grand Canyon.

Gayle and I managed to see a small part of Disneyland in one afternoon. We found ourselves on a street straight out of 1880, with old time saloons, blacksmith shops, horse drawn trolley cars, stage coaches and a real mule train.

We walked up the street. I kept muttering: "If your grandpa could see this." We came upon a big square where a band of uniformed men played march tunes. To the left was Adventureland. We took a boat ride up the wild Amazon. Along the banks were realistic zebras, whose tails wagged and their ears flapped—although none of these are living animals—and bull elephants, never before seen on the Amazon, trumpeted at our boat. Alligators snapped their suitcase mouths and our pilot had to draw a gun and fire blanks to keep them subdued. Hippoes bathed placidly on our course and giraffes nibbled the tops of palm trees.

We floated under a real waterfall, and traversed little rapids. Later, we sailed on a real 3-master named Columbia. There is a choice between the old stern-paddle steamer Mark Twain or the Columbia. We picked the latter and, with a few hundred other tourists, sailed up and down a winding river and saw Indian villages, war canoes and, far off, a real stagecoach rocking over the hills.

After awhile, it became difficult to tell which was real and which was simulated. The stagecoach is real. So is the big ship. The Indian villages were not, although some of the Indians waved as the ship went by. A settler's cabin has been in flames for two years. He was done in by Indians and his body lays on the front lawn.

We took a ride in a cable car which runs high above Disneyland. Below we could see children in small cars rolling over hill and dale on tiny highways; we saw mothers and fathers spinning in huge colored teacups in the Alice-in-Wonderland section.

In the one afternoon, we skimmed the top of Disneyland, and we will have to go back there again. And perhaps again. It is ultra clean. I did not see a gum wrapper in all of the streets we walked. It is refreshing and new and the rides are modestly priced. The most expensive is 50 cents. No liquor or beer is permitted on the premises.

It has been a long climb for Disney. When he arrived in Hollywood, 35 years ago, his only assets were $40 and a sensible brother named Roy. Now, at the age of 56, he has millions of dollars, monopolizes the distribution of Academy Awards, owns animated mice, feature motion pictures, Disneyland, (which costs $23,000,000 so far) and a beautiful home in Holmby Hills.

What Causes Hardening Of The Arteries?

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The prevention of arteriosclerosis will come after the cause of this condition is definitely established. When that happy day dawns, life should be prolonged another decade or two. In addition, we will know how to avoid heart attacks, strokes, certain types of circulatory disorders of the legs, kidney disease, and high blood pressure.

We are reasonably certain that hardening of the arteries is a disease and not an unavoidable part of the aging process. Fat in the diet is regarded as the No. 1 troublemaker at the moment. This is based on laboratory research and the high incidence of coronary deaths in countries where the amount of fat in the diet is high.

The type of fat rather than the quantity is what counts most. Animal fats are implicated but their bad effects can be nullified with vegetable fats. As a result, many physicians are recommending liquid vegetable oils such as cottonseed, soybean, and corn oils for patients with arteriosclerosis or high levels of fatty substances such as cholesterol) in the blood. But this advice is subject to change because the evidence is circumstantial.

Physicians are exploring other possible origins of hardening of the arteries, such as a defect in the clotting mechanism. The blood clots faster, for example, during periods of stress. Lack of physical activity is another factor. Heredity enters the picture because some families have more arteriosclerosis than others.

The glandular make-up of the Women, before the menopause, have less arteriosclerosis than men of a comparable age. Female sex hormones reverse the arteriosclerosis process in male laboratory animals.

The other constituents of food must not be overlooked. Disturbances of protein and carbohydrate metabolism may be the villains and by the time the American Heart association meets this fall, the fat theory may be passe.

TURN OVER

L. G. writes: The doctor says that lying on my right side constricts certain muscles in the shoulder or neck, which cuts off circulation to my right arm. He advises me to sleep on my back but after sleeping on my right side for half a century I do not find the change easy. Have you any suggestions.

REPLY

Besides making a conscious effort to lie supine, place pillows at your sides to keep from turning over.

FAT AND PSORIASIS

R. M. writes: Is there a relationship between psoriasis and a high level of cholesterol in the blood?

REPLY

Many victims of psoriasis have a high blood cholesterol; others do not. This suggests that the two conditions may not be related.

TOMORROW: Pet bites.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Henry Youngman knows a woman who finally has hit upon a sure-fire method of getting her good-for-nothing husband out of bed and off to what he laughingly refers to as work every morning. "All I do," explained the woman, "is throw the cat on his bed." "How does that get him up?" asked Youngman. "It's a cinch," chuckled the lady. "He sleeps with the dog."

Thomas Stevens, former secretary to President Eisenhower, once was instructed to invite Presidential assistant Sherman Adams to a fund-raising dinner, and according to reporter Tom Henry, was injudicious enough (probably rushed for time) to address Mr. Adams as "Dear Sher." Adams replied in kind:

"Dear To: I am sorr. I shall be in Minnesot. Lov, Sher."

Speaking of interesting experiments, Doodles Weaver, racing enthusiast, recently crossed a rooster with a Racing Form, and came up with a chicken that lays odds.

You're Telling Me!

By William Ritt

An eastern town has just gotten over celebrating Burglary Prevention Week. Wonder where they stole that idea?

Britain's Duke of Bedford announces he is going to open a matel on the grounds of his ancestral home to help pay off $14 million owed in inheritance taxes. Man, what rates he'll have to get!

Lee Whitney, the only resident of Douglas, Ark., has finally moved away. We'd say Lee's got the right idea — a ghost town should be left strictly to the ghosts.

A London barber has installed shave-yourself booths equipped with electric razors in his shop. Business, we understand, is really buzzing!

Expert Panel To Be Heard At Moorefield

Poultry Experts Are Booked For State Convention

MORGANTOWN — July 30 - 31 and August 1 are the days that have been set aside for this year's State Poultry Convention to be held at Moorefield, Hardy county, according to Harold M. Hyre, associate poultry husbandman at West Virginia University. Hyre heads the publicity committee for the event.

The program will get under way at 2 p. m. EST Wednesday, July 30, with the annual business meeting of the West Virginia Poultry Association.

EARL F. CROUSE

The program this year will be made up of nationally known personalities, Hyre said. Included in the group of speakers will be Earl Crouse, St. Louis, Mo., of the Doane Agricultural Service. "Mr. Crouse is one of the nation's foremost authorities on 'Contract Farming,'" which is a subject of vital interest to poultry growers. He has some logical reasoning as to what is likely to develop along this line," Hyre explained. "Producers need to look ahead and to keep in step with the rapid changes that are taking place in the poultry industry. These poultry meetings in Moorefield will be an excellent place to get the latest information."

Prof. Paul Margolf of Pennsylvania State University will use as his subject, "Poultry Processing." Professor Margolf is a specialist in this field, Hyre pointed out.

Mayor Baker stated Monday night that the communication also reported the town would be sent further information soon.

Council ordered that the balance on the Studebaker two and one-half ton truck the town has been renting from the Reeves Auto Parts Company be paid off; also to purchase a small truck from Reeves.

It was ordered that a gas stove be purchased from Russell Metcalfe for the town office for $50. The cost of the stove, when new, was $269. The present stove in the Council Chamber will be placed in the adjoining room used for storage and repairs.

Council Adopts 2 Resolutions In Piedmont

PIEDMONT — Two resolutions were unanimously adopted by Mayor Rodney Baker and Council Monday night to complete plans for the request of a loan from the Housing and Finance Agency of the federal government.

The money, if and when loaned to the town, will not include interest to be used for a preliminary survey for a sanitary sewer to be attached to the sewage plant now being constructed by the Upper Potomac River Commission for principal use of the Luke plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company. Luke, Westernport and Piedmont plan to connect into this plant which is being located at the east end of Westernport.

The first resolution outlined reasons for the borrowing of between $35,000 and $70,000 for the construction of the sanitary sewer, interceptors and a pumping station.

The second resolution authorized the Robert T. Regester Engineering Company of Baltimore to do the preliminary survey at an estimated cost of between $1,500 and $2,000; also construct sewers and all necessary engineering inspections and supervision for eight per cent of the costs.

Edward Kidd, an engineer of the Baltimore firm, conferred with council and advised members to employ legal counsel.

Donald Hott, state's attorney of Mineral County and Charles Smith, attorney, were appointed to do the legal work providing fees are acceptable to the town.

Town officials heard various complaints that dogs are running at large and causing damage to gardens.

Mayor Baker warned an ordinance provides that it is unlawful for any person to permit their dog to run at large. On public streets, dogs must be accompanied by an attendant with a leash and also be muzzled.

All regular employes of the town are now entitled to sick benefits. For some years, only salaried employes received sick benefits. They will be given a maximum of 15 working days sick leave, but must present a doctor's certificate verifying the illness. They will receive 15 days leave in any one year and they cannot be accumulated from year to year.

The mayor called attention to the fact that some business places have not yet obtained a license for doing business in the town. "Every one is to be treated alike," the mayor warned, and he expects the town's police officer to check any violation.

Mineral Co. Grand Jurors Indict 23

KEYSER—Twenty-three indictments were returned yesterday by the Mineral County Circuit Court grand jury which also urged a reduction in the speed limit on U. S. Route 220 between Keyser and U. S. Route 50.

The speed limit now is 40 miles per hour on U. S. 220 and the 16 grand jurors advocate reduction at least to 35 miles per hour.

Although the names of those indicted were not immediately available, it was reported that the owners of six trucks were indicted on charges of overloading their trucks. Other indictments included several liquor and narcotics charges, two or three charged with driving while under the influence of alcohol, several burglaries, two bad check cases and one forgery.

Five of the 23 indictments were for felonies and the other 18 for misdemeanors. Trials are scheduled to start July 29.

The grand jurors also recommended that drivers be required to slow down while passing.

Carl Ludwick was foreman of the grand jury. Other members were William Gortner, Louetta Dantzic, Mary Shipper, J. Robert Wilson, G. H. Ebert, Oliver Leatherman, R. S. Stinnell, Floyd White, Earl Pritts, Louis Lemon, Carl Jewel, Earl Spencer, Charles E. Kiser Sr., Eurice Broome and Glenn O. Workman.

Twenty-three witnesses appeared and Judge Ernest A. See received the grand jury report.

Midland To Start Garbage Collection

MIDLAND — For the first time in the history of the Town of Midland, collection of garbage will begin in the near future.

Mayor Lionel D. Baker announced at a special meeting of the Mayor and Council that a favorable location had been agreed upon with county health officers for the dumping of the garbage. Citizens will be contacted in several days in regards to the new garbage collection system. It is hoped by Mayor Baker and the council that collection of the garbage can begin by the first of August.

"No Dumping" signs will be placed along Georges Creek and any person in violation will be fined a minimum of $50. Mayor Baker urges all citizens to cooperate with the new garbage collection system and make it a success.

Gov. Underwood Makes Plea For Conservation

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y. (UPI) — Noting West Virginia was "close to wildlife" the Mountain State's chief executive Tuesday said only through cooperation by all could natural resources be preserved.

Gov. Cecil H. Underwood, speaking on the occasion of the centennial celebration of the birth of Theodore Roosevelt, said West Virginians have "a love for nature and an instilled appreciation of our natural resources."

Noting that Roosevelt's desire to conserve was "deep seated" and he too, was a "great lover of the out-of-doors," Underwood cited him as the man who set in motion the nationalization of forests in this country.

"The public became aware," Underwood said. "The nation awoke as the teeth-gnasher and phrase-turner in the White House hammered home the importance of conservation."

Underwood said it "is a mistake" to look upon conservation as solely a governmental function.

"Conservation programs will be successful only when those persons in position to conserve resources which they control, use these sources of energy rather than abuse them," he said. "Americans must expand and extend their present-day methods of conservation to ensure the prosperity which Roosevelt envisaged and to see that it is amplified and developed."

Joe Brown Defends Title Against Kenny Lane Tonight

Champ Made 12-5 Choice At Houston

Bitter Words Come From Both Camps On Eve Of Fight

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP) — There were bitter words in both camps Tuesday as champion Joe Brown, a 12-5 favorite, predicted he will smash challenger Kenny Lane's bid Wednesday night to become the first left-hander to win the world's lightweight boxing crown.

"I'll smash him but I'd like to punish him a few extra rounds," said the 32-year-old Brown, a Baton Rouge native who moved to Houston after Louisiana prohibited Negroes from competing against whites.

Charges Run-Around

"Joe Brown has given me the run-round a long time and I'm going to cash in now," said the crewcut Lane, the 26-year-old challenger from Muskegon, Mich. "It practically took an act of Congress to get me a title fight."

The scheduled 15-round Sam Houston Coliseum bout will be televised nationally at 9 p.m. (EST) with the Houston area blacked out. A crowd of about 10,000 is expected.

The fight will be the fifth time Brown has placed his title on the line and he will be after his fifth knockout. He said he is not worried about Lane not having been knocked off his feet while compiling a record of 52 victories and five losses.

Lane Bad Mouthed

"Lane's been bad mouthed about this thing," Brown said as he relaxed at his Camp Holden training headquarters northwest of Houston.

"I could end it in three or four rounds but may wait until the sixth or seventh because of that bad mouth," said the champion.

Brown has won 70 fights, lost 15 and recorded nine draws.

Doolan Posts 8th Triumph For Local 26

Beats McIntyre's In Rec Game, 9-2

Local 26 stretched its lead to two full games over runner-up Western Maryland Railway in the Men's Rec Softball League by defeating Don McIntyre's yesterday at Fort Hill Field by the score of 9-2.

The win gave the Rubber Workers a 13-2 record.

Western Maryland (10-3) and the Ridgeley Legion were tied at 1-1 in the 5th inning at Naval Reserve Field when darkness halted hostilities.

"Pickles" Doolan, the winningest pitcher in the league, held McIntyre's to four hits and registered his eighth win of the season. His only loss was a 7-6 decision to Western Maryland.

Local 26 collected seven hits and among them were two-baggers by Bill Houdersheldt and "Chuck" Emery. Dale Fuller collected two hits for McIntyre's. Bob Leasure, shortstop, and Fuller, centerfielder, were the game's fielding stars.

Howton Says Pro Grid Players Need Protection From Owners

Bill Declares They Would Abuse Players If Given Free Hand

By WHITNEY SHOEMAKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — All-Pro end Bill Howton told Senate sports investigators Tuesday a House-passed bill would strip players of protection from what he termed dictatorial policies of football club owners.

Howton, the Green Bay Packers' crack pass receiver, testified "club owners have proven over the years that they abuse the players when they have a free hand."

Would Restrain Owners

He and Creighton Miller, attorney for the National Football League Players Assn., said they prefer legislation to provide some restraint on the owners while granting exemptions from federal antitrust laws.

Lack of restrictions, they said, might lead to such things as blacklisting players or blacking out television of NFL games.

Howton, a star at Rice before turning into one of pro football's best ends, is president of the players association. Miller is the former Notre Dame back hired last year as counsel to the group, which represents players of all 12 NFL teams except the Chicago Bears.

They appeared with Kyle Rote, New York Giants' end and vice president of the association, and Les Richter, Los Angeles Rams' linebacker, before the Senate Antimonopoly subcommittee.

Before switching to football, the subcommittee was asked by Sen. William Langer (R-ND) to recommend a ban on pay television for major league baseball games.

Sen. Mundt Testifies

And Sen. Karl E. Mundt (R-SD) testified in support of his proposal to grant organized baseball antitrust law exemptions only so long as the majors keep a team in Washington.

The bill before the subcommittee would grant pro baseball, football, basketball and hockey flat antitrust exemptions. Passed by the House, it was designed to give leagues and clubs freedom to operate with contract reserve clauses, player drafts and territorial rights which proponents say are vital to the sports.

CONNECTS ON FIRST TRY—With borrowed bait, borrowed boat and borrowed pole, Harry McIntyre, 15, of Pittsburgh, first time fisherman, dropped his line in Deep Creek Lake near the dam and caught a 26 inch Walleye which weighed 6¼ pounds. Harry, whose parents own one of the 2,000 private cottages on Deep Creek, explains that this was the first time he ever has had a line in the water.

Ray Bryson, 72, Bel Air Owner, Taken By Death

Maryland Horseman Dies At Elray Farm

KINGSVILLE, Md. (AP) — G. Ray Bryson, prominent Maryland horse breeder and principal owner of Bel Air Race Track, died Tuesday at Elray Farm, his home here. He was 72.

The Kingsville horseman suffered a heart attack three years ago and had been in ill health recently.

Built Bel-Air Track

Bryson is credited with having built the three-quarter mile Bel Air track and heading it until his death.

His Elray Farm currently maintains 16 brood mares and three stallions, according to breeding records, and Bryson had as many as 100 horses at one time. The race horses are registered in the name of his widow, Ella K. Bryson.

A number of the stable's horses are currently running at Delaware Park, including Kinda Smart and Peeping Tom, a 2-year-old which has been nominated for the Dover Stakes tomorrow.

Bryson, a native of Dayton, Ky., got interested in horse racing while operating a pool hall in Covington, Ky.

"Naturally I heard all the horse talk and drifted to the track at Latonia," he once said. "I bought my first horse, Anna Beall, about 1898."

The 18-year-old horse owner was in the game to stay. He sold the mare a short time later for $250, turning a neat profit, and bought two yearlings. One of them, Water Cooler, set a track record for him at Churchill Downs.

Paid $10,000 For Papp

Bryson was noted at auction sales as a man who preferred to buy a quantity of cheap horses in the hope that one would develop into a worthwhile performer. He said the most costly purchase he ever made was Papp, for which he paid $10,000 in 1919 and saw him succumb to shipping fever after running one race for him.

Bryson developed some outstanding performers for his stable. Calumet Dick, for example, was claimed at Saratoga from Warren Wright, owner of Calumet Farm, for $2,500 and earned to $75,000. He won the 1937 Dixie Handicap at Pimlico.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a. m. Friday at Ruck's Funeral Home in Baltimore with burial at Druid Ridge Cemetery.

Stringtown Wins, Gains On Leaders

Maple Inn's Old Germans whipped Homewood Tavern, 9-2, and Stringtown downed Kennell's Mill, 6-4, in County Softball League games played yesterday.

Stringtown moved within a half game of first place (16-6) when the Corriganville-Hyndman game at the latter place was rained out in the second inning with the Old Exports leading 3-0. This game has been rescheduled for July 30.

Jerry O'Baker became a 10-game winner in the victory of Manager Ray Leighty's Old Germans over Homewood. He scattered five hits, including a triple and double by Perdew and a double and single by Turner.

Jack Brant collected three hits and batted in five runs for the Old G's. O'Baker also had three safeties while Joe Glass and Fay Often garnered two each.

In the contest at Stringtown, Joe Sager was the "big gun" with three blows, "Corky" Jamison rapped a double and single and Solly Emerick also had two hits. Curt Hasselrode and Ray Troutman limited Kennell's Mill to two hits—singles by Gomer and Kreigline. Scores:

Snead To Vie In Baltimore Golf Tourney

Eastern Open Set To Start Thursday

By LOU PANOS

BALTIMORE (AP)—Sam Snead popped up Tuesday as a surprise entry in the Eastern Open and reaffirmed his dislike of anyone skillful at tapping a golf ball into the cup.

"I hate all good putters," declared the slammer from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

For emphasis he whacked a whistling drive off the practice at Mt. Pleasant, Baltimore's municipal course where the $20,000 tournament will be played Thursday through Sunday.

"Like Finsterwald," he grinned as a growing gallery chuckled. Dow Finsterwald, the 28-year-old Ohioan who last Sunday overtook Snead in the last round and won the Professional Golfers Assn. championship at Havertown, Pa., will be in this one, too.

"He'd knock one into the bushes, then beat it out of there about 15 feet from the pin and tap it right in," said Snead. He shook his head and belted another ball into the mist falling on Mt. Pleasant's lush green acres.

Top Prize $2,800

"I just don't see how you guys do it," said the old master, addressing young Gay Brewer Jr.

Brewer, another of the 150 or so pros tournament director Harvey Raynor says will be competing for the $2,800 top prize, just joined in the chuckling. Then he and Snead prepared to take a warm-up round on the 6,895-yard, par-72 course.

Snead didn't mention the three putts he took from four feet away on the 13th hole at the Llanerch Country Club in the PGA. He wound up third.

His appearance here was unexpected because of a mild controversy after his 1952 Eastern Open victory and his absence from the tournament since then.

Snead, winner of every major tournament in golf except the National Open, was reported to have demanded an appearance fee for returning to Baltimore in 1953, touching off rumblings of discontent among other stars of the game.

Other Stars To Vie

Scheffing Is Candidate For NL Manager Of Year

May Give Giants' Rigney Competition For 1958 Laurels

By JACK CUDDY
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bob Scheffing is doing such a good job with the Cubs this season he may give Bill Rigney of the Giants stiff competition for "manager of the year" laurels in the National League.

Thus far, the transplanted San Francisco Giants have been the season's sensation in their see-saw battle with Milwaukee for the league lead.

But the Cubs, popular choice in most pre-season polls for last place, have flabbergasted the experts by coming up to snap at the Braves' and Giants' heels.

In Scheffing's freshman year as a major league pilot with the Cubs in 1957, Chicago did show some late-season improvement; but it finished in a last-place tie with Pittsburgh, one rung below the Giants.

Refuse Cellar Position

And because the Cubs this year had a sophomore pilot in Scheffing and an extremely green pitching-catching combination—along with other uncertainties—most of the experts consigned them to the cellar, a dank suite they're refusing to occupy.

Their vigorous revolt against the basement can be more fully appreciated if one recalls they're making a better fight than any Cub outfit in 11 years. The last time Chicago approached the top was in 1947, when 5½ games out of the lead.

Because of his temperament, training and intelligent efforts, 42-year-old Scheffing must be given much credit for the club's revival.

He was fitted admirably to deal with the big pitching-catching problem because of his own 11 years in the majors behind the plate, with three out for military service. He wore the mask for the Cubs, Redlegs and Cardinals.

Also he coached for the St. Louis Browns and the Cubs. And he managed the Los Angeles Angels nearly two seasons before being named Chicago pilot.

Pitchers Are Young

None of the pitchers he regarded as his top five are more than 25 years old — Moe Drabowsky, Dick Drott, Taylor Phillips, Johnny Briggs and Glen Hobbie. Moreover, catcher Sammy Taylor—up from Atlanta—is 25 and a rookie. But Taylor has been working regularly and hitting around .300.

That green mound-backstop combination could have been a liability, but Bob turned it into a decided asset.

Scheffing's cool guidance was also rewarded by unexpectedly good hitting from veteran Alvin Dark, obtained from the Cardinals; Lee Walls and Ernie Banks.

His knowledge and direction may make him manager of the year.

Eddie Sawyer Replaces Mayo Smith As Phils' Manager

New Leader Guided 1950 Flag Winner

Lost Job In 1952, Signed To Contract Through '59 Season

By NOAH HALPER

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies fired manager Mayo Smith Tuesday and replaced him with Eddie Sawyer who directed the club to the National League pennant in 1950.

"We needed a change," said general manager Roy Hamey in announcing Smith's dismissal.

"It was sudden," said Smith, "but that's baseball."

"I'm glad to be back," commented Sawyer.

Hamey's answer as to why the Phillies were rehiring a man they fired because he didn't win, was:

Had Good Record

"Eddie had a good record while he was here."

That record was a third place finish in 1949, a pennant in 1950, fifth in 1951, and fourth in 1952, when Sawyer was replaced in mid-season by Steve O'Neill.

Since then, Sawyer has been a manufacturer's representative with no baseball connection.

Hamey said he had been considering the move about a month. He said, "no one thing tipped the scale. I just thought we needed a change."

Smith, who was signed by Hamey in 1955, leaves the club in sixth place, half a game out of the cellar, two games from the first division, and 8½ behind the front running San Francisco Giants, the opponent Tuesday night as Sawyer takes over.

Trailed By 2½ Games

The Phillies, just prior to the All-Star Game, won seven in a row and vaulted to third place in the topsy turvey National League race. They were 2½ games from first place.

But following the All-Star break, the club nosed dived into the second division. Everything went wrong. The hitters slumped. The pitching went sour.

Smith said he got the word about 1 p.m. (EDT) Tuesday. "Nobody feels good about being fired," he said. "But that's the way baseball is and that's the risk you take. I'll go home to Lake Worth (Fla.) in a couple of days. I have no definite plans, but certainly hope to remain in baseball."

Smith in the final year of a three year contract, guided the Phillies to fourth place his first season with the club. The past two years the Phillies were fifth. He came from the farm system of the New York Yankees where as a manager he won two pennants and wound up in the first division two other years.

Signs Through 1959

Sawyer, who was signed for the rest of this season and through 1959, declined to appraise the club.

The only players still on the club who were here when Sawyer last managed were pitchers Robin Roberts, Curt Simmons, and Bob Miller; catcher Stan Lopata, infielder Willie Jones and outfielder Richie Ashburn.

Nah Hiss Scores In Jamaica 6th

JAMAICA, N. Y., July 22 (AP)—Mrs. Jules Schwartz's Nah Hiss out-gamed Valley Farm's Impasse to win the Brighton Beach Purse by a nose at Jamaica Race Track today.

Three quarters of a length back came Byrnalan Stable's Civet. Nah Hiss, a 4-year-old son of Call Over-Waymark, ridden by Bob Ussery, stepped the mile and an eighth in the good time of 1:50 3/5 on the fast track.

Nah Hiss sprinted to the lead soon after the start and held on gamely through the long stretch drive.

Lukewarm favorite with the crowd of 17,283, Nah Hiss returned the across the board mutuels of $6.30, $3.70 and $3.10. Impasse paid $4.60 and $3.60 and Civet was $3.40 to show.

DETROIT—The Detroit Lions ranked second in the National Football League in interceptions in 1957 with 25 for 311 yards and one touchdown.

Willie Hartack Chalks Up Triple

OCEANPORT, N. J., July 22 (AP)—Lord Gregor, a 3-year-old colt by Cosmic Bomb who had not won since capturing his first start of the year at Bowie this winter, charged to a neck victory over a tiring filly, Right Chere, to give Willie Hartack his third success at Monmouth Park today.

Lord Gregor, who provided trainer Bernie P. Bond with his second winner of the afternoon, ran the sprint in 1.12 3/5 over a sloppy track while carrying 118 pounds.

The colt owned by Melvin H. Schlosberg, of Washington, D. C., returned $19.20, $9.80 and $5.80 to his backers in the crowd of 19,139.

Hartack's first winner of the day, Market Right ($13.20) completed the $62.00 daily double. The meeting's leading rider also scored astride Eglantine ($10.00) in the fourth.

STANTON, Del., July 22 (AP)—Pikadon, flying the Willowbrook Stables banner of H. Dorsey Shipley of Riderwood, Md., splashed over a sloppy track to his fourth straight victory before 10,247 at Delaware Park today.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — When Stanley Kramer sets his heart on anything, you are safe in betting he'll put it over. He's wanted Gregory Peck to play the American naval officer in "On The Beach" and Greg is going to do just that. The contract was signed over the week end and Neville Shutes' depressing novel goes before the screen in January.

I am told Stanley has been able to get an excellent script. Perhaps if this picture could be made in time to show all the battling nations the tragedy of hydrogen and atomic bombs destroying the world (as it did in the book) it could be valuable propaganda.

The loose threads are now being woven into place and Lana Turner who was inclined to be a bit difficult at first has changed her tactics and is being more cooperative at the rehearsals of "Imitation of Life."

John Gavin who denied he gave an interview saying he felt he was too young to play opposite Lana, was on the Universal-International lot at 7:30 a.m. to test with Lana for her key wardrobe shots — and what a wardrobe created by Jean Louis.

It will take a minimum of 18 costumes to test for the 31 changes. Some are trimmed with mink, some with chinchilla, and other with lace. A half million dollars worth of jewelry is being supplied by jeweler Laykin, who is also providing his own guards.

Anything and everything about Brigitte Bardot is news these days because of the Bardot bonanza at the box office. So, in what I suppose we can call a "flash" from Paris, Raoul Levy who has produced many of her pictures, sends word that the French sex-kitten will star in "Babette Goes To War." Like most of Brigette's movies it's as sexy as the censors will allow — all about a French girl whose talent for camp following makes her invaluable as an undercover spy.

The idea offers such opportunities to show off La Bardot's appeal that Levy is planning not just one picture, but a series based on this central idea. I met Levy when he was in Hollywood not long ago and he's a smart producer whose slogan might well be "The more Bardot the more dough."

Talked to June Haver who with Fred MacMurray was having a great time at their ranch near San Francisco. "I love a county fair," June said, "And we are showing ten of our black Angus cattle at the Sonora Fair. This is the first time I have been away from the twins."

I asked June if she is going to co-star with Fred in "Justice Ends With a Gun" for Charles Schneer (not to be confused with Charles Schnee) for Columbia.

"Fred has talked with Charlie Schneer, who is an old friend," June said. "But I am too happy being a wife and mother to risk losing all this by returning to motion pictures."

With the world so topsy-turvy, Dinah Shore is planning to spend her vacation right here in the U. S. A. She says as soon as George Montgomery finishes "The Return to King Solomon's Mines" at MGM, she, George, daughter Missy and little son Jody will get in their car and visit the zoo in San Diego, Yosemite Park, and possibly Yellowstone Park.

"I am just so happy to be in my back yard resting," said Dinah, "I hate to think of traveling, but I do believe George, the children and I should have this holiday but not go too far away from home."

Sammy Davis Jr. does such great business in his nightclub act that he could keep busy (and prosperous) just playing the Moulin Rouge in Hollywood and the Sands in Las Vegas. But this boy is a demon for work in all fields. Right now he's in love with making movies.

He's just bought "Rebel Territory" which he'll produce and star in, sometime in 1959 — and when I say "sometime" that's the right word. Having just completed the movie "Anna Lucasta" he's making time at the Moulin Rouge until Sam Goldwyn is ready to start "Porgy and Bess" again. Following this, Sammy's set for "Oceans 11" with Frank Sinatra. Aaronn Spelling has been signed the job of scripting "Rebel Territory," a post - Civil War story about a slave and a Quaker.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Hope Lange will have her baby in Ireland where Don Murray goes to film "Shake Hands With the Devil."

They were lined up solidly in front of the Luau when Clark Gable, Kay and Kay's daughter came out, waiting for autographs.

Debra Paget and her mother leave town July 28 to forget it all. They go to Germany and India where Debbie will appear in "The Indian Tomb," a movie.

Kathryn Grant Crosby is spending the day at Columbia today to talk to the press on the telephone about "Gunman's Walk." This is the picture she was supposed to ballyhoo with personal appearances but the act of God — the baby, that is — keeps her here.

Mickey Rooney and his estranged wife, Elaine, are trying to reach a property settlement. Mickey hopes it won't take until November 13 when he plays the Copa in New York with Joey Foreman.

Couturiere Helen Rose has worked out an agreement with MGM whereby she has been given permission to create clothes for the retail market.

Good to see Robert Paige and his wife back from their New York vacation. Bob took over the mike at the Round Robin Restaurant and surprised everyone with his voice — it's that good.

Bill Bendix daughter Lorraine, currently playing in "Children's Hour" at the Laguna Playhouse, is being held over for another week for "The Matchmaker." She replaces Lureen Tuttle who is ill.

Jayne Mansfield postcards she, Mickey Hargitay and little Janie sail for home on the Queen Mary July 24.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Television and Radio

by John Crosby

Small Music

The record for original musicals on television is universally lousy. From "Cinderella," a Rodgers and Hammerstein opus that set CBS back roughly half a million clams, to "Aladdin" which Cole Porter wrote the music for, to "Crescendo" which boasted Rex Harrison and about thirty stools, the trail has been littered with the wreckage of huge budgets and high hopes and when Richard Adler announced that he would contribute two original musicals to TV next fall, he was flying in the face both of tradition and common sense.

So, the other day, over-powered by curiosity, I asked Mr. Adler, in Heaven's name, why? "One of the big reasons I think there have been no successful musicals for TV is that the writers treat the TV screen like a Broadway stage," explained Mr. Adler, who at thirty-six looks much too young to have been co-author of "Damn Yankees" and "The Pajama Game." "They write big expansive broad songs and music. If a painter wants a big picture, he uses oils. If he wants a smaller subject, watercolors might be right.

"Well, when I write for TV, I intend to use watercolors. TV songs should have a small intimate feeling. They should not be the kind that have to bounce off the walls of a theater and get to the guy in the thirtieth row. For instance, "There Is Nothing Like a Dame" is a great song but it's too explosive for TV. It's a big yak song. My comedy songs on television will be intended to get a chuckle but not a yak."

I pointed out that television money is not anything like stage money.

"There isn't a lot of money in TV as compared with the stage. I'm doing it—and mind you I'm not a crusader—because I think it's a terribly important medium. The people in the musical theater say the problem is insurmountable, that it can't be licked but I feel it's something that shouldn't be looked down on. There are 50,000,000 people watching—well, anyway millions—and they're entitled to see good television. I have something to say on television and I want to say it. Maybe a year from now I'll be saying the problem can't be licked but right now I'm hoping it can."

Adler's two projects are a musical version of "Little Women," the Louisa May Alcott classic, which has so far avoided television, and another of O. Henry's great stories, "Gift of the Magi." The first was brought to him. The second, a tiny story which occupies only a couple pages of print, is his own idea; he bought the rights from the O. Henry estate and personally sold it to TV. " 'Gift of the Magi' has something—a kind of spirit and quality of its own. Sure, it's a little story but then I think that's the very quality that TV musicals should have.

"I didn't really want to do 'Little Women.' It's essentially just a family story with family incidents. There's no story really except Beth's illness. In the movie she dies; in the book she doesn't. Well, we're sticking to the book. I'll probably catch it from the public for not letting her die but if we're going to get belted we might as well catch it for sticking to what Louisa May Alcott intended."

Besides "Pajama Game" and "Damn Yankees" for which he wrote the lyrics, Dick Adler is chiefly famous as the inspiration for Rudy Lorraine, the songwriting character in the book "Say, Darlin'," by Richard Bissell, which is now a very large hit on Broadway. Both in book and play, Rudy Lorraine is a fairly insufferable character—loud-mouthed, outlandishly egotistic and — the unkindest cut of all—not a very good songwriter.

"How are you and Dick Bissell hitting it off these days?" I inquired.

"I think he's a great guy—a great guy to work with, wonderfully witty guy and—well—just great," said Adler who looked as if he meant every word. "Rudy Lorraine? Well, he got the girl didn't he? I think some people's feelings got hurt by the play. Hal Prince, for instance. (Hal Prince is the model for the boy producer in the play.) But not mine."

I think I ought to add that Mr. Adler, unlike Rudy Lorraine, fairly oozed charm throughout lunch.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Danny DeVault, who departed this life 2 years ago today, July 23rd, 1956.

"GONE BUT NOT FORGOTTEN"
The stars are brightly shining,
Upon a silent grave,
In it lies a loved one,
We've loved but could not save.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly, tenderly, fond and true,
There is not a day, dear Danny,
That we do not think of you.
Sadly Missed By His Mother, Dad and Brothers

Local Man

ministered by the Navy Department. There was a rudimentary public school system but it was difficult to get qualified teachers, according to Mr. Perdew, who is visiting his father and his sister, Mrs. R. Rhett Rathbone, before returning to Guam for another two years.

Prospective teachers were sent to Hawaii or California for their collegiate education and most often never returned to their native island. The Territorial College was established to solve this problem.

Stateside Help

The new Guam Legislature has established a 12-year free public school system on the island and requires attendance until the age of 16.

Mr. Perdew got interested in joining the faculty of the Guamanian college through Ohio State University, which has been assisting the new college since its beginning. Mr. Perdew received his master's degree at OSU, worked as an instructor there two years and has done additional graduate work toward his doctorate.

When the Territorial College of Guam opened its doors for the first time six years ago, it had only three full-time teachers. It is temporarily located in seven quonset huts on the George Washington High School campus, half a mile from Agana, the capital of Guam.

Quonset Huts And Ph.D.'s

Although the college still is located in seven quonset huts, plans have been prepared for construction of a modern college plant including an administration building, a two-story classroom building, an air-conditioned library for 20,000 volumes, and a student center. The buildings will accommodate about 250 students. Some $500,000 already has been appropriated for the construction, which is expected to start this year. Completion is planned in time for the 1959-60 school year.

The educational pioneer explained here that the present enrollment is 150 full-time students, 200 part-time students and 120 vocational and adult education students. From its original three teachers, the faculty has expanded to the point that it will have a faculty of 14 in September. Ten of them will be holders of doctor's degrees.

All but two members of the faculty are from stateside United States. The two native Guamanians include Dr. Pedro C. Sanchez, dean of the college, and Jesus B. Guerrero, assistant professor in science and mathematics.

Plans Expansion

Currently a junior college, the institution is in the process now of preparing for accreditation and expansion into a four-year program. Those who have finished the two-year junior college program have had little trouble gaining admittance in colleges and universities in the United States. Mr. Perdew says they have been accepted in 97 colleges, including Ohio State and a number of California institutions of higher learning.

When he leaves Pittsburgh August 13 with his wife and 16-year-old son to return to Guam by plane, Mr. Perdew will return to a promotion on the college faculty. He will be director of the evening program and assistant to the dean.

They will go back to the island of about 225 square miles which is becoming thoroughly "Americanized" without any bitterness toward the United States, according to the traveling educator. He says he has yet to see a thatched roof or a grass skirt on the island.

The native Guamanians are from the Chamorros. Their native tongue has been greatly influenced by the Spanish in more than three centuries. Their language is oral, not written, and consequently the language used in the college is English.

A Varied Career

His current status in Guam is another move for Mr. Perdew in a varied career in education. Although he was born in Cumberland he was graduated from Keyser High School in 1932 at a time when the family had moved to the Mineral County town because of his father's job transfer. After two years at Potomac State College he worked a year and then completed his undergraduate education at Wittenburg College in Ohio.

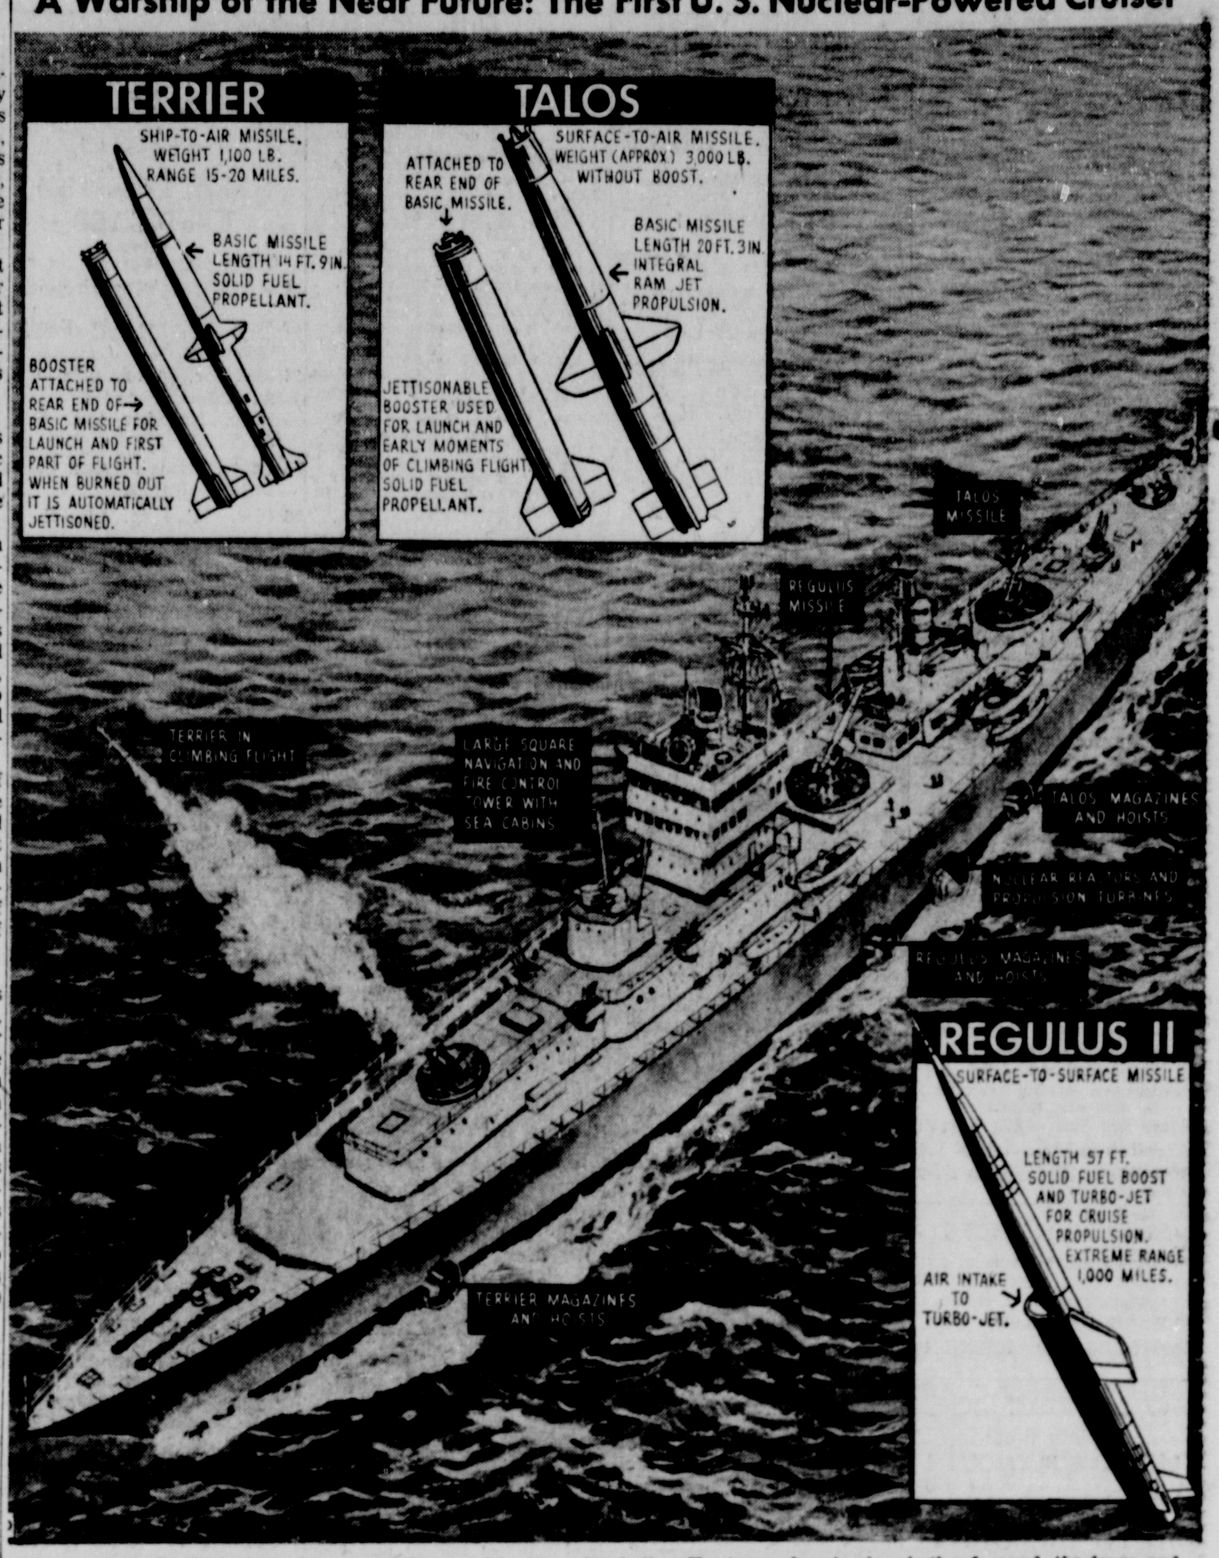

Mr. Perdew's first five years of teaching were in nearby West Virginia. In the five years he taught at Elk Garden, Wiley Ford and Ridgeley, all in Mineral County. The next year he worked at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company. In 1943 and 1944 he returned to Wittenberg on the staff of the Army Training School. Then came two years in the Navy.

From 1946 until 1948, Mr. Perdew taught at Bellefontaine, Ohio, High School. Then came two years at Ohio State University, where he obtained his master's degree while working as an instructor. Then he served as dean of students at Lorain, Ohio, High School. Back to Ohio State, where he was working toward his doctorate when the opportunity unfolded for his work on Guam.

His wife is the former Miss Mary Francis Coffman of Keyser and they have a 16-year-old son, Paul, who thinks skin diving is one of the most pleasant recreations on Guam.

They seem to enjoy their experience on Guam a great deal, and Mr. Perdew apparently would be happy if he could recruit a teacher to return to the island with him.

A Warship of the Near Future: The First U. S. Nuclear-Powered Cruiser

The keel of the first ship of a new and powerful class of guided missile cruisers for the U. S. Navy has recently been laid at the Quincy (Mass.) Yard of the Bethlehem Steel Company, and it is hoped that this nuclear-powered vessel will be joining the fleet in 1961. Named Long Beach, she will be approximately 14,000 tons, and some 750 feet long. The first nuclear-powered surface ship in the world, she is also the first cruiser to be designed and constructed from the keel up in the United States since the end of the Second World War. She will be without funnels, but she is to have a large square tower in which will be housed much of her navigation, control and radar equipment. Her armament will reportedly consist almost entirely of guided missiles: Terrier surface-to-air missiles forward, the large and powerful Regulus II surface-to-surface missiles amidships, and Talos surface-to-air missiles aft. It is believed that her missile magazines will have automatic hoisting and loading equipment of a revolutionary type. Long Beach will also have the latest anti-submarine weapons.

Mr. Davis' drawing, based on an official sketch, gives an impression of this notable ship as she may appear on completion. The exact position of her forward launching platform has apparently not yet been finally decided, but the superstructure will probably be chosen as it is higher and less liable to be "washed out" when the ship is in action in a seaway.

City Air Pollution Station Discussed

Two members of the State Health Department staff yesterday conferred with Mayor J. Edwin Keech on air pollution.

Dr. William F. Reindollar, chief of the Industrial Health and Air Pollution division, and a member of his staff came here to see if the City of Cumberland is still interested in an air pollution control station.

Dr. Ton van Strien, county health officer, said the discussion was a preliminary one. He added that the station would cost $2,500 and yearly maintenance costs $300.

The city abandoned its air pollution program several years ago after railroads converted to Diesel power and many homes and businesses went to gas or oil heating.

Bedford Fair Predicts 100,000 Visitors In Aug.

BEDFORD, Pa.—With larger premium lists and greater exhibit space than ever in its long history, the Great Bedford County Fair plans to offer one of its finest shows, attracting more than 100,000 visitors during this Bicentennial year for Fort Bedford.

Because of the attractive premium lists, an increasing number of exhibitors, particularly in livestock divisions, are drawn to the Bedford Fair. It's an adage among them that the quality of exhibits is such that "if you can win at Bedford, you can win anywhere in Pennsylvania." Many top winners at Bedford go on to capture blue ribbons at other state and national expositions.

The livestock exhibits will be highlighted by some of the finest dairy and beef cattle in the Tri-state area, as well as 4-H and F.F.A. displays from a three-county area, including Blair, Bedford and Fulton counties.

Marked by the colorful GAC-Hamid "Satellite Revue" at night, the fair offers a wide variety of entertainment.

Mnday, Aug. 4—Entry day, featuring Jack Kochman's auto daredevils in front of the grandstand at 8:30 p. m. James E. Strates' carnival on the midway.

Tuesday, Aug. 5—First of two Children's Days, with all children admitted free. Harness racing in the afternoon, together with circus and vaudeville acts.

Highlighted by the Four Freshmen, radio and television stars, the first showing of the GAC-Hamid revue, "Satellite Spectacular," will take place Tuesday night, followed by a display of fireworks. The show will continue all week, with Jimmy Dean succeeding the Four Freshmen as the featured star on Thursday and Friday.

Wednesday, Aug. 6—Parade of High School Bands from a five-county area, as well as the Pennsylvania State Police Rodeo in the afternoon, and Satellite Revue at night.

Thursday, Aug. 7—Traditionally the "big day," with harness racing, circus acts, cavalcade of livestock, awarding of trophies and many special events.

Friday, Aug. 8—Second Children's Day, with youngsters again admitted free. Special events will include the 4-H tractor driving contest, and sale of baby beef, with the last day of harness racing scheduled in the afternoon and the Satellite Revue at night.

Saturday, Aug. 9—Auto race day, with world champion drivers competing under the direction of Sam Nunis. The final showing of "Satellite Spectacular" will bring fair week to a close Saturday night.

A new Impala convertible will be given away by the fair management at the close of the evening performance. All gate and grandstand admissions during the week are eligible for the grand prize and the winner must be present.

Circus and vaudeville acts appearing during the week include Natal the Monkey Man, an entertaining novelty act; the Bruxellos, daring acrobats; Rudi Sisters and Co., in a death-defying aerial and flying trapeze act; and the Marthys, a clever balancing act.

Navy Adds 30 Ships To Sealift Operation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy said Tuesday it is adding 30 ships to the U.S. fleet to aid in the sealift flying to and from the Middle East.

It said 12 cargo ships are in the process of being taken over from U.S. commercial lines and 15 tankers have been chartered "to meet the increased demand for petroleum shipments resulting from the Near East upheaval."

In addition, the Navy said, a troop transport—the U.S. Walker—has been ordered out of mothballs "to meet current requirements." It said the maritime administration also has agreed to provide the fleet with two more cargo vessels.

Man Is Injured As Tire Bursts

A 23-year-old Keyser youth is in "critical" condition at an Arlington, Va., hospital where he was admitted Saturday following an accident at a Lee Highway service station.

William Martin Swick was seriously injured when a tire on which he was working burst. Bits of rubber and metal struck him with such force he sustained a fractured skull, broken arm, punctured lung and numerous facial injuries.

He is a son of James (Spike) Swick of Keyser and Mrs. Mary Frances Ullery who now resides in Monaca, Pa.

Mr. Swick and his wife, the former Miss Margie Smith of Keyser, had recently moved to the Washington area and reside at 1521 North 18th Street in Arlington.

Strong Spots Overshadow Declines In Stock Market

NEW YORK (UPI)—Heavy demand for chemical shares lifted prices in that group as much as 2 points and turned an early loss into another plus on the record—the sixth in a row for the averages, now in new high ground for almost a year.

Routine profit-taking after the recent run-up—climaxed with the best gain of the year Monday—kept prices in most groups irregular throughout the session with a few recent strong spots down a point or more.

The strong spots overshadowed the declines, however. In addition to the chemicals, there were gains in selected oils, tires, metals, machinery issues, and in rails.

Volume continued heavy. Turnover dipped just 20,000 shares below Monday's 3,440,000 total which was best since Jan. 16.

Olin-Mathieson, Crucible Steel, Alleghany Corp., Bethlehem Steel, Monsanto Chemical, North American Aviation, Avco, Commercial Solvents, General Motors, Hooker Electrochemical, U. S. Steel, General Electric, Royal Dutch, Aluminium and Kaiser Aluminum were the most actively traded. Only Alleghany, off ¼ point, and Bethlehem and U. S. Steel, each unchanged, failed to show a gain on the day.

Of a total 1,202 issues traded—broadest market since June 19—430 were higher, 460 lower. There were 113 new highs sets, only one new low—in Westinghouse Electric preferred.

Gains in the chemicals ran to 2 points in Allied, nearly 2 in Dow and Hooker Electrochemical. Union Carbide, Monsanto, American Potash, Commercial Solvents, Olin Mathieson, Vick added a point or more. In the pharmaceuticals Pfizer gained close to 2.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Grain futures prices closed mixed, generally firm to easy on the Chicago Board of Trade Tuesday.

At Chicago, wheat finished off ¼ to 1¼ cents; corn (old) off ½ to 2½ cents; corn (new) off ⅞ to 1⅜ cents; oats off to 3 cents; rye off ¾ to up 1 cent; soybeans off 1 to up 2¼ cents.

Reports of good weather and a cautious waiting for additional international news swung the price pendulum away from an early firmness in most grains. Considerable hedging was noticed in wheat, largely by milling interests. The tendency in corn was toward liquidation with local dealers directing most of the activity.

There was scant optimism that the market would reach much higher than in recent days.

Soybean meal hit an early decline which carried bean trading into a lower register throughout the day. The dip reflected a general selloff in the other grains.

The winter wheat harvest was reported 90 per cent completed in Kansas and more than 50 per cent finished in north-central Colorado. The range:

3 hearts	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 clubs	Pass	4 no trump	Pass
5 hearts	Pass	5 no trump	Pass
6 clubs	Pass	6 hearts	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Spade jack.

If I were asked to state in a phrase the most important guide to the successful play of the cards, I would probably offer this: "Make the opposition play before you use your important cards." It is a distinct advantage to play fourth hand to any trick and the one who plays first is under a handicap. South's failure to grasp this principle involved him in a loss which ran into several figures.

Today's bidding was more or less routine. North had ample values for his jump shift and after a temporizing rebid, he embarked on a Blackwood inquiry eventually consigning the hand to a small slam contract in hearts.

The jack of spades was opened. West showed out of trumps on the second round and declarer discontinued the suit. He cashed the ace of clubs and then led over to the king, which was ruffed by East.

Declarer was obliged to lose another club trick and the contract went on the rocks. He had neglected to employ the technique of getting the opposition to play first before using his important card. He should not have permitted the king of clubs to be trumped.

This could have been accomplished in a very simple manner. East is the one open to the suspicion of being short in clubs. The first club should be won with the king, not the ace. Then a low club is led from dummy.

What is East to do? If he ruffs, declarer gives up a little club and his work is over. If East discards as he should, declarer will win with the queen and enter dummy to lead another club, again forcing the enemy to play before he used an important club.

Let us assume that East ducks again. The ace of clubs wins and the 10 of clubs is ruffed with dummy's 5 of trumps. East can overruff but that is the only trick the defense can take.

Boys Obtain Merchandise By Fraud

Charge Items On Customers' Accounts

City police yesterday picked up a local boy, 16, who implicated another 16-year-old in a series of swindles whereby the lads obtained over $130 worth of merchandise from downtown stores under false pretenses.

Members of the detective bureau said yesterday the two boys apparently would find out about accounts at the local stores, would then call the stores pretending to be a customer with an account, and would advise the management that the boys would be in later to charge some merchandise.

The boys then would enter the establishment and pick out various items to be placed on some unsuspecting customer's account.

Most of the merchandise fraudulently charged to others' accounts were clothing and jewelry, detectives said.

The 16-year-old boy was released to the custody of his parents after being questioned yesterday in Police Headquarters. The second boy will be brought in for questioning today, police added.

Meanwhile, the detective bureau is checking to determine if there are other cases of a similar nature involved.

Police said that checking into the background of the first youth revealed the lad also was involved in the theft of an automobile which later was found demolished last March.

The boy admitted he took the car belonging to Robert V. Chisholm, 305 Beall Street, on March 1 when he and another boy drove the vehicle east on U. S. Route 40 toward Flintstone and then wrecked the car on Murley's Branch Road.

The boys were unhurt, although the car was a total loss, police said. The boys hitchhiked their way back to Cumberland.

Investigating the cases are Detectives George Furstenburg and Thomas See and Lt. James E. Van.

Local Laundry To Begin New Self-Service

The Crystal Laundry Company, 201 South Mechanic Street, will put into operation tomorrow a public washing and drying service, according to George M. Young, president of the Company.

Mr. Young said 14 washers and five driers have been installed at the South Mechanic Street location and will be available for public use 24 hours a day after the service is formally opened Monday.

The laundry president said the machines will be in operation free of charge tomorrow, Friday and Saturday from 7:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m.

He said the public is invited to test the new machines during the three-day inspection period. Both the washers and the driers operate on a 30-minute cycle.

The laundry room will have available a soap dispensing machine and a coin changer. A supplementary water softener and water heater also is a part of the new equipment.

The part of the building formerly used for storage and office was reconverted to house the washers and driers.

Similar services have been offered in the West and Southwest and lately have become popular in the Baltimore and Washington areas, Mr. Young said.

Local Man Educational Pioneer At Guam College

By ALBERT D. DARBY
News Staff Writer

A Cumberland native who previously had taught in public schools of West Virginia and Ohio is now enjoying a rewarding experience as an educational pioneer on the Island of Guam as a member of the faculty of the only college within a 1,500 mile radius.

He is George M. Perdew, son of Arch G. Perdew of this city. He's the third generation of his family to be interested in the teaching profession. His grandfather, for whom he was named, was assistant superintendent of Allegany County public schools at the time of his death in 1916. Although his father was employed by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for nearly 30 years until his retirement in 1948, he also taught in Garrett County at Altamont, Deer Park and Grantsville before giving up teaching in order to support his family by working for the railroad.

Two years ago George M. Perdew went to Guam for the first time to develop the science department of the Territorial College of Guam, which had opened in June 1952. This new college was established under the authority of the Organic Act of Guam and the First Guam Legislature for the purpose of providing educational opportunities for the people of Guam.

8,000 Miles Away

Guam, located in the Western Pacific, 5,000 miles west of San Francisco and 1,500 miles east of Manila, has been a possession of the United States for almost 60 years. It was ceded to this country by the Treaty of Paris December 10, 1898, which ended the Spanish-American War.

Discovered by Magellan in 1521, it was a Spanish possession for more than 360 years. It is the southernmost, largest and most populous in a chain of 17 volcanic islands known as the Marianas.

The real development of Guam as an American possession has come since Congress passed the Organic Act of Guam in 1950, making Guam a territory of the United States and authorizing the establishment of a legislature on the island. The Governor is appointed by the President of the United States.

Before 1950, Guam was considered simply an important United States naval station and was ad-

County CD Gets Direct Tie-In With Pikesville

New Civil Defense Equipment Installed

A direct tie-in with Civil Defense headquarters in Pikesville has been established in Allegany County with the installation of equipment in Central Fire Station here.

William G. Barger, county director for Civil Defense, said installation of the equipment was started yesterday by local C&P Telephone Company crews.

The telephone line will be a part of the National Air Warning Alerting System and places Cumberland in the statewide air raid warning network operated by the U. S. Air Force.

Mr. Barger explained that the direct line to Pikesville eliminates the relay of all messages through Hagerstown to the western end of the state. It will shorten the delay time in notification of enemy attack and may even be used as a hurricane warning system, he said.

State headquarters of the Eastern Air Defense Command sends simultaneous messages from Pikesville to all county Civil Defense units, and the direct line to Cumberland will enable Allegany County defense units to receive warnings with the greatest possible speed.

The Central Fire Station was selected as the site of the direct communications setup because its switchboard is manned 24 hours a day.

The county now has a standard notification procedure on all important messages whereby certain key individuals and telephone switchboards throughout the city are notified immediately. These persons and switchboards, in turn, have a set table of calls to be made to alert industries, hospitals, and key Civil Defense personnel with all possible speed.

Meanwhile, Allegany County's Civil Defense headquarters remains responsible for relaying all messages to Garrett County, Mr. Barger said.

Teamsters Local Plans Hearing On Election Dispute

Local 453, Teamsters Union, has been ordered to hold a hearing on an allegation of fraud in the local's 1957 election, according to an Associated Press report from Washington.

A formal protest was filed this April, and the Eastern Conference of Teamsters on July 18 ordered Local 453 to hold a hearing on the protest, the report said.

A spokesman for the Cumberland local declined to comment on the protest except to say that the Executive Board will hold a hearing in strict accordance with procedure set up by the union's constitution.

Area Concert Association Formed Here

Membership Drive Slated Sept. 8-13

The Tri-State Community Concert Association was formed here this week to fill a gap in the cultural atmosphere of the Cumberland area.

Peter Lukas was elected president of the association, which was formally organized at a meeting Monday evening in Central YMCA. Other officers are:

Robert M. Hainsfurther, first vice president; Mrs. A. N. Golladay, executive secretary, Mrs. J. M. Pitkethley, assistant executive secretary; Mrs. Mary I. Matthews, correspondent, and Ronald Downey, treasurer.

Drive Is Planned

Edward Eichner was named dinner chairman for the association.

Plans were mapped for a membership campaign to be held throughout the area from September 8 to 13. A kickoff meeting for campaign workers was scheduled September 7.

At least 150 workers are expected to join in the membership campaign throughout the Tri-State area.

Present to outline the agreement, later signed by top officers of the association, was Carl H. P. Dahlgren, Princeton, N. J., a representative of the national office of the Community Concerts organization.

Adopt Constitution

A constitution and by-laws for the new association were also adopted at the organization meeting.

Directors of the association said the primary purpose of the group will be to cultivate in the citizens of Cumberland and its surrounding area interest in good music and to encourage all musical undertakings.

"This new venture," Mr. Lukas said, "will need the support of every music-loving citizen of the Tri-State area. A successful campaign will bring joy and entertainment not only to the few but to music lovers in all communities of this area."

Representatives from Cumberland and Frostburg were present at the meeting. In the future, it is anticipated that Bedford, Keyser, Oakland and Romney and other area communities will be represented.

Youths Admit Shoplifting In Local Stores

Two local youths, 16 and 15 years old, were arrested yesterday and police said they admitted shoplifting over $30 worth of merchandise from various stores in the city.

City police said the pair took fishing equipment, rifle cartridges and other items from two or three business places on Baltimore Street. They later were released to the custody of their parents pending court action in the case.

Local police also wrapped up two other cases in which two large lawn ornaments valued at $20, and two porch vases valued at $14, were stolen and recovered.

Detective Kenneth Morrissey said he located the lawn ornaments and the vases at the home of a local woman.

The lawn ornaments were stolen July 9 from a home on Broadway Circle and the vases were reported taken from a residence on Baltimore Street on July 3.

Morrissey said the woman stated she had found the lawn ornaments in a nearby wooded area and that she had purchased the vases from a youth for $3.

The detective said he later apprehended the youth who admitted taking the vases. No charges, however, have been filed pending further investigation in the case.

Meanwhile, police have received numerous other complaints in the past several days.

The Queen City Neon Company, Oldtown Road, informed police that vandals damaged a large sign valued at $150 on its property.

Saturday, a local taxi driver telephoned police that someone took $9 from him while he was asleep in his cab office, and the same day the Cumberland Ice and Storage Company, Frederick Street, reported somebody attempted to break into a coin box there.

Edward Cramer, 622 Elm Street, reported Monday that his wrist watch, valued at $71.50, was taken at Constitution Park.
